Reagan lauds Japan leader

As anti-military activists protest

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
United Press International

TOKYO — President Reagan paid his respects Thursday to the emperor who forged Japan into a world power while anti-military student protesters staged a sudden sit-down near the entrance to the Shinto monument.

About 20 students pulled blue and red paper skull masks over their heads, sat on the ground and began chanting "Reagan Go Home." Police pounced, shoving the students away, ripping away the masks and arresting them.

The shrine, honoring Emperor Meiji — who turned Japan into a modern military and industrial power before he died in 1912 — evokes bitterness in the minds of many Japanese who link it to the nation's warlike past.

One of Reagan's goals is to persuade the Japanese to rebuild their defenses so they can once again take a more active worldwide security role.

Police, on full alert and out in the streets in the tens of thousands, had refused student and labor groups permission to protest the visit, which Reagan aides consider a good will gesture similar to a foreign dignitary visiting the Tomb of the Unknowns near Washington.

Mindful of the Oct. 2 bombing that killed 21 people and decimated the South Korean Cabinet at the Martyrs Mausoleum in Rangoon, Secret Service agents persuaded Shinto priests to allow a thorough search of the shrine and went over its roof with metal detectors.

Shinto priests in white robes and high pointed black hats presided over the ceremonies and bowed deeply as the president and first lady Nancy Reagan signed the guest book about 8 p.m. EST Wednesday.

About 100 kindergarten children in blue school uniforms greeted the president, and six small children in colorful kimonos gave him a "gift of good omen" — a placard inscribed with good wishes. Mrs. Reagan, in a bright red dress, stooped to shake hands with the youngsters and exclaimed "Wonderful, how pretty."

The Japanese organized a colorful exhibition of the 7th Century martial art of "yabusame" — archery on horseback — for Reagan's visit to the park-like shrine grounds in central Tokyo.

The Reagans watched in awe as horsemen wearing multicolored Samurai costumes shot arrows at straw figures while galloping at full speed. Once performed only by courtiers and imperial guards, yabusame is now staged annually on Nov. 3 by their descendents. The event was restaged in Reagan's honor.

Waste illegally buried

Action taken against dump

By ELLEN MARKS
United Press International

BOISE — The Environmental Protection Agency announced Wednesday it will take legal action against owners of a hazardous waste dump because illegally buried liquid chemicals were discovered at the Grand View site.

An EPA engineer from Seattle was at the Owyhee County dump Wednesday to decide what penalties should be assessed against Envirosafe Services of Idaho Inc., said Steve Provant, EPA air and hazardous waste team leader.

The company is accused of failing to solidify liquid chemicals by mixing them with peat moss before burying the barrels in trenches.

"We're going to have to pursue legal remedies for the violations," Provant said.

He also said EPA believes a second trench at th dump should be excavated in light of suspicions it may also contain barrels of fluid toxins in violation of federal regulations.

Provant said the agency has not decided what penalty it will seek against the company. But he added federal law allows a $25,000 fine for each day aviolation occurs.

EPA attorneys may propose the company pay a set amount rather than attempting to determine the length of time each liquid-bearing container has been in the 35-foot-deep pit.

Provant said the agency will pursue the "legal remedies" before completion of its investigation, which was launched last week after a former dump employee alleged the burial of liquid chemicals was common practice and was sanctioned by ESI management.

"We want to act on this as rapidly as we can," Provant said. "We don't think we have to wait until we go through a complete excavation."

Provant also said officials decided to endorse excavation of the second trench after discovering fluid toxins in about 26 percent of the 600 barrels taken from the first ditch.

Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, said Wednesday he had asked EPA to expand the investigation into the other trench because Envirosafe's entire operation has become questionable.

"The evidence to date, has placed a black mark on Envirosafe's willingness to comply with existing federal law," the Idaho Republican said in a news release.

Holds Reagan's respect

Military alters foreign policy

By PHILIP W. SMITH
Newhouse News Service

Analysis

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon — both its civilian and military sides — is playing a larger role in U.S. foreign policy under President Reagan than it has in any other recent administration.

In Lebanon, Grenada, Central America and Europe, there is a growing military imprint on U.S. foreign policy.

Once Reagan made the decision to intervene in Grenada, planning and implementation was left entirely to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the commander of U.S. forces in the Atlantic.

An armada of 30 U.S. warships, more than 300 aircraft and about 3,500 Marines currently is being assembled off the coast of Lebanon in the largest show of U.S. military force since the Vietnam War.

More than 3,000 Army, Air Force and Marine personnel are conducting extended maneuvers in Honduras.

And the United States next month will begin deploying a new generation of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe despite protests by hundreds of thousands of people there.

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, having shepherded three large Pentagon budget increases through Congress — assuring the rebuilding" of U.S. defenses promised by Reagan in his 1980 campaign — has become more involved in global policy issues than any of his 14 predecessors.

Senior officials at both the State Department and the Pentagon insist there is no conflict between Weinberger and Secretary of State George P. Shultz. But the variety of diplomatic missions Weinberger has taken on for his long-time friend Ronald Reagan in recent months has led to speculation that he is "running for secretary of state" in a second Reagan administration.

CASPAR WEINBERGER
Advocated Pentagon budgets

Weinberger denies this, saying he has plenty to do at the Pentagon.

But with Alexander M. Haig Jr. long gone from Foggy Bottom, replaced by the low-key Shultz, and Reagan intimate William P. Clark replaced by former Marine officer Robert McFarlane as White House national security adviser, Weinberger may emerge as the administration's most visible foreign policy spokesman.

From James V. Forrestal (the first defense secretary, whose career was as an investment banker) to nuclear physicist Harold Brown, who preceded Weinberger, defense secretaries traditionally have been limited to running the military services and have left foreign policy matters to the State Department.

But last month it was Weinberger — not Shultz or Clark — who arranged a Reagan trip to China next spring and a visit to Washington by Chinese Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang in January.

It was Weinberger who met with the heads of three Central American governments in early September.

It was Weinberger who became the first U.S. defense secretary to meet with the pope, last month at the Vatican.

And it was Weinberger who, on a recent 24,000-mile trip around the world, met with the government heads of China, Pakistan and Sri Lanka and the foreign ministers of — Japan, Pakistan and Italy — in addition to the defense ministers of all the countries he visited.

Last Sunday, on a national television interview program, Weinberger refused to rule out a U.S. invasion of Nicaragua when the subject came up. He could have ducked the question easily, saying such decisions weren't his department. Instead he said: "The question is not open, not closed, not answered, I'et's leave it that way."

His answer may sound mild — nothing more than common sense to most Americans. But in other nations,

BEAUFORT, N.C. (UPI) — Duke University researchers announced Wednesday development of an "artificial gill" process in which oxygen is extracted from water, theoretically permitting humans to stay underwater indefinitely.

Dr. Joseph Bonaventura, director of the Duke Marine Biomedical Center, and his wife, Celia, said they have developed a "hemosponge" that could replace current methods of providing oxygen to people underwater.

"This makes possible an efficient extraction of oxygen from seawater," said Celia Bonaventura, a biochemist.

The Bonaventuras said they will continue their basic research and expect to bring the hemosponge to the stage of a "laboratory demonstration unit." They said the process "provides the potential for opening up for exploration regions of the ocean never accessible before."

Bonaventura said the hemosponge uses hemoglobin, the blood component in humans that carries oxygen from the lungs to all parts of the body. The hemoglobin is combined with a prepolymer — a substance with the consistency and color of golden honey — to form a sponge substance similar to that in seat cushions.

Bonaventura said the hemosponge is placed in a container. When water is passed through the container, oxygen is extracted.

Oxygen can then be siphoned off by drawing a vacuum over the container or it can be released by hitting the sponge with a weak electrical charge, Bonaventura said. By using a two-stage cycle, one container can extract oxygen from water while oxygen is being removed from another container, thus providing a continual supply.

Bonaventura said a container three feet in diameter by nine to 10 feet in length theoretically could provide oxygen to 150 people on the ocean floor.

Bonaventura noted that people now going underwater have to depend on air hoses, oxygen tanks or oxygen produced by battery or nuclear power. He said his process will cut the dependence on such devices.

"Until now, there has been no human-made vehicle that operates under water like fish or sharks," he said.

Bonaventura said blood for the widespread use of the hemosponge could be obtained from slaughter houses.

He said a hemosponge will continue to function for a long time without replacement, noting he has one he made seven years ago. He also said a hemosponge could be fashioned for use by individual divers.

"Mos. ely it would be a backpack holding cannisters of hemosponge," he said.

Damage actually may aid school

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

GOODING — Earthquake damage at the State School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding has resulted in condemnation of a 63-year-old building.

This will require that some classes be held in temporary buildings for at least three years.

But the damage and closure could benefit the state should the U.S. Department of Education decide to grant disaster relief, to help replace the campus's high-school building.

The State Board of Education had proposed in September that the structure should be replaced in four to five years, at an estimated cost of $2 million, as part of a total $8.5 million renovation plan for the school. Last week, the Federal Emergency Management Agency estimated the building's replacement cost at $3.5 million.

And Darrell Waller, the coordinator of Idaho's Bureau of Disaster Services, says that's the value the state will use to represent replacement costs to the Department of Education.

"We're not asking the federal government to replace the school. They couldn't be expected to replace something that was going to be replaced in five years. But we hope they won't lose sight of the fact that we've lost use of the building for five years," Waller says.

He says, however, that the federal government might choose to pay for all or a large share of the school's replacement.

But no disaster relief will be available unless President Ronald Reagan declares the state a na-

Justice advocates involvement

POCATELLO (UPI) — The newest member of the Idaho Supreme Court spoke out Wednesday against a decline in citizen participation in government, saying it may lead to a "degradation" of the system.

Justice Robert Huntley urged Pocatello business leaders at a Chamber of Commerce meeting to take a more active role to prevent further damage to the state's government system.

Huntley said slackening citizen involvement in government is one reason the state's tax system has deteriorated during the past decade.

He also noted public school teachers' and college instructors' salaries have lost ground in Idaho in another blow to the governmental system.

Dutch millionaire kidnapped

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (UPI) — Freddie Heineken, multi-millionaire chairman of Heineken Breweries and confidant of the Dutch royal family, was kidnapped by three masked men Wednesday night just hours after hosting a lunch for 100 policemen, police said.

Heineken and his chauffeur were forced into an orange van outside the company's headquarters and driven away at high speed, said Amsterdam police spokesman Klaas Wilting.

He said the vehicle was found with the motor still running about 15 minutes after the kidnapping, and blood stains on the outside of the van were believed to belong to the chauffeur.

Witnesses said the abductors bundled Heineken into another car and took off at high speed.

Watt successor gets a boost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee Wednesday voted 16-4 to approve the nomination of William Clark to succeed controversial James Watt as interior secretary.

Confirmation by the Republican-dominated Senate is expected before Thanksgiving, despite Democratic criticism of Clark.

Voting against President Reagan's nomination of his longtime associate to the Cabinet post were Sens. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., Wendell Ford, D-Ky., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio.

Ants leave farmer without wife

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — An unfortunate farmer had to call off his wedding because an army of ants ate $150 worth of banknotes he buried for safety in his garden.

He couldn't pay the dowry, the Kenya news agency said Wednesday.

The ants ate 2,000 shillings ($150) in cash which represented the life savings of the farmer from Isiolo in northern Kenya, the agency said.

Ex-CIA agent given 25 years

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former CIA agent Edwin P. Wilson, whose lawyer said was unfairly branded an "infamous ogre," was sentenced Wednesday to 25 years in jail and a $75,000 fine for attempting to murder eight people.

The sentence means Wilson, 55, now faces a total of 57 years in jail on this and previous convictions. But he will be eligible for parole in 10 years.

U.S. District Judge Edward Weinfeld imposed sentence Wednesday for attempted murder, retaliation against witnesses and obstruction of justice. He ruled the sentences will run concurrently with the 25-year sentence for attempted murder.

Snow storms hit, cause deaths

United Press International

The first big snowstorm of autumn petered out to snow flurries and cold November rains Wednesday, but left a trail of at least seven deaths and snows stacked nearly 2 feet deep in the western mountains.

The storm which pounded out of the Rockies with heavy force settled for snows averaging 1 to 5 inches across western Kansas, Iowa and Minnesota.

"There is only light snow falling from it," Hugh Crowther of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center said. "The heaviest amounts expected are up to 6 inches in northern Wisconsin. Other than that, we're generally expecting 1-4 inches."

Five people died on Minnesota roads made treacherous by 2 to 5 inches of snow. A Nebraska motorist swerved to avoid a man scraping snow from his windshield and died when he hit another vehicle head-on. A truck driver was killed in Wyoming when his rig slid into an embankment.

DeLorean knew of drug deal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John De Lorean said in a videotape played in court Wednesday that he knew drug money was involved in a deal to rescue his failing auto firm, but cared only about saving his firm, his children and his life.

De Lorean, in a narrative he gave before undergoing a defense-commissioned lie detector test in September, said he initially did not care where the money he needed came from as long as it passed through "a legitimate financial institution."

"My only interest is staying alive and saving the company if there's anyway to do that," De Lorean said, describing his attitude after he realized he was to be involved in a narcotics transaction.

He claimed he eventually "grew concerned about the drug thing" and tried to back out of the deal, but he and his family were threatened several times by a government informant, James Hoffman, and by an undercover FBI agent, and that frightened him into cooperating.

Reagan arrived in Japan Wednesday and, surrounded by pomp, ceremony and extraordinary security, began prodding Naksone on delicate trade and economic issues central to U.S.-Japanese relations.

A statement congratulating the Japanese on steps toward opening their capital markets to foreign investment and creating a joint commission to study the dollar-yen issue was expected Thursday. U.S. officials say an undervalued yen causes the trade imbalance which favors Japan.

Both Reagan and his Japanese hosts stressed the close friendship between the two nations as the president began his first official visit to Asia.

Reagan, wearing a formal morning coat and striped trousers, received a red carpet welcome from Emperor Hirohito at the ornate Akasaka Palace as more than 1,300 American and Japanese school children cheered and waved paper Japanese and U.S. flags.

Joined by the 82-year-old Hirohito, Reagan was driven to the lush grounds of the moat-enclosed Imperial Palace, which provides a vivid reminder of feudal rule.

Immediately after the formal audience with the emperor, Reagan and Naksone began their initial round of wide-ranging private talks that lasted nearly twice as long as scheduled.

where the defense minister frequently is the most powerful man in government because he controls the armed forces, it can sound ominous. The rest of the world isn't used to hearing U.S. defense secretaries make such statements.

For more than a week following the bombing of Marine headquarters in Beirut, the person most seen on television around the world explaining U.S. policy was not from the White House or the State Department. It was Gen. Paul X. Kelley, commandant of the Marine Corps — always in uniform with four stars on each shoulder and rows of battle ribbons on his chest.

The leading advocate, in or out of the administration, of proceeding with the deployment of 572 new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Europe has been Assistant Defense Secretary Richard N. Perle.

And the only full-scale press conference to explain the U.S. invasion of Grenada has been held not by a policy-maker at the State Department, but by Adm. Wesley McDonald, commander of U.S. military forces in the Atlantic.

Wednesday, Gov. John Evans completed the formal application that asks the president to make that declaration. Waller will deliver the documents today to the Emergency Management Agency's office in Seattle, where they will be reviewed before being forwarded to the president.

Bill Livingstone, the press secretary for Sen. James McClure, says all four members of Idaho's congressional delegation have urged Reagan to act quickly on the matter.

Waller announced Wednesday that damage estimates for the entire state now have topped $12.5 million.

He said the estimates include the $3.5 million replacement cost for the high-school building, as well as replacement costs for other buildings around the state, which were arrived at in the same manner as for the Gooding school.

But even if no disaster relief is granted, the school may come out ahead.

Brian Chase, the director of the state's Division of Public Works, says the state would have needed to purchase the temporary classrooms anyway to renovate the campus. And, in fact, the temporary buildings are superior to the classrooms in the high school in many ways, he says.

They are structurally safer, contain modern classrooms and have entrance ramps for handicapped students, Chase says. All of those factors were reasons for proposing to replace the high school prior to the Oct. 28 quake.

The quake, centered near the foot of Mount Borah, about 85 miles from the school, registered 6.9 on the Richter scale — greater in magnitude than any quake in the continental United States in the last 25 years.

Chase says the planning and construction process for the school will not be hastened by the quake damage. He says planning and design will proceed in 1984, construction in 1985 and occupancy in 1986, under the original State Board of Education proposal.

The high school and shop buildings on the campus were built in 1920, after the Legislature appropriated $60,000 for their construction, according to a history of the school, written by former Superintendent Edward Ray.

The dormitory later was converted to classrooms, which are not well-suited to the specialized instruction students at the school require, Chase says.

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:

Mostly cloudy today and Friday with rain at times. Gusty southerly winds of 10 to 20 mph. Highs in the upper 40s to low 50s both days; lows tonight of 35 to 40.

Camas Prairie, Hailey, Wood River Valley:

Mostly cloudy today and Friday, with rain at times in the valleys and snow above 6,000 feet. Gusty southerly winds. Highs in the low to middle 40s both days; lows near 30.

Northern Nevada and Utah:

Variable clouds and windy today and Friday over Nevada. Chance of rain showers. Highs near 55; lows in the 30s. Variable clouds with scattered showers today and Friday over Utah. Highs in the upper 50s; lows near 25.

Synopsis:

That's the outlook for Idaho and the Magic Valley for the next several days, including the weekend.

A cold front -- spawned by a large low-pressure system in the eastern Pacific -- crossed Idaho on Wednesday, spreading clouds and showers. By mid-afternoon, these conditions covered the western half of the state. They moved on eastward during the night.

Another storm off the Pacific will follow close behind, with rain in the valleys and snow in the mountains, increasing over the state late tonight and continuing into Friday.

Light rain fell over western Idaho on Wednesday, with snow in the mountains above 5,000 feet. Rainfall reports were light, amounting to only a few hundredths of an inch at most places.

Temperatures remained in the 40s in the valleys and in the 30s at higher elevations. Gusty winds accompanied the cold front into Idaho, but were noticed mainly in the south. Velocities were generally around 15 mph, with gusts near 20 mph.

The extended forecast for Saturday through Monday in southern Idaho calls for cool, cloudy and showery periods, with partial clearing at times. Highs should be in the 40s and 50s, with most lows in the 20s and 30s.

The state's warmest temperature on Wednesday was 51 degrees, reported both in Twin Falls and Burley, after a morning low of 13 at both Dixie and Deadwood.

Elsewhere in the nation on Wednesday, the warmest temperature reported was 85 degrees at McAllen, Texas, and the coldest was 5 at Rawlins, Wyo.

Mideast cease-fire ignored

By CATHY BOOTH
United Press International

TRIPOLI, Lebanon — Yasser Arafat agreed to a cease-fire Wednesday but charged Palestinian rebels ignored the call and unleashed a new burst of tank-and-artillery fire against his outnumbered fighters in the heart of Tripoli.

Shells fell on northern and central areas of Lebanon's second largest city, where most of Arafat's besieged fighters set up multiple rocket launchers and mortar batteries close to densely populated apartment blocks.

Remnants of Arafat's force of 5,000 Palestine Liberation Organization fighters remained in the Beddawi refugee camp — his last outpost just north of Tripoli — and fought off waves of rebel tanks backed by artillery, said Abu Jihad, Arafat's second-in-command and most trusted aide.

He said the rebels lost 10 tanks and 14 personnel carriers in the battle, but continued to hold Mount Terbol, from which they poured down shells on the tin-roofed, cinder-block structures that house 22,000 civilians in Beddawi.

"They are destroying everything," Abu Jihad said. "We are the victims. What can we do but go on defending ourselves?"

Sitting at a child's desk in a deserted school in Tripoli, Abu Jihad told reporters Arafat agreed to a cease-fire to spare the loss of civilian lives in Tripoli but that the rebels sabotaged the chance for peace with a new offensive at dawn.

"We are not against any discussion," he said as tank fire boomed in the distance. "It is the Syrians who are building a dam to stop negotiations."

The Syrian-backed rebels began their blitz seven days ago to oust Arafat from Beddawi and end his 14-year reign of the PLO, claiming he had grown corrupt and moderate and no longer strove for open confrontation with Israel.

"If they want to fight Israel, let them go to Israel," Arafat said. "What are they doing here in north Lebanon?"

Arafat said he had given civic leaders "my word of honor that Tripoli will not become a battleground."

Leaders ask for military restraint

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Thomas O'Neill warned President Reagan Wednesday that he cannot expect Democratic support for military intervention anywhere else in the world, but he called the invasion of Grenada a "godsend".

O'Neill, speaking to reporters one day after he approved his fact-finding committee's judgment that the action was justified to protect American lives, made it clear that Grenada was the exception and not the rule.

He was critical of Reagan for not settling the situation through diplomacy before an invasion became necessary.

"It would be hell on earth to go into one of those things (other invasions), and I think he should forget the bravado and use diplomatic means," O'Neill said.

The leader of the group, Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., also warned against overreaction to the panel's report, saying, "I hope that no one draws from this the suggestion that we believe the United States should go around the world in a military action to invade countries because of their possible foreign policy."

Two dissenting members of the delegation, Reps. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, and Ronald Dellums, D-Calif., said Wednesday the invasion was illegal, and they said the Congressional Black Caucus supported their position.

The two men, the only blacks on the committee, also disputed the main legal argument for the invasion, that U.S. citizens were in danger.

"Had those students not been on the island ... the United States would have invaded the island at any rate," Stokes said. Dellums called the question of U.S. student safety "a convenient vehicle" for the invasion.

The report of the 14-member delegation, which included several liberal Democrats, plus O'Neill's approval, was a political coup for Reagan.

Council named to govern Grenada

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (UPI) — Governor General Sir Paul Scoon named a nine-member advisory council Wednesday to govern the formerly Marxist-led island of Grenada until elections can be held within a year.

Twenty-four Cuban diplomats, including Ambassador Julian Torres Rizzo, flew from Point Salines airport to Barbados in a U.S. Air Force C-130 plane. In Barbados, they boarded a Cubana Airlines jet bound for Havana.

Just two Cubans, embassy First Secretary Gaston Diaz and a communications technician, remained in Grenada, in accordance with an order by Scoon for Cuba to reduce its diplomatic representation.

Grenadian officials originally said there were 27 Cuban diplomats on Grenada.

The 24 Cubans left as arrangements were made to transfer to Havana the bodies of 42 Cubans reported killed in the U.S. invasion, which ousted the Marxist regime.

Speaking outside his residence, Scoon said he had asked Alister McIntyre, a 51-year-old Grenadian economist who had been tapped by political observers as the leading candidate for the job, to head Grenada's advisory council.

"Politicians will be barred from membership in the council and I have avoided asking people with vested interest in our country," Scoon said.

States pursue environment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The states that are most aggressive about improving the environment — such as Minnesota and California — are not chasing industry to "pollution havens," an environmental research group said Wednesday.

The Conservation Foundation, a Washington research organization, conducted a detailed study of how environmental regulations affect industries' choices of locations for new facilities. It concluded that states can have tough environmental programs and still attract new industry.

The foundation also released rankings for state environmental efforts — and put Minnesota and California at the top of the list.

Researchers "failed to turn up any credible evidence that environmental regulations have precipitated, or are about to precipitate, a widespread exodus of American industry abroad," the study said.

Two-thirds law lets people control funds

This year's latest round of bond issues has come and gone, some of them approved and some defeated. Now, we suppose, we'll have to listen to the argument of the losers that the 66.6 percent required for passage is "too high."

We disagree. The two-thirds-margin law, which is set in the Idaho Constitution, is a sensible, reasonable requirement, particularly in times when public revenues can't possibly keep up with government demands.

The two-thirds rule means that a proposed expenditure of the people's money must meet a severe test, and that is how we think it ought to be.

One can argue that a simple majority of 50 percent is required to elect politicians, so why shouldn't the same standard apply to bond issues? We think the answer is that politicians come and go (unfortunately, some don't go frequently enough), but that a bond issue commits money for years and years. It should have a higher hurdle.

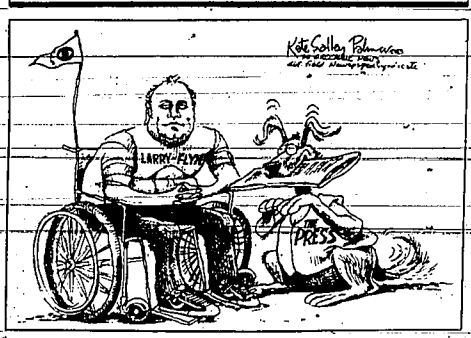
The framers of the federal Constitution understood that the power to tax is directly related to the power of sovereign government; the people could not be the repository of government's power without considerable say over the purse strings.

We've already heard whispers that this or that lobby may attempt to lower the two-thirds bond law by getting the Legislature to submit a proposed change on a Constitutional amendment. We hope the legislators resist such efforts.

Idaho and Magic Valley people will support bond issues when they are convinced that the need is legitimate and the amount reasonable. That is what happened this year with the Filer schools, the Twin Falls school and pool proposal, and in Gooding, with the new vocational-agricultural building.

But when the people don't think the proposal is right, they will vote it down, even if the amount is modest. That is what happened this week in Jerome, and perhaps in Castleford and with the Twin Falls school-gym remodeling.

The solution, in our minds, is not to lower the two-thirds law, but for officials to reassess the defeated projects, look for how they can be justified, or perhaps just discarded. After all, not every proposal needs to be funded. The two-thirds law helps the people make those choices.



Millions here, there mean real money

James Kilpatrick

WASHINGTON — Some years have passed since Everett Dirksen, that beloved senator from Illinois, formulated his homely explanation of how the government gets in the fiscal messes that so constantly recur.

"We vote a billion here, and a billion there," said the senator, "and the first thing you know it adds up to real money."

Dirksen's admonition came to mind the other day when the House of Representatives, to its credit, wrestled one more time with a bill to establish "Project Democracy" as an adjunct of the U.S. Information Service. The bill was not concerned with billions; it would authorize mere millions, but the principle is the same.

The bill would create a "National Endowment for Democracy" that would be funded in one version by an appropriation of $31.3 million. The money would be distributed as follows: $13.8 million to the AFL-CIO to promote free trade unionism in foreign lands; $5 million to the Democratic Party and $5 million to the Republican Party to explain the formation of democratic institutions; $2.5 million to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce to promote democratic capitalism abroad; and $5 million for operating expenses and other grants.

The object, we are told, is "to promote democratic ideas and ideals, and to assist democratic institution-building overseas." Project Democracy would be an "enhancement of traditional programs" of the Information Service. It also would represent "new initiatives."

Now, in translation from the Greek: This little bill is a bill to create a plump little slush fund for the fat cats of labor, business and the two major parties.

If enacted, it would provide a marvelously convenient place to employ Uncle Ben, Sister Polly and Cousin Andrew. Committees of oversight, eager to see how Project Democracy is working in Bangladesh, would of course repair to Dacca — but with an intermediate stop at Paris on the way. Should democratic ideals be promoted in Burma, and free labor unions be encouraged in Sri Lanka, and principles of capitalism be promulgated in Bhutan? Absolutely! And Hong Kong is such a lovely city in which to rest from the grueling tasks the endowment will have sponsored.

It seems incredible that so gauzy a program ever could have been dreamed up. Still more incredible is that President Reagan could have approved it and that such sensible fellows as Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., are supporting it. When the bill reached the floor of the House last June, Rep. Hank Brown, R-Colo., took the lead in striking the grants to the two political parties from the bill, but the Senate subsequently restored them.

Ten days ago the measure returned to the floor on procedures involving a conference committee. Once again the House voted overwhelmingly against the $5 million political handouts. The heroes on this occasion were Brown again, George Crockett of Michigan and Jim Leach of Iowa. Leach had the best line: "This is nuts foreign policy," he said.

And indeed it is. Abundant agencies already exist, in both the public and private sectors, for explaining and encouraging the spread of democratic ideals. One more agency cannot possibly be justified. The matter of redundancy to one side, the measure provides a classic example of Dirksen's Law in operation.

In a budget of $800 billion; an item of $31 million is practically invisible. A state of mind exists in which such trivial sums really are not worth bothering about. But just as Dirksen said, after a while a million here and a million there will add up to real money.

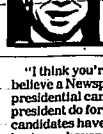
Fritz still has one chance with press



Art Buchwald

The Newspaper Guild has endorsed Fritz Mondale as its presidential candidate.

Actually, the leaders of the Newspaper Guild endorsed him — the membership was not consulted. Many members of the guild are angry that their leaders took a position in the presidential campaign.

I thought there would be jubilation in the Mondale camp when the Newspaper Guild gave the nod to their man. But it was just the opposite.

"This is an absolute disaster," said one of Mondale's people. "We've been blindsided."

"How can you say that? The Newspaper Guild is a powerful union and its members control much of the news fit to print. You should be thrilled they came out for your boy so early."

"The members didn't come out for our boy — the guild officers came out for him, and the rank and file are mad as hell. Do you know what is going to happen? The members will clobber Mondale just to prove they haven't gone in the tank."

"I didn't think of that. You don't believe they would purposely slant their stories against him, just to assert their independence?"

"They could do something worse — ignore him. And if they do write about him they'll be harder on Mondale than anybody else. If they are not, their editors will think they're following the Newspaper Guild party line."

"I think you're right," I said, "I frankly don't believe a Newspaper Guild should support any presidential candidate. After all, what can a president do for the press, anyway? The worst candidates have given us our best stories, and the best ones haven't given us any stories at all. Why do you think the guild officers stuck their necks out?"

The Mondale man said, "We suspect someone from the other side was behind it."

"When you say the other side are you talking about Mondale's Democratic rivals or the Republicans?"

"In a presidential primary everybody is on the other side."

The Mondale aide said, "The last time the Newspaper Guild supported a presidential candidate was in 1972 when they came out for McGovern. Look what happened to him."

"I forgot McGovern. Funny enough after they endorsed him, McGovern complained he never got a decent story in the papers again."

"It isn't funny. The same thing could happen to Mondale."

"I guess your best bet would be to repudiate the guild endorsement. After all, you don't have to take every political blessing that comes along."

"It may be too late. We should have turned it down when it was first offered to us. Now it's going to be hard to get the rank-and-file guild members to stop leaning over backwards to show they don't support Fritz."

"I notice where many guild members have already notified their leaders that they don't support Mondale. Isn't this a good sign?" I asked.

"Yeh; but those reporters will go even farther out of their way to show they mean it. No matter which way they go now, it's a no-win situation for us."

"There must be some way you can get a fair shake from the newspaper people, in spite of the fact they endorsed you."

"Any ideas?"

"How about this one? Why doesn't Mondale announce 'If I am elected president, I will let the press go to Grenada'?"

Art Buchwald writes from Washington for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate.

Idaho is "too great (and beautiful) to litter" with racism and religious prejudices. Why do we refuse to accept the fact that this is a pluralistic society with all the richness of ideas, customs, dress, sports, arts and beliefs which are inherent in a mosaic of cultures?

Look at the particular group you are in. Are they just exactly like you? Do you really want identity to the point of cloning? Do you really want only carbon copies with no variety in lifestyles, housing, life attitudes, hopes dreams and ambitions? No stimulating new experiences? Everything regressed to the "good old days" before our youth demanded a turnaround and opened the windows on the world? Do you remember the songs of that period — "I'd Like to Teach the World to Sing," "What the World Needs Now Is Love, Sweet Love," and "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands?"

I opt for a technicolor world, for towns and cities with libraries, museums, conservatories, parks, gardens, sunsets and sunrises, for farms, forests, deserts, factories and schools; not empty — but peopled freely with children of our world.

If we do not cultivate an accepting mind we create our own problems in our communities as well as in the world.

We read the term "ethnocentricity." We know it means a preoccupation with and a belief in the superiority of one's own culture. Arnold Toynbee, recognized as one of the greatest historians, observed that a human self cannot enter into harmony with absolute reality unless it can rid itself of self-centeredness.

If we echo any of the pet phrases of well-organized hate groups, we are on their fringe area of influence. If prejudice is allowed to continue to extremes — and I'm going to speak directly now to those churches which should be teaching love, but instead are disseminating hate materials and recordings — the end result is trouble on the playground, in the neighborhood, in the community, and ultimately in the nation.

Sunday evening I attended the "Godmakers," an anti-Mormon film presented to standing room only audiences in both the sanctuary and the fellowship hall of the First Asembly of God Church in Twin Falls, at Addison and Locust.

The Aryan Nations, American Nazi party, and the Ku Klux Klan are doing a job on the Catholics, Jews, and blacks. This group is doing a hatchet job on the Mormons. If no one speaks up, who will then be next.

Speak up for consolidation

I have been following the articles in your paper about school consolidationn, and am particularly interested in the Dietrich community. It seems to me that you have gone out of your way to expose the views of those oppposed to consolidation, without giving any views of those in favor of it.

I find myself thinking "Are the principles surfacing, or are the personalities swaying views?" Are the challenges of tomorrow for our students in the true light, or, are we being blinded by these personalities. In fact, is it a consolidation issue or just a dispute we are hearing about?

I have heard the arguments against consolidation. Interestingly, few Shoshone people have mentioned the subject, yet there seems to be an irate feeling in the Dietrich community that the Shoshone people are pushing the idea.

Isn't the issue coming from the state-appointed committee to study consolidation, not only in this area, but other areas of the state?

I have never advocated consolidation for elementary schools. To my knowledge, that wasn't the suggestion from anyone, yet it was a selling point used to survey the Dietrich area. No one wanted elementary school consolidation, so why was that included in the question, and no wonder everyone voted against it.

The children of this community are so protected that facing realities away from here is frightening. One big argument that I hear for consolidation is the exposure to drugs and alcohol. Who is going to protect these children when they turn 17 or 18 and leave home? Why not teach them use and abuse of drugs and alcohol so when they leave home, they will have something to rely on. Fear of peer pressure will be lessened and they will be able to decide for themselves.

Arlyne Kisling made a strong point at the Gooding meeting. Is it fair for the larger school districts to be penalized for benefit of the smaller schools? How long do you suppose the taxpayers of Idaho are going to put up with this sort of thing? Why not have some say about what we do rather than have to be told?

I have visited Dietrich High School and seen as few as one to three pupils in a class. Is that a challenge or is it fair to taxpayers? With more students, there is more challenge, more competition, and there is certainly challenge and competition in the adult world. They need that training.

I know students graduating who had to take brushup courses in order to get into college, or as part of their freshman year in college. Isn't that an expensive price to pay for lack of opportunity in high school?

Dietrich people voice their dislike of Shoshone and don't want their students going there. Yet, they allow Shoshone students to come to Dietrich. If there is so much contamination in Shoshone is this wise? Even if Shoshone and Dietrich high schools were combined, it would be a small school of 160 pupils or less.

My final pitch is for all of us to consider each other's rights. I don't want to make enemies, but I feel folks in favor of consolidation have a right and responsibility to speak up, too.

Auxiliary offers its thanks

South Central Medical Auxiliary greatly appreciates your coverage in the Nov. 3 issue on "Infant car-seat rentals ..." However, a few points in the article need clarification.

Certain area car dealers did, indeed, donate money and/or seats which many of these donors sell through their dealerships. These donation show their concern for automobile safety and this community program. At the same time, there was no intent to slight the many individuals, businesses and community-oriented groups who have shown an overwhelming out-pouring of donations and encouragement.

Two local projects are seeking public support in raising funds for Magic Valley Regional Medical Center's car-seat project. The Twin Falls Kiwanis will donate proceeds from all newspaper and aluminum cans deposited at area shopping centers for the month of November. The Blue Lakes Mall will donate all coins tossed in the fountain through Nov. 20.

Besides fund raising, SCMA is very active in educating the public that a car seat is the best preventive medicine for automobile related injury and death for children.

As part of our safety education for youth, we will be working with Idaho State Police Corporal Richard Willis and his friend, "Crash," who will soon be visiting Twin Falls elementary schools. "Crash" will be handing out over 3,500 McDonald's "Make it Click" coupons, redeemable for hamburgers.

Under the direction of Kathy Hammond and Jan Brumbach, hospital volunteers will educate and demonstrate the use of car seats to new parents. Parents will have the option to rent a seat, or they many wish to receive a 25 percent discount coupon to purchase their own car seat. Parents can be placed on a waiting list for the Dec. 1 rentals by calling Jo Teater at 737-2166.

This worthwhile program is off to a great start, but only with the wide-spread help from many conscientious citizens. A big "Thank You" to you all.

Nicaragua, Catholic Church at odds

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Eight Nicaraguan bishops met Wednesday with Managua's ruling junta in an attempt to resolve growing tension between the Catholic church and the Marxist regime over the church's opposition to a new draft law.

Ties between the Nicaraguan government and the Catholic church deteriorated last week when pro-Sandinista crowds mobbed 20 churches and harassed some priests, shouting protests against the church's stand on the draft law.

The law requires all males 17 years old and up to register for the draft for a larger manpower pool in the growing war against U.S.-backed rebels.

The Bishops Conference denounced the law for forcing Nicaraguans to protect a particular ideology — the Sandinista version of Marxism — and not the "fatherland."

Eight of the nine bishops attended the meeting, led by the group's president, Bishop Pablo Antonio Vega, and Miguel Obando y Bravo, the vice president but also archbishop for the country. Obando y Bravo is the harshest opponent of the draft law and of Sandinista rule.

They met with the three-man ruling junta, led by Daniel Ortega.

Vega said before entering the meeting that they would try and resolve differences with the state, but he made clear the church would not change its stand on the draft law.

"In no way are we opposed to military service, but yes, we are opposed to the utilization of military service to establish an ideology that is against human rights," Vega said.

In Guatemala, the rightist military regime denied it was involved in the slaying of a well-known priest, killed Monday only hours after chief of state Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia denounced Catholic involvement with guerrillas.

The slain priest was identified as Augusto Rafael Ramirez Monasterio, 46, father superior of the Franciscan order in Antigua, located 13 miles west of Guatemala City.

Ramirez was last seen alive when he left the house of relatives in central Zone 1 of the capital Monday in his truck. His body was found later Monday.

British doubt Reagan's restraint

LONDON (UPI) — Thousands of women held a 24-hour protest vigil at more than 100 U.S. bases around the country Wednesday and a poll revealed 94 percent of Britons mistrust President Reagan's control over the firing of nuclear missiles in Britain.

The protests coincided with the filing of papers in U.S. District Court in Manhattan by 12 British women attempting to stop the scheduled deployment of 160 cruise missiles in Britain next month.

The lawsuit named as defendants Reagan, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and the heads of the U.S. Air Force and U.S. Army.

A poll in London's Daily Mail newspaper said 94 percent of British voters want their government to have control over the firing of the missiles.

Asked if they thought Reagan would fire cruise missiles from Britain against the wishes of the British government, 68 percent said yes. Only 18 percent answered no. The poll said a majority of British voters, 58 percent, believe Reagan's policies have made nuclear war more likely.

The U.S.-led invasion of Grenada apparently has swayed Britons against U.S. policies. Seventy-two percent of those polled said they did not accept Reagan's claim that Grenada was invaded to protect the lives of U.S. citizens there.

The women peace protesters sang, held candles in a peace vigil and huddled against the cold throughout the night. The 24-hour vigil began Tuesday evening.

Israelis call up troops

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel called up thousands of reserve troops Wednesday as part of a military preparedness drill that comes amid heightened tensions with Syria.

The exercise was first announced last week, and officials said it was unconnected to Syria's mobilization Monday of its entire reserve force.

The Israeli reserves were summoned to their pre-assigned units in the afternoon when the military command broadcast 14 code words on Israel Radio.

"Torn sack, earrings, main artery, holy secret," the radio said, using the codes for various meeting places.

"Hebrew dictionary, blotting paper, valuable object, stable character, permanent wave" were some of the other codes.

The exercise was designed to gauge the time it would take a reservist to report to duty in a real emergency, the military command said.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who toured Israeli positions in Lebanon for the first time Tuesday and reassured Syria he has no intention of launching an attack, was scheduled to address the nation later in the day.

Earthquake shakes up Italy

PARMA, Italy (UPI) — A strong earthquake hit a mountainous area of north-central Italy Wednesday, cutting telephone, gas and electricity lines, causing some damage to buildings and injuring at least 50 people.

The quake, which was felt throughout northern Italy, struck during the afternoon in the Emilia-Romagna region and registered about 5.2 on the open-ended Richter scale. The quake was so intense in some areas that the needles of seismographs jolted off the charts, officials said.

But scientists said that despite the sharpness of the quake, it caused relatively little damage and few injuries for a tremor of its magnitude because its epicenter was some 18 miles below the earth's surface.

The national geophysics institute in Rome said the quake's epicenter was between the towns of Langhirano and Sala Baganza, near Parma about 200 miles north of Rome.

Queen visiting Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) -- Union Jacks and toasts to the Empire were the order of the day Wednesday on the eve of Queen Elizabeth II's first state visit to Kenya, where she began her reign 31 years ago.

Kenya's old colonials were dusting off British flags and tuxedos in anticipation of the royal visit Thursday to the east African country that holds bittersweet memories for the queen.

It was while vacationing at Kenya's famous Treetops hotel in February 1952 that the then Princess Elizabeth learned her father King George VI had died of a heart attack and she was to ascend the throne.

The queen is scheduled to visit Treetops Sunday to relive one of the most traumatic and important days in her life.

She made a brief 4-hour stopover in Kenya in 1972 but it was not considered a formal state visit to the country that became independent in 1963 but is still a member of the British Commonwealth.

The 57-year-old monarch and her husband Prince Philip were scheduled to arrive in Nairobi Thursday on the first stop of a 2 ½-week visit that includes Bangladesh and India.

QUEEN'S CROWNS

Q. How many crowns does Queen Elizabeth have?

A. Eight. But they're not hers. They're the property of the British government. When she needs one, she tells the Lord Chamberlain in St. James' Palace. He relays the request to a Regent Street firm, which sends a man in a taxi to the Tower of London for it. He drops it off at Buckingham Palace. Crown for the Queen! Sign here.

Q. How long would it take an unimpeded raft to drift from the source of the Mississippi to its mouth?

A. Maybe 20 days, give or take several. Figure 100 miles a day plus. Over 2,470 miles.

COLD CURE?

How do you account for the fact that women in their 20s come down with far more colds than do men in that age bracket? Speaking of colds, a client says the common cold is a thing of the past around his house. "If I wake up with the start of a throat tickle and snuffly nose, I take a double whammy of Vitamin C, in the morning, at noon, in the afternoon and before bedtime," he says. "The cold never develops."

No referendum seen in election results

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
UPI Political Writer

While Democrats largely dominated off-year contests Tuesday, voters gave no strong signals about how they like Ronald Reagan's policies just one year before the presidential election.

Republicans captured the Washington seat they needed as part of their strategy to keep control of the Senate, but Democrats took both governorships up for grabs and the only House seat on the ballot.

History was made in Kentucky, which elected its first woman governor, and in Philadelphia, which will have its first black mayor.

In Washington, caretaker GOP Sen. Daniel Evans won the remaining five years of the late Henry Jackson's term, despite the fact that liberal Democratic Rep. Mike Lowry tried to paint him as a mouthpiece of Reagan's policies in Grenada and Lebanon.

But the victory probably was more testimony to Evans' popularity as a former governor than it was a referendum on Reagan's policies one way or the other.

More importantly the Republican capture of the historically Democratic Senate seat means the Democrats will now have to grab six GOP seats and lose none of their own next year to regain control of the Senate. That kind of dramatic election result does not even occur when there is a landslide presidential race.

Strong victories in races for governor by Democrats Martha Layne Collins in Kentucky and Attorney General Bill Allain in Mississippi, along with the earlier defeat of GOP Gov. David Treen in Louisiana, slowed Republican inroads into the South. That could hurt Reagan's hopes of picking up southern states key to his re-election next year, particularly if the Democratic standard bearer picks someone such as Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina or Lloyd Bentsen of Texas as his running mate.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders said Wednesday they found good news in the 1983 elections.

Democratic chairman Charles Manatt said the results "brought good news for the national Democratic party, particularly in the South."

Nearly 30 people offer help to baby with AIDS

MIAMI (UPI) — Nearly 30 people responded to a public plea and offered to take in a homeless 14-month-old girl suffering from AIDS who has no more than three years to live, health officials said Wednesday.

The child, whose Haitian mother died three weeks ago from Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, was abandoned by her father. She has no home except a hospital crib.

When her mother became seriously ill months ago, social workers began looking for a home for the child, whose name is being withheld. At first, no one volunteered, many fearing they would catch the disease. But authorities said after a public plea was made, almost 30 people have offered to help care for the baby.

"We've gotten calls from eight people, some of whom look like really sharp individuals who would make good foster parents," said Carol Barker, a social worker at Jackson Memorial Hospital where the girl was first admitted on June 29. Doctors there diagnosed her as suffering from AIDS.

Jay Kassack, district administrator for the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, said his office has received about 20 calls from prospective foster parents.

House committee endorses reborn ERA bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee endorsed the resurrected Equal Rights Amendment on a 21-10 vote Wednesday and sent to the full House with hopes it can be passed by Thanksgiving.

The Democratic-dominated committee wrangled for 5 ½ hours with the 24-word constitutional amendment, beating back a rash of amendments seeking to neutralize its effects on the draft, abortion, insurance rates, veterans benefits and private boys' and girls' schools.

The ERA, as it goes to the full House, is identical to the proposed amendment that passed Congress in 1972 and died June 30, 1982, three states short of the 38 needed for ratification.

It states: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

"It's been a long time," sighed Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., prime sponsor of the ERA introduced early this year. "Women would like to be in the Constitution."

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., said he hopes to see the ERA debated and passed in the House Nov. 16 or 17, sending it to the Senate. Congress intends to adjourn Nov. 18 for Thanksgiving.

Tough security ordered at bomb-wary Capitol

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bomb-sniffing dogs patroled the Capitol Wednesday and police speeded implementation of a new security plan in response to a bombing that caused heavy damage near the Senate chamber.

The FBI is investigating whether the Armed Resistance Unit, which claimed responsibility for the blast, is linked to a string of bombings of federal and corporate buildings.

The bomber may have been photographed by cameras trained on hallways leading to the Senate corridor where the blast occurred late Monday night, but the FBI declined comment on what was found on the videotapes. Authorities have not yet commented on the results of lab tests conducted on bomb fragments found in the rubble.

In a statement sent to National Public Radio after the blast, the Armed Resistance Unit said it carried out the attack on the Capitol in retaliation for U.S. moves "to trample and lay waste the lives and rights of the peoples of Grenada, Lebanon, El Salvador and Nicaragua."

"Our action carries a message to the U.S. imperialist ruling class: we purposely aimed our attack at the institutions of imperialist rule rather than at individual members of the ruling class and government. We did not choose to kill any of them this time. But their lives are not sacred and their hands are stained with the blood of millions," it said.

Candies make babies sleep

BOSTON (UPI) — By eating a candy bar in the evening, breast-feeding mothers may make their babies fall asleep faster and sleep longer, a researcher studying how diet effects a baby's behavior said Wednesday.

Scientists at Children's Hospital have discovered that a baby's behavior — such as its sleeping habits, irritability and alertness — are effected by subtle changes in its diet. They found that changes can be induced either through its mother's milk or through a change in the baby's formula.

For years, doctors have known that the quantity of calories, protein and other ingredients in a baby's diet affect its growth. Reporting in the New England Journal of Medicine, Dr. Michael W. Yogman said he has discovered the composition of those items can have a profound effect on a baby's behavior.

"Indications clearly support the idea that diet influences a baby's behavior in complicated but specific ways," said Yogman. "Our studies show that quality as well as quantity are important in a baby's diet."

Yogman's studies, which were basic and far from the stage at which he can tell what a baby's diet should be, showed that an infant's sleeping behavior can be changed depending on the composition of proteins it eats.

House approves dairy plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, ignoring a threatened veto, Wednesday approved a Senate-passed compromise plan to rein in the run-away cost of dairy price supports by paying farmers not to produce milk.

Congressmen rejected, 250-178, an administration-backed plan offered by Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., to simply cut the support price by up to $1.50.

They then voted 325-91 to approve the compromise, which would pay farmers who cut milk production, reduce dairy support prices by 50 cents and collect money to promote dairy products.

There are minor differences between the House and Senate versions, so a joint conference will be needed before the bill can receive final approval and be sent to President Reagan.

Governor reconsiders backing reactor

By ELLEN MARKS
United Press International

BOISE — Gov. John Evans says he is reconsidering his support for construction of a tritium-producing nuclear reactor at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory after an earthquake caused minor damage at the facility.

"You have to place a question mark on the advisability of locating the New Production Reactor as close to the fault line as that," the Democratic governor said this week.

Energy Secretary Don Hodel has recommended the eastern Idaho site as thelocation for the $4.5 billion reactor, which will manufacture materials for nuclear weapons.

Evans said Congress, which will decide where the reactor should be located, now must determine whether to follow Hodel's recommendation even though eastern Idaho is prone to major earthquakes.

The quake measured 6.9 on the Richter scale and was centered between Challis and Mackay, about 50 miles from the nuclear reservation.

Two INEL test reactors were shut down when the quake hit, and they were reported safe. But cracks were found in two support buildings, officials said.

"It (the quake) certainly adds another factor you have to take into consideration," the governor said.

Evans initially welcomed Hodel's recommendation that the reactor be built in Idaho, because the project was expected to generate as many as 5,000 construction or operation jobs.

Inmates sought for beatings

BOISE (UPI) — About 25 Idaho State Penitentiary inmates were locked in their cells Wednesday while guards searched for evidence linking three suspects to a pair of beatings, prison officials said.

The lockdown was expected to end late Wednesday after guards finished investigating the incident, said deputy warden Arvon Arave.

All inmates in the locked-down close custody tier were being interviewed, he said.

Arave said the beatings occurred Tuesday as part of a "strong-arm" attempt in which some prisoners threatened the others in order to obtain food, cigarettes or other items, Arave said.

"We've got two or three inmates on that tier that have been using undue persuasion and bully tactics to shove other inmates around," he said Wednesday. "We had one inmate who barricaded himself in his cell this morning for fear the lockdown would end prior to the culprits being caught."

Audit finds other problems

Balance drops in school district account

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The general-fund balance of the Twin Falls School District has fallen about $150,000 below the level hoped for by board members.

At Tuesday night's board meeting, accountant Tom Condie said the annual school audit showed a fund balance of $193,800. That's down from $967,135 two years ago.

While Condie said the board did not need to be overly concerned about the diminishing fund, it could be a problem if the district faces unexpected expenses this year.

The drop can be traced to lower interest rates and a new state practice of sending more frequent, but smaller, payments to school districts, he said. The district no longer receives large payments that it can invest for six months before spending the money, Condie said.

Most of the surplus generated in 1981 has been used to pay increasing utility and maintenance costs, he said.

The audit — prepared by Evans, Condie and Holmstead, a Twin Falls accounting firm — found three other problems with district services.

Condie said that in a spot check of stored frozen food for the lunch program, an auditor could not locate several items listed as delivered but not used yet.

In addition, the food-service department still has spoilage and unclean conditions in its frozen-food storage area, which a state inspector identified two years ago, Condie said. It also has no rotation system for the food, he said.

Food-service supervisor Mary Button said the school is using a freezer at Twin Falls Feed and Ice. She said the lunch program now has enough money saved from state reimbursements to build a school freezer, but no plans have been made yet to spend the money.

The board later went into a closed session to discuss the food-service problems.

Condie also told the board the school's computer is antiquated.

"The computer is probably not a service anymore. It takes more time to use than it is worth," he said.

His third recommendation was to establish a fixed-asset inventory. Controls on the current account are too loose to make an audit possible, he said.

In other business Tuesday night:

• Superintendent Gary Piller said three local persons are being considered to fill the opening for an O'Leary Junior High School principal. A hiring committee will interview the candidates next Thursday and release their names, he said.

On the hiring committee are O'Leary Principal Carl Snow, who is vacating the position to become assistant superintendent, board member Gary Fay, O'Leary English teacher Doris Williams, Harrison Elementary School Principal Bill Stover and Larry Watson, the district's administrator for ancillary services.

• The board also voted to retain Heath Engineering of Salt Lake City to engineer a geothermal well and other energy conservation changes for the district.

But board Chairman Robert Knighton said the company will not be hired officially until it is "a little more lucid on paper." Heath Engineering submitted the low bid for the services, $13,400.

The project -- to heat Twin Falls High School and Sawtooth Elementary School with water from a geothermal well -- will be funded by a federal matching grant.

The squad room at the new ISP headquarters is spacious and bright — but there's still some moving left to be done

ISP office now has new home

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls regional headquarters of the Idaho State Police has moved across town.

The ISP will share a new building, at 626 Eastland Drive S., with the highway division of the state Department of Transportation.

The ISP office has left a rented building off Blue Lakes Boulevard North that it had occupied for three years.

The hardest part of this week's move was the packing, says Lt. Bob Wright, the supervisor of the ISP's district office.

The process began last Thursday. Most of the furniture, papers, file cabinets and other belongings were transferred Tuesday by professional movers.

The ISP's radio communication console was one of the first items to be moved, Wright says. During the activity, there was a 10- to 15-minute "hole" in the verbal link to the officers in the field, he says.

For the most part, the district's 20-plus officers already are calling the new building home. Wright says some "straightening up" remains to be done at the older building.

Also moving into the building this week is the Twin Falls-based maintenance crew of the highway division.

Along with the crew, a highway division engineer and the office of the state Bureau of Communications will join the ISP in the building, says LaMar Duffin, a highway division engineer with the regional office in Shoshone. The communications bureau is responsible for the maintenance of state equipment for the highway division, the ISP and other agencies, he says.

Needed space was the reason for building the structure, the construction of which began in May.

Wright says the ISP was invited to move into the building by the highway division.

Besides added space, the ISP and the Highway Division will gain a closer working relationship from the move, Wright says. Both are concerned with road conditions and other hazards on the highways.

Service groups plan ceremonies for Veterans Day

Government offices, banks closed Friday

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ceremonies and flag-raisings will mark the day that has been set aside to honor those American servicemen who served from the days of San Juan Hill to Normandy Beach to Saigon to the Middle East.

The American Legion's annual Veterans Day observance in Twin Falls will be held this Friday at the Vietnam Memorial in City Park, beginning at 10:45 a.m.

Members of the Disabled American Veterans, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Pearl Harbor Survivors, the Boy Scouts, the Elks and their auxiliaries will join American Legion Post No. 7 in the event.

The program will be opened by Legion Commander R.W. Ryall with a flag-raising. The invocation will be provided by officers of the Twin Falls Elks organization. Mayor Chris Talkington, a former Legion post commander, will give the address. Then, a six-man squad will fire a salute.

Following the program, all World War I veterans are invited to lunch at the Elks Club as guests of the post.

Also at the ceremony, the post will accept gifts for residents of veterans' nursing homes in Boise. A gift "convoy" will drive to the facilities on Saturday, according to post officials.

Preserved and fresh foods, paperback books, adult games, playing cards, toilet articles, new or like-new clothing and stationery are welcome, as well as cash donations, officials say.

Veterans Day will be recognized in Buhl with a flag dedication at the Lincoln Courts senior-citizen center, at 1310 Main St. The Stradley chapter of the Disabled American Veterans will present the center with a new flag at the ceremony, which will begin at 10:45 a.m.

Refreshments will be served after the presentation. The public is invited to attend.

The American Legion post and auxiliary in Ketchum will hold a dinner for its members on Veterans Day, says post secretary Bert Cross. The group also will place flags at businesses along Main Street.

Throughout the Magic Valley, federal, state, county and city offices, and banks, will be closed for the holiday.

Most school districts will remain open, however. The Castleford School District will dismiss at 1:15 p.m.

No classes will be held Friday in the Filer and Jerome districts, and at Bellevue Elementary and Carey School because of parent-teacher conferences.

Health agency begins charging for all clinics

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An income-based fee schedule will be implemented for all clinic-related services at the South Central District Health Department.

In the past, the district had been charging fees only for its family-planning clinic, which includes gynecological services, says Cheryl Juntunen, the district's physical health director.

No fees, however, were charged for the district's other clinics, at which a doctor or nurse practitioner provide examinations and treatments. Clinics are part of the department's crippled children, tuberculosis, "well-baby" and venereal-disease programs.

The staff believed that for the sake of consistency, a fee scale for all its clinics should be initiated, Juntunen says. Also, because of federal Medicaid rules, the health district could not be reimbursed for its services because not everyone was being charged.

Last month, the district's board of directors approved the staff's decision to implement the fees.

A sliding-fee scale — based on income and family size — will be used to assess the fees, which will be based on Medicaid rates, she says. However, even with the new system, no one will be denied services if they cannot pay, Juntunen says.

The district does not expect to gain a lot of revenue from the fees because most of the families that use its

Simmons uses Amalgamated Sugar cash to buy stock

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Amalgamated Sugar Co. has bought $14.7 million worth of stock in GAF Corp., a New York-based building materials and chemical manufacturer, according to a federal Security and Exchange Commission report.

The transaction was carried out by Harold Simmons, the Dallas-based financier who gained control of Amalgamated Sugar in November 1982, after a bitterly fought takeover battle.

A disclosure report, filed Oct. 22 with the SEC, indicates that Amalgamated Sugar, along with some 14 other corporations and trusts controlled by Simmons, now own 7.5 percent of GAF's stock.

The report states that the Amalgamated funds used to purchase the GAF stock came from "cash on hand."

GAF has suffered through a number of lean years as the recession slowed the construction industry and depressed corporate earning levels, according to Valu-Line, an investors' guidebook.

The plan fell through when interested buyers were reluctant to assume corporate liabilities for absestos products manufactured by GAF. According to Valu-Line, several lawsuits have been filed against the firm involving asbestos-related problems.

Roscoe Patton, an investment counselor for Edward Jones and Co. in Twin Falls, says the depressed GAF stock could rebound sharply if there is a major surge in the construction industry.

The GAF stock acquistions add a new twist to the tangled financial dealings of Simmons -- dealings that the U.S. Department of Labor has charged have sometimes violated federal pension laws. These laws forbid a trustee to invest pension funds to further his own financial interests.

In a May 9 suit, filed in a Peoria, Ill., federal court, the Labor Department claimed that Simmons illegally invested corporate pension funds under his control to help acquire Amalgamated Sugar, as well as major interests in other corporations.

In its suit, the Labor Department specifically singled out the use of $15.6 million from a trust fund for Illinois steelworkers employed by Keystone Consolidated Inc., a Simmons company.

A Jan. 9 trial date has been set for the Labor Department's suit.

In the meantime, Security Pacific, a Los Angeles-based investment counseling firm, has been appointed by the court to scrutinize Simmons's use of Keystone trust funds to take over Amalgamated Sugar.

In an Aug. 22 letter to Simmons, Lloyd McAdams, the president of Security Pacific, concluded that the investments made with Keystone pension funds in Amalgamated were sound and carried only limited risk.

In a Sept. 22 letter to Dean Rhoades, an Illinois lawyer who is representing the Keystone trust, McAdams also offered a critique of Amalgamated's financial situation.

"Before Mr. Simmons became involved, Amalgamated was much more conservatively structured financially," McAdams wrote, "and was well-capable of withstanding any sharp drop in the price of sugar or any other unexpected calamity.

"Since most of the company's working capital was used to repurchase the shareholders' shares, Amalgamated is now a considerably more highly leveraged company than in the past."

Parties in Twin Falls sewer-treatment suit point fingers at each other

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

BOISE — A six-person jury heard opening arguments Wednesday in a case that pits the city of Twin Falls against the designers and manufacturers of its ill-fated sewage-treatment plant.

The city is suing the companies for approximately $10 million over the failure of the plant to meet federal environmental standards in the wake of a $7 million modification project completed in the spring of 1976.

That modification was supposed to bring emissions from the city's plant up to the new, stringent standards then imposed by the federal Clean Water Act.

Instead, it resulted in a series of headaches, including the need to truck tens of thousands of gallons of liquid sludge per day out of the Snake River Canyon during the late 1970s and early 1980s, at an approximate cost of $1.5 million.

But the federal government paid 90 percent of the cost of that project, and it has demanded repayment.

The present suit is to determine who will pay the lion's share of that bill.

The 1976 modifications included construction of a biological "secondary" treatment system, a major component of which was provided by Neptune-Microfloc, of Corvallis, Ore., a defendant in the suit.

Envirotech Systems Inc., a second defendant, provided another part of the project -- a heat treatment and dewatering system for sludge, which is a byproduct of the treatment process.

The suit also names Hamilton and Voeller Inc., a Pocatello engineering firm responsible for the overall design of the project.

John Hohnhorst, an attorney with the Twin Falls firm of Hepworth, Nungester and Felton, a firm hired in 1979 to represent the city, gave the opening statement.

Hohnhorst told the jury the case, which is being heard in U.S. district court in Boise, involves complicated technologies, but concerns simple actions and motives.

"Representations and promises" by the manufacturers are at issue, he said.

The city's case against Envirotech will show the company concealed information indicating its systems were incapable of performing as claimed, he said.

Envirotech "knowingly and consciously" failed to disclose the results of technical analyses, he said, because it did not want to jeopardize equipment sales.

Hohnhorst said the city would draw on documents and testimony from former

Watch for ice near the falls!

Early in the morning, spray from the falls has been blowing onto the road below the turnoff to Dierkes Lake and causing ice, according to a department spokesman.

Gold mining seminar planned

TWIN FALLS — So, you want to be a gold miner.

Gold mining will be the topic of a seminar, sponsored by the Gold Prospectors Association of America, tonight from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at the Twin Falls Holiday Inn.

Prospective prospectors can learn where to look for the magic metal, what to look for and what to worry about in terms of laws and federal Bureau of Land Management regulations.

A panning demonstration and instruction in several other methods of retrieving gold flakes and dust, including the use of metal detectors, will be included in the seminar.

George Massie, the president of the prospectors association, will be the speaker. An engineer and professional miner, he tours the country lecturing on the subject.

The association, headquartered in Bonsall, Calif., is a "recreational mining club," according to its secretary, Bonnie McIver.

It consists of roughly 60,000 members, worldwide. For most in the club, mining is a hobby, not a living — although some do make it a living with hard work, she says.

GOODING — The Fifth District Court trial of Dan Lee Featherston, 37, of Jerome, scheduled to begin Tuesday in Gooding, has been postponed until Feb. 21.

Featherston faces charges in connection with an incident at the home of a Wendell woman last Dec. 8. He will go to trial on charges of battery with intent to commit a serious felony and attempted robbery. Two counts of aggravated assault were dropped, following a preliminary hearing last spring.

According to court officials, Judge Ron Bruce of Cassia County will conduct the trial.

Sheriff has suspect in assault

HANSEN — The Twin Falls County sheriff's office has a suspect, but has made no arrest, in connection with an assault on a Burley woman early Monday morning outside the Red Dog Saloon at Hansen.

Sheriff Jim Munn would not release the name of the woman. However, he said she was injured in an attempted strangulation and later treated and released at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

According to Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn, two men and a woman suffered minor wounds from a man who pulled a knife at the bar, which is located across Rock Creek Canyon from Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Munn would not identify the persons because no one involved wanted to make statements or press charges, he said.

"The full details could not be obtained," Munn said. By the time deputies arrived, "everything had cooled down," he said.

RUPERT — The alleged misuse of inmate funds by staff members at the Minidoka County Jail is being investigated by an unidentified outside agency, Sheriff Ray Jarvis says.

Jarvis would release few details Wednesday about the investigation, which he says is "halfway over." He would not identify the agency that is looking into the allegations, but he says the agency's report should be ready by the first of December.

In cases in which a member of a law-enforcement department is involved in a potential criminal action, another law-enforcement agency usually handles the investigation.

Minidoka County Prosecutor John Bradley was not available for comment Wednesday.

Jarvis says the case is similar to a Twin Falls County incident in August, in which a jailer was charged with stealing from an account containing inmates' money.

YFCA gives parents night off

TWIN FALLS — Another session of "Parents' Night Out" will be held at the Magic Valley YFCA this Friday and Saturday.

For $5 per child, parents can enjoy a night off, while their children participate in various supervised activities at the YFCA, at 1751 Elizabeth Blvd. in Twin Falls.

The program, open to the public, is for children between the ages of 5 to 12.

At the Y, the children will swim, watch a movie and cartoons, play free video games and participate in other group games. A snack and a light breakfast will be provided.

Parents can drop their children off at 7:30 p.m. Friday and pick them up by 9 a.m. Saturday. Children should bring a towel, sleeping bag, swimsuit and overnight articles.

For more information or to register, call the YFCA at 733-4384.

Fire is confined to chimney

KIMBERLY — No damage was caused by a chimney fire Tuesday night at a residence east of Kimberly.

At 10:12 p.m., the Kimberly Fire Department responded to a call at the Dewey Pubbs home, two miles east and three-fourths of a mile north of Kimberly, according to fire Chief Dale Vawser. The fire was confined to the chimney of the fireplace, he said. The firefighters finished their work by 11 p.m.

A dirty chimney was the probable cause of the blaze, Vawser said. There was no damage to the house itself.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — An incorrect phone number for reservations to a tax-investing seminar appeared in Sunday's Times-News. Individuals wishing to register for the seminar, "Dialogue for Tax Investments '83," to be held this Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls, can call 734-4464. The seminar is being sponsored by E.G. Smith and Associates Inc., a Twin Falls financial planning firm.

Miller appeals prison sentence

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The 69-year-old Filer man who was sentenced last week to spend 15 years in prison for shooting a sheriff's deputy in the back will appeal that decision to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Twin Falls attorney Greg Goss has notified the Fifth District Court in Twin Falls of his intention to appeal the sentence of Floyd V. Miller to the higher court.

Wednesday, Judge Theron Ward denied Goss's request to free Miller on his own recognizance, pending the outcome of the appeal. As a result, Miller was placed in the Twin Falls County Jail and later transferred to the state prison.

Miller has admitted wounding Twin Falls County sheriff's Deputy Robert Gauthier of Buhl during the March incident. Gauthier had come to Miller's home in response to a domestic quarrel.

At the sentencing hearing last Friday, experts for the defense testified that Miller had a long-time drinking problem, for which he was seeking help. The prosecution claimed the incident was the work of a "mean drunk."

Ward sided with the prosecution and levied the prison sentence.

In a statement filed with the court this week, Goss cited Miller's lack of a criminal record. In addition, Miller has abstained from alcohol since the incident and poses no threat to the community, according to expert testimony, the notice states.

In support of the request to release Miller on his own recognizance, Mary Hoag, a counselor for the Magic Valley Alcoholic Recovery Center, stated that Miller was committed to the treatment program.

Goss also argued that Miller could be released under a state law that allows personal recognizance in cases with a less than a five-year "fixed" prison sentence. Goss said the law was applicable in Miller's case since Ward had not fixed the sentence at 15 years, so that Miller may be eligible for parole before then.

Goss says he will ask the state Supreme Court to approve Miller's release, using the same argument.

TWIN FALLS — A $1 million lawsuit against two Twin Falls doctors will be heard in Fifth District Court in Twin Falls.

Filed Oct. 7 in Idaho Falls, the suit — against Magic Valley Family Physicians and Drs. Scott Rudeen and Harry Brumbach Jr. — was transferred on Nov. 8 from Bonneville County to Fifth District Court.

The suit alleges that Rudeen and Brumbach were negligent and responsible for the death of Patricia Louise Volk in July 1981 in Twin Falls.

The woman's two daughters, Laura Leigh and Brenda Volk, have been named as the plaintiffs in the suit, which was filed by their father, James Volk.

According to the suit, Mrs. Volk underwent gall-bladder surgery on July 10, 1981. Brumbach was the surgeon, with Rundeen assisting. Due to the negligence of the two doctors, who allegedly failed to properly diagnose and treat Mrs. Volk, the woman's condition deteriorated and she died the next day, the suit states.

An award of $500,000 to each daughter is being sought, along with lawyers' fees. The plaintiffs have demanded a jury trial.

In an answer by the doctors' attorneys, the claims have been denied.

No trial date has been set on the case.

In accordance with state law, the plaintiffs report that they took their claims to a state pre-litigation panel before filing in court. A review by this panel, which is composed of doctors and hospital administrators, and set up by the State Board of Medicine, is required in any malpractice case involving physicians or hospitals.

The group reviews the merits of a case, although the results are not binding and usually are not made public.

Fees

services are low-income, Juntunen says. But any amount will help, she says.

The South Central District Health Department does receive federal and state grants to provide its programs. Yet, not all the costs are covered, such as education and follow-up services, she says.

The fee setup will not be used in the tuberculosis program until next year because the clients are involved in a one-year program that doesn't end until then, she says. The rest of the programs already have started or will begin to charge for their services soon.

Juntunen says she does not think the fee structure will scare people from coming to the clinics. People tend to comply more with treatments if they have to pay for them, she says.

Envirotech employees to prove this point.

The case against Neptune-Microfloc concerns company advertising, which misled the design engineer on the project, he said.

Hohnhorst also said the company made claims about the efficiency of its equipment that turned out to be untrue.

In their opening statements Wednesday, the defendants did not dispute that the plant failed to work, but they said it was not their fault.

Wilbur Nelson, an attorney representing the engineering firm of Hamilton and Voeller, said Jack Hammond, the primary engineer on the project, was "caught in the middle."

Evidence will show Hammond's judgment was not faulty, he said. His decisions represent "reasonable choices on the basis of what was available in 1972."

Nelson said that overloading of the plant, primarily with potato wastes, kept it in a "continual state of imbalance."

Randall Morrison, a San Francisco attorney who is representing Envirotech, said his company was not responsible because of a "major design error."

He said Hammond overestimated the efficiency of the secondary treatment system in the plant, resulting in sludge of unsuitable quality reaching the heat treatment system.

"We only get what they give us," he said. "We can't dewater junk."

Morrison said that evidence also will show the city was negligent by not closely monitoring the wastes delivered to the plant by Idaho Frozen Foods, which was a major contributor of waste to the plant.

In addition, he said, the city was guilty of "a fundamental failure to operate the plant in an effective manner." This included a failure to hire competent operators and to do routine maintenance.

Furthermore, when the city decided to modify the plant, instead of spending a relatively small amount on chemical treatment, it decided to tear out the heat treatment and start again, he said.

Envirotech also is being represented by attorneys from Los Angeles and Boise.

The attorney for Neptune-Microfloc, Warren Jones from Boise, had not finished his opening statement when the proceedings ended for the day. But he, too, pointed the finger at Idaho Frozen Foods.

On occasion, the company's actual load of potato wastes was double what the city plant was designed to accommodate, he said.

The secondary treatment tower that his company provided also could not accommodate the rich "liquor" recycled through it from Envirotech's malfunctioning heat treatment and dewatering system, he said.

Idaho Frozen Foods is not a party to the lawsuit. City attorneys have argued that the question of that company's responsibility is immaterial to the present suit.

The trial is being held in front of Judge Ray McNichols. It is expected to last six weeks.

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — A long-time Jerome veterinarian and civic worker was heralded Wednesday as Jerome's 1983 citizen of the year.

Dr. Lawrence V. Ruebel, accompanied by his wife Jeanette, was the guest of honor at a Jerome Chamber of Commerce luncheon Wednesday, where a number of his friends and associates "roasted" him in brief tributes.

In addition to revealing a few previously unknown facts about his fishing, hunting and golfing talents, the five speakers paid tribute to the civic leader for his countless contributions to the people and community of Jerome.

Frank Titus, saying he had known the honoree for 40 or more years, recalled that Ruebel had dedicated his fullest effort to the South Idaho Regional Airport Authority.

"He thrilled to its victories and suffered its defeats without asking recognition. He has remained unselfish with his time and energy in this and many other public endeavors," Titus said.

John Stelle, another close friend and hunting and fishing companion, recognized Ruebel's 30 years of being Jerome's most-in-demand master of ceremonies.

"He was also an outstanding Cub Scout, always able to come up with entertaining training programs equal to the level of the boys involved," Stelle said.

Mayor Ralph Peters, master of ceremonies for the event, called on the community to observe all of Wednesday as "Doc Ruebel Day" in Jerome.

Clair Ricketts repeated a few "fish stories" involving the guest of honor's excursions to nearby streams and lakes.

Calling Ruebel the "family physician," Ricketts said he never failed to answer a "house call" request to attend a canine member of the family, or for a dairy cow or a favorite horse that might need medical attention.

"The whole of Jerome County," said Charles Marshall, "owes him a debt of gratitude for his fine entertainment and for his many contributions to community endeavors."

A friend of Ruebel's since 1941, Jack Nelson said he served with Ruebel on various boards.

"He has affected the lives of two generations in my family. His talent and dedication on the school board earned him the purple heart many times. We might have disagreed at times, but we could still remain friends," Nelson said.

Phil Ruebel said he grew up believing everything his father told him and defending his father's stands for emphasis on academics rather than extra curricular events. This was necessary when as a high school student his father headed the school board, he explained.

"I will have to admit my faith may have been a little shaken when I went to school one day and found my father hanging in effigy," he said.

Young Ruebel described his father as a "multi-talented person who has helped strengthen the foundation of the community."

The various speakers also recognized the guest of honor for his work on the St. Benedict's Hospital foundation, in the Boy Scout organization, the Presbyterian Church, as a vocalist and professional person.

Advisory poll supports taxes

Local option taxes preferred

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — An advisory ballot has sent a clear message to Ketchum and Sun Valley officials to lobby the Legislature for other types of local-option taxes.

In addition to approving an extension of the current 5 percent tax on short-term rental housing and liquor sold by the drink, voters on Tuesday expressed their preferences for other forms of local taxes that could be used to provide revenue to the two cities.

"There seems to be support for looking at a broader-base tax," Ketchum Mayor Jerry Seiffert said Wednesday.

"Perhaps we could have a 1 percent sales tax to present to voters on the same basis as the 5 percent" option tax, he said.

Many Sun Valley residents were concerned the city would curtail its lobbying efforts for other forms of option taxes if the voters approved a renewal of the 5 percent "bed-and-drink" tax, Mayor Ruth Lieder said Wednesday, following tabulation of a similar advisory ballot in that community.

"We are doubly committed to lobbying the Legislature for avenues of relief." Sun Valley and Ketchum "will go arm in arm to the Legislature" for more alternatives on option taxes, she said.

Sun Valley voters indicated by a 101-95 margin that they favor reducing the amount of their option tax through other, offsetting forms of taxation, Lieder said.

In Ketchum, voters approved a similarly worded advisory issue by a vote of 312-228, city clerk Betty Coles said Wednesday.

Voters could choose from among the following alternatives that were on the ballot:

• The least popular was increasing property taxes. In Ketchum, 70 percent of the voters responding to the issue opposed raising the tax to 1 percent of market value. In Sun Valley, 74 percent of those responding to the question opposed it.

• A suggestion to charge an additional 1 percent in sales taxes was the most popular alternative. That suggestion was supported by 60 percent of the Ketchum voters. In Sun Valley, 62 percent of voters supported an additional sales tax.

• Sun Valley residents also said they would favor a 1 percent ski-lift ticket tax. This alternative received a 55 percent approval rating. Ketchum residents were nearly evenly divided on a lift tax, narrowly disapproving of the suggestion by 49 percent to 51 percent.

• A 1 percent tax on real-estate transfers was more popular in Ketchum, where it earned the support of 55 percent of voters, than in Sun Valley, where only 46 percent of voters supported this suggestion.

However, none of the advisory issues achieved the widespread support that renewal of the present option tax received.

A heavy turnout of voters gave the tax a wide margin of support despite an advertising campaign conducted by some of the area's resort and restaurant owners to defeat it.

Ketchum residents, where the tax now has been extended for two years, approved the renewal by a 79 percent to 21 percent margin. In Sun Valley, 82 percent of voters approved the renewal there for another five years.

Voter registration in the week prior to Tuesday's election far surpassed that of any previous election, according to officials of both cities.

More uses sought for area fairground

By DIANA HOOLEY
Times-News correspondent

GLENNS FERRY — Although no specific proposals were approved, the Glenns Ferry City Council agreed the county fairgrounds should be utilized more.

"It's a shame we have a tax entity that's only used about two weeks every year," said Mayor Dayle Messerly at the recent council meeting.

Messerly said the Lions Club has considered putting Little League diamonds on the grounds and council visitor Bob Janousek suggested the grounds be used for midget racing or chariot racing, with half of the gate receipts going to the fair board.

"Anything you bring into town like that is bound to generate money and more business for the town," said Messerly. "Taxpayers of Elmore County would get a lot more use from the fairgrounds if we could utilize the facilities year round."

The council agreed that any multiple use of the fairgrounds must be cleared through either the fair board or the county commissioners.

In other business:

• Messerly read a letter concerning the application of the city for a $350,000 community block grant. According to the letter, the governor will make the final selection for the cities receiving the grant Dec. 9.

The mayor commended J-U-B Engineers for "a nice job" drawing up the city's re-application for the block grant, saying the city's "application has very high consideration in the state."

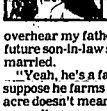
The mayor did note, however, that due to the recent earthquake and the destruction it caused, the city must be willing to step aside for those in greater need. He said Glenns Ferry would re-apply next year if the application is rejected this year.

• Highway maintenance agreements with the state were discussed, with John Root, a state highway maintenance employee who lives in Glenns Ferry, suggesting that the council discuss any misunderstandings it has with a District 3 engineer.

Messerly asked Root specifically about the Glenns Ferry business loop, which is a state-maintained highway, and questioned why the state did not snowplow it.

Root said it would be difficult to operate and maneuver the large diesel tractor on the business loop and also that merchants were opposed to large drifts snowplowed to the curves.

How to discuss the farming profession



Diana Hooley
Country neighbors

If you talk to a truck driver, he'll tell you about "hitting the pedal to the metal and chasing the bear out the back door," or some rigamarole such as that.

And if you talk to a restaurateur, he'd probably tell you about his restaurant's marvelous salad dressing, stupendous pies and succulent spare ribs. Restaurant owners are overwhelmingly proud of what they do.

But if you talk to a farmer, he won't tell you what he does — just how much he does. That's because a farmer's wealth and importance are directly related to how many acres he farms.

Sure it's important to do a good job, but not nearly as important as how much land you do a good job on.

I acutely realized this when I happened to overhear my father talking on the phone about his future son-in-law shortly before Dale and I were married.

"Yeah, he's a farmer. His spread's out West. I suppose he farms a thousand or two. You know, an acre doesn't mean much when you're out on the range."

I told my father later that Dale farmed a mere two hundred acres. Not every farm in the West is big.

I excused my father's tall tales by telling myself he just had the "Dallas" syndrome. A lot of people view the West through the eyes of the TV. It's either cattle or oil millionaires and land barons to them.

That was my dad's problem. Not too long ago I talked on the phone to a livestock reporter who was conducting a survey — and I don't know what her problem was. The conversation went something like this:

"Now Mrs. Hooley, I assure you we are interviewing all the farmers in your area and you will get a copy of our report when it is completed. How many head of cattle do you have?"

"Sixteen."

"Sixty head. Hmm. Rather small. And how many acres are they pasturing on?"

"No. I didn't say we had 60 head. I said 16 head. We're pasturing them on the south three."

"Three what?"

Lottery killed by legal ruling

GLENNS FERRY — A lottery or raffle to help raise funds for the Glenns Ferry recreation program would be illegal, city attorney J. Friedly told the council.

The advice has squelched any further action in that direction, noted Mayor Dayle Messerly.

Messerly said that Friedly examined the ruling given by Judge W.E. Smith in McCall concerning the "Calcutta."

Smith ruled the "Calcutta" (a golf game where money is wagered) was not a game of chance and noted that a percentage of the winnings went to charitable purposes, said Messerly.

The mayor said he thought lotteries and gambling, though technically illegal by Idaho State Constitution, have been practiced in the state in one form or the other many times before.

"It's kind of discouraging when the state won't take a firm stand on the issue," said Messerly. But he added that the council, "as an elected body of officials would stay away from lotteries and raffles for fund-raising purposes."

Meeting on Wood River debris raises emotions

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

HAILEY — It was supposed to be a straightforward, informational meeting to explain the logistics of an Army Corps of Engineers project to clear debris from the Big Wood River.

But emotions run high in Blaine County when talk turns to the Big Wood River. And these emotions helped turn Tuesday night's meeting into a debate between environmentalists and long-time ranchers over the pros and cons of the project.

The meeting began calmly enough.

Ron Barrett, a Corps of Engineers official from Walla Walla, Wash., described the details of the $182,000 project, which will remove selected logs, branches and stumps from a 27-mile stretch of the river — extending from the Glendale Bridge near Bellevue to the mouth of Eagle Creek, north of Ketchum.

No gravel will be removed from the water.

Barrett asked that all riverside property owners grant workers permission to enter the river through their lands.

Chuck Ketterman, a county flood-control commissioner, said that to date, the majority of the landowners south of Hailey and about half of those between Hailey and Ketchum have granted such rights.

The project, scheduled to start next week, will use rubber-tired log skidders and chain saws to remove the debris and pile it up along the banks, above the high-water mark.

Barrett said that one, and possibly two crews, will work in the river until heavy snows and freezing temperatures make it impossible to continue. Any work left to be done hopefully will be finished in early spring, before the heavy run-off period, he said.

A report, prepared by Barrett, said the debris causes problems by helping build up gravel bars that reduce the carrying capacity of the river channel. Debris jams also can knock down bridges and contribute to flooding by deflecting water over the river's banks that otherwise might be carried safely downstream, the report states.

Barrett stressed that "we are going to be sensitive to the environ-

Grazing board meets today

TWIN FALLS — The Sawtooth National Forest Grazing Advisory Board will meet today at 1:30 p.m. to discuss the development of grazing-allotment management plans.

At the meeting, board members also will provide suggestions on how to use range-betterment funds for fiscal year 1984.

The meeting, open to the public, will be held at the Sawtooth National Forest office, 1525 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

BLM panel meets in Shoshone

SHOSHONE — The Bureau of Land Management's multiple-use advisory council will meet today to discuss the the Monument resource-management plan now under development.

The meeting, which will begin at 9 a.m., will be held at the District BLM office in Shoshone.

BLM district manager Charles Haszler says members of the public are welcome to participate at the meeting. An hour of testimony time, between 2 and 3 p.m., has been reserved for public comment. Persons wishing to speak should notify Haszler and ask that their names be placed on the agenda.

For more information, call Jon Idso at 886-2206.

Watch for ice near the falls!

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls recreation department is warning drivers to watch for ice on the road to Shoshone Falls, while flows in the Snake River are high and temperatures low.

Early in the morning, spray from the falls has been blowing onto the road below the turnoff to Dierkes Lake and causing ice, according to a department spokesman.

Gold mining seminar planned

TWIN FALLS — So, you want to be a gold miner.

Gold mining will be the topic of a seminar, sponsored by the Gold Prospectors Association of America, tonight from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at the Twin Falls Holiday Inn.

Prospective prospectors can learn where to look for the magic metal, what to look for and what to worry about in terms of laws and federal Bureau of Land Management regulations.

A panning demonstration and instruction in several other methods of retrieving gold flakes and dust, including the use of metal detectors, will be included in the seminar.

George Massie, the president of the prospectors association, will be the speaker. An engineer and professional miner, he tours the country lecturing on the subject.

The association, headquartered in Bonsall, Calif., is a "recreational mining club," according to its secretary, Bonnie McIver.

It consists of roughly 60,000 members, worldwide. For most in the club, mining is a hobby, not a living — although some do make it a living with hard work, she says.

GOODING — The Fifth District Court trial of Dan Lee Featherston, 37, of Jerome, scheduled to begin Tuesday in Gooding, has been postponed until Feb. 21.

Featherston faces charges in connection with an incident at the home of a Wendell woman last Dec. 8. He will go to trial on charges of battery with intent to commit a serious felony and attempted robbery. Two counts of aggravated assault were dropped, following a preliminary hearing last spring.

According to court officials, Judge Ron Bruce of Cassia County will conduct the trial.

Featherston is free on a $25,000 property bond.

Sheriff has suspect in assault

HANSEN — The Twin Falls County sheriff's office has a suspect, but has made no arrest, in connection with an assault on a Burley woman early Monday morning outside the Red Dog Saloon at Hansen.

Sheriff Jim Munn would not release the name of the woman. However, he said she was injured in an attempted strangulation and later treated and released at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

According to Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn, two men and a woman suffered minor wounds from a man who pulled a knife at the bar, which is located across Rock Creek Canyon from Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Munn would not identify the persons because no one involved wanted to make statements or press charges, he said.

"The full details could not be obtained," Munn said. By the time deputies arrived, "everything had cooled down," he said.

RUPERT — The alleged misuse of inmate funds by staff members at the Minidoka County Jail is being investigated by an unidentified outside agency, Sheriff Ray Jarvis says.

Jarvis would release few details Wednesday about the investigation, which he says is "halfway over." He would not identify the agency that is looking into the allegations, but he says the agency's report should be ready by the first of December.

In cases in which a member of a law-enforcement department is involved in a potential criminal action, another law-enforcement agency usually handles the investigation.

Minidoka County Prosecutor John Bradley was not available for comment Wednesday.

Jarvis says the case is similar to a Twin Falls County incident in August, in which a jailer was charged with stealing from an account containing inmates' money.

YFCA gives parents night off

TWIN FALLS — Another session of "Parents' Night Out" will be held at the Magic Valley YFCA this Friday and Saturday.

For $5 per child, parents can enjoy a night off, while their children participate in various supervised activities at the YFCA, at 1751 Elizabeth Blvd. in Twin Falls.

The program, open to the public, is for children between the ages of 5 to 12.

At the Y, the children will swim, watch a movie and cartoons, play free video games and participate in other group games. A snack and a light breakfast will be provided.

Parents can drop their children off at 7:30 p.m. Friday and pick them up by 9 a.m. Saturday. Children should bring a towel, sleeping bag, swimsuit and overnight articles.

For more information or to register, call the YFCA at 733-4384.

At 10:12 p.m., the Kimberly Fire Department responded to a call at the Dewey Pubbs home, two miles east and three-fourths of a mile north of Kimberly, according to fire Chief Dale Vawser. The fire was confined to the chimney of the fireplace, he said. The firefighters finished their work by 11 p.m.

A dirty chimney was the probable cause of the blaze, Vawser said. There was no damage to the house itself.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — An incorrect phone number for reservations to a tax-investing seminar appeared in Sunday's Times-News. Individuals wishing to register for the seminar, "Dialogue for Tax Investments '83," to be held this Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls, can call 734-4464. The seminar is being sponsored by E.G. Smith and Associates Inc., a Twin Falls financial planning firm.

For shooting deputy

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The 69-year-old Filer man who was sentenced last week to spend 15 years in prison for shooting a sheriff's deputy in the back will appeal that decision to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Twin Falls attorney Greg Goss has notified the Fifth District Court in Twin Falls of his intention to appeal the sentence of Floyd V. Miller to the higher court.

Wednesday, Judge Theron Ward denied Goss's request to free Miller on his own recognizance, pending the outcome of the appeal. As a result, Miller was placed in the Twin Falls County Jail and later transferred to the state prison.

Miller has admitted wounding Twin Falls County sheriff's Deputy Robert Gauthler of Buhl during the March incident. Gauthler had come to Miller's home in response to a domestic quarrel.

At the sentencing hearing last Friday, experts for the defense testified that Miller had a long-time drinking problem, for which he was seeking help. The prosecution claimed the incident was the work of a "mean drunk."

Ward sided with the prosecution and levied the prison sentence.

In a statement filed with the court this week, Goss cited Miller's lack of a criminal record. In addition, Miller has abstained from alcohol since the incident and poses no threat to the community, according to expert testimony, the notice states.

In support of the request to release Miller on his own recognizance, Mary Hoag, a counselor for the Magic Valley Alcoholic Recovery Center, stated that Miller was committed to the treatment program.

Goss also argued that Miller could be released under a state law that allows personal recognizance in cases with a less than a five-year "fixed" prison sentence. Goss said the law was applicable in Miller's case since Ward had not fixed the sentence at 15 years, so that Miller may be eligible for parole before then.

Goss says he will ask the state Supreme Court to approve Miller's release, using the same argument.

TWIN FALLS — A $1 million lawsuit against two Twin Falls doctors will be heard in Fifth District Court in Twin Falls.

Filed Oct. 7 in Idaho Falls, the suit — against Magic Valley Family Physicians and Drs. Scott Rudeen and Harry Brumbach Jr. — was transferred on Nov. 8 from Bonneville County to Fifth District Court.

The suit alleges that Rudeen and Brumbach were negligent and responsible for the death of Patricia Louise Volk in July 1981 in Twin Falls.

The woman's two daughters, Laura Leigh and Brenda Volk, have been named as the plaintiffs in the suit, which was filed by their father, James Volk.

According to the suit, Mrs. Volk underwent gall-bladder surgery on July 10, 1981. Brumbach was the surgeon, with Rundeen assisting. Due to the negligence of the two doctors, who allegedly failed to properly diagnose and treat Mrs. Volk, the woman's condition deteriorated and she died the next day, the suit states.

An award of $500,000 to each daughter is being sought, along with lawyers' fees. The plaintiffs have demanded a jury trial.

In an answer by the doctors' attorneys, the claims have been denied.

No trial date has been set on the case.

In accordance with state law, the plaintiffs report that they took their claims to a state pre-litigation panel before filing in court. A review by this panel, which is composed of doctors and hospital administrators, and set up by the State Board of Medicine, is required in any malpractice case involving physicians or hospitals.

The group reviews the merits of a case, although the results are not binding and usually are not made public.

Fees

services are low-income, Juntunen says. But any amount will help, she says.

The South Central District Health Department does receive federal and state grants to provide its programs. Yet, not all the costs are covered, such as education and follow-up services, she says.

The fee setup will not be used in the tuberculosis program until next year because the clients are involved in a one-year program that doesn't end until then, she says. The rest of the programs already have started or will begin to charge for their services soon.

Juntunen says she does not think the fee structure will scare people from coming to the clinics. People tend to comply more with treatments if they have to pay for them, she says.

Trial

Envirotech employees to prove this point.

The case against Neptune-Microfloc concerns company advertising which misled the design engineer on the project, he said.

Hohnhorst also said the company made claims about the efficiency of its equipment that turned out to be untrue.

In their opening statements Wednesday, the defendants did not dispute that the plant failed to work, but they said it was not their fault.

Wilbur Nelson, an attorney representing the engineering firm of Hamilton and Voeller, said Jack Hammond, the primary engineer on the project, was "caught in the middle."

Evidence will show Hammond's judgment was not faulty, he said. His decisions represent "reasonable choices on the basis of what was available in 1973."

Nelson said that overloading of the plant, primarily with potato wastes, kept it in a "continual state of imbalance."

Randall Morrison, a San Francisco attorney who is representing Envirotech, said his company was not responsible because of a "major design error."

He said Hammond overestimated the efficiency of the secondary treatment system in the plant, resulting in sludge of unsuitable quality reaching the heat treatment system.

"We only get what they give us," he said. "We can't dewater junk."

Morrison said that evidence also will show the city was negligent by not closely monitoring the wastes delivered to the plant by Idaho Frozen Foods, which was a major contributor of waste to the plant.

In addition, he said, the city was guilty of "a fundamental failure to operate the plant in an effective manner." This included a failure to hire competent operators and to do routine maintenance.

Furthermore, when the city decided to modify the plant, instead of spending a relatively small amount on chemical treatment, it decided to tear out the heat treatment and start again, he said.

Envirotech also is being represented by attorneys from Los Angeles and Boise.

The attorney for Neptune-Microfloc, Warren Jones from Boise, had not finished his opening statement when the proceedings ended for the day. But he, too, pointed the finger at Idaho Frozen Foods.

On occasion, the company's actual load of potato wastes was double what the city plant was designed to accommodate, he said.

The secondary treatment tower that his company provided also could not accommodate the rich "liquor" recycled through it from Envirotech's malfunctioning heat treatment and dewatering system, he said.

Idaho Frozen Foods is not a party to the lawsuit. City attorneys have argued that the question of that company's responsibility is immaterial to the present suit.

The trial is being held in front of Judge Ray McNichols. It is expected to last six weeks.

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — A long-time Jerome veterinarian and civic worker was heralded Wednesday as Jerome's 1983 citizen of the year.

Dr. Lawrence V. Ruebel, accompanied by his wife Jeanette, was the guest of honor at a Jerome Chamber of Commerce luncheon Wednesday, where a number of his friends and associates "roasted" him in brief tributes.

In addition to revealing a few previously unknown facts about his fishing, hunting and golfing talents, the five speakers paid tribute to the civic leader for his countless contributions to the people and community of Jerome.

Frank Titus, saying he had known the honoree for 40 or more years, recalled that Ruebel had dedicated his fullest effort to the South Idaho Regional Airport Authority.

"He thrilled to its victories and suffered its defeats without asking recognition. He has remained unselfish with his time and energy in this and many other public endeavors," Titus said.

John Stelle, another close friend and hunting-and-fishing companion, recognized Ruebel's 30 years of being Jerome's most-in-demand master of ceremonies.

"He was also an outstanding Cub Scout, always able to come up with entertaining training programs equal to the level of the boys involved," Stelle said.

Mayor Ralph Peters, master of ceremonies for the event, called on the community to observe all of Wednesday as "Doc Ruebel Day" in Jerome.

Clair Ricketts repeated a few "fish stories" involving the guest of honor's excursions to nearby streams and lakes.

Calling Ruebel the "family physician," Ricketts said he never failed to answer a "house call" request to attend a canine member of the family, or for a dairy cow or a favorite horse that might need medical attention.

"The whole of Jerome County," said Charles Marshall, "owes him a debt of gratitude for his fine entertainment and for his many contributions to community endeavors."

A friend of Ruebel's since 1941, Jack Nelson said he served with Ruebel on various boards.

"He has affected the lives of two generations in my family. His talent and dedication on the school board earned him the purple heart many times. We might have disagreed at times, but we could still remain friends," Nelson said.

Phil Ruebel said he grew up believing everything his father told him and defending his father's stands for emphasis on academics rather than extra curricular events. This was necessary when as a high school student his father headed the school board, he explained.

"I will have to admit my faith may have been a little shaken when I went to school one day and found my father hanging in effigy," he said.

Young Ruebel described his father as a "multi-talented person who has helped strengthen the foundation of the community."

The various speakers also recognized the guest of honor for his work on the St. Benedict's Hospital foundation, in the Boy Scout organization, the Presbyterian Church, as a vocalist and professional person.

Advisory poll supports taxes

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — An advisory ballot has sent a clear message to Ketchum and Sun Valley officials to lobby the Legislature for other types of local-option taxes.

In addition to approving an extension of the current 5 percent tax on short-term rental housing and liquor sold by the drink, voters on Tuesday expressed their preferences for other forms of local taxes that could be used to provide revenue to the two cities.

"There seems to be support for looking at a broader-base tax," Ketchum Mayor Jerry Seiffert said Wednesday.

"Perhaps we could have a 1 percent sales tax to present to voters on the same basis as the 5 percent" option tax, he said.

Many Sun Valley residents were concerned the city would curtail its lobbying efforts for other forms of option taxes if the voters approved a renewal of the 5 percent "bed-and-drink" tax, Mayor Ruth Lieder said Wednesday, following tabulation of a similar advisory ballot in that community.

"We are doubly committed to lobbying the Legislature for avenues of relief," Sun Valley and Ketchum "will go arm in arm to the Legislature" for more alternatives on option taxes, she said.

Sun Valley voters indicated by a 101-95 margin that they favor reducing the amount of their option tax through other, offsetting forms of taxation, Lieder said.

In Ketchum, voters approved a similarly worded advisory issue by a vote of 312-228, city clerk Betty Coles said Wednesday.

Voters could choose from among the following alternatives that were on the ballot:

- The least popular was increasing property taxes. In Ketchum, 70 percent of the voters responding to the issue opposed raising the tax to 1 percent of market value. In Sun Valley, 74 percent of those responding to the question opposed it.
- A suggestion to charge an additional 1 percent in sales taxes was the most popular alternative. That suggestion was supported by 60 percent of the Ketchum voters. In Sun Valley, 62 percent of voters supported an additional sales tax.
- Sun Valley residents also said they would favor a 1 percent ski-lift ticket tax. This alternative received a 55 percent approval rating. Ketchum residents were nearly evenly divided on a lift tax, narrowly disapproving of the suggestion by 49 percent to 51 percent.
- A 1 percent tax on real-estate transfers was more popular in Ketchum, where it earned the support of 55 percent of voters, than in Sun Valley, where only 46 percent of voters supported this suggestion.

However, none of the advisory issues achieved the widespread support that renewal of the present option tax received.

A heavy turnout of voters gave the tax a wide margin of support despite an advertising campaign conducted by some of the area's resort and restaurant owners to defeat it.

Ketchum residents, where the tax now has been extended for two years, approved the renewal by a 79 percent to 21 percent margin. In Sun Valley, 82 percent of voters approved the renewal there for another five years.

Voter registration in the week prior to Tuesday's election far surpassed that of any previous election, according to officials of both cities.

More uses sought for area fairground

By DIANA HOOLEY
Times-News correspondent

GLENNS FERRY — Although no specific proposals were approved, the Glenns Ferry City Council agreed the county fairgrounds should be utilized more.

"It's a shame we have a tax entity that's only used about two weeks every year," said Mayor Dayle Messerly at the recent council meeting.

Messerly said the Lions Club has considered putting Little League diamonds on the grounds and council visitor Bob Janousek suggested the grounds be used for midget racing or chariot racing, with half of the gate receipts going to the fair board.

"Anything you bring into town like that is bound to generate money and more business for the town," said Messerly. "Taxpayers of Elmore County would get a lot more use from the fairgrounds if we could utilize the facilities year round."

The council agreed that any multiple use of the fairgrounds must be cleared through either the fair board or the county commissioners.

In other business:

- Messerly read a letter concerning the application of the city for a $350,000 community block grant. According to the letter, the governor will make the final selection for the cities receiving the grant Dec. 9.

The mayor commended J-U-B Engineers for "a nice job" drawing up the city's re-application for the block grant, saying the city's application has very high consideration in the state."

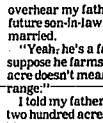
The mayor did note, however, that due to the recent earthquake and the destruction it caused, the city must be willing to step aside for those in greater need. He said Glenns Ferry would re-apply next year if the application is rejected this year.

- Highway maintenance agreements with the state were discussed, with John Root, a state highway maintenance employee who lives in Glenns Ferry, suggesting that the council discuss any misunderstandings it has with a District 3 engineer.

Messerly asked Root specifically about the Glenns Ferry business loop, which is a state-maintained highway, and questioned why the state did not snowplow it.

Root said it would be difficult to operate and maneuver the large diesel tractor on the business loop and also that merchants were opposed to large drifts snowplowed to the curves.

How to discuss the farming profession



Diana Hooley
Country neighbors

If you talk to a truck driver, he'll tell you about "hitting the pedal to the metal and chasing the bear out the back door," or some rigamarole such as that.

And if you talk to a restaurateur, he'd probably tell you about his restaurant's marvelous salad dressing, stupendous pies and succulent spare ribs. Restaurant owners are overwhelmingly proud of what they do.

But if you talk to a farmer, he won't tell you what he does — just how much he does. That's because a farmer's wealth and importance are directly related to how many acres he farms.

I acutely realized this when I happened to overhear my father talking on the phone about his future son-in-law shortly before Dale and I were married.

"Yeah, he's a farmer. His spread's out West. I suppose he farms a thousand or two. You know, an acre doesn't mean much when you're out on the range."

I told my father later that Dale farmed a mere two hundred acres. Not every farm in the West is big.

I excused my father's tall tales by telling myself he just had the "Dallas" syndrome. A lot of people view the West through the eyes of the TV. It's either cattle or oil millionaires and land barons to them.

That was my dad's problem. Not too long ago I talked on the phone to a livestock reporter who was conducting a survey -- and I don't know what her problem was. The conversation went something like this:

"Now Mrs. Hooley, I assure you we are interviewing all the farmers in your area and you will get a copy of our report when it is completed. How many head of cattle do you have?"

"Sixteen."

"No. I didn't say we had 60 head. I said 16 head. We're pasturing them on the south three."

"Three what?"

Lottery killed by legal ruling

GLENNS FERRY — A lottery or raffle to help raise funds for the Glenns Ferry recreation program would be illegal, city attorney J. Friedly told the council.

The advice has squelched any further action in that direction, noted Mayor Dayle Messerly.

Messerly said that Friedly examined the ruling given by Judge W.E. Smith in McCall concerning the "Calcutta."

Smith ruled the "Calcutta" (a golf game where money is wagered) was not a game of chance and noted that a percentage of the winnings went to charitable purposes, said Messerly.

The mayor said he thought lotteries and gambling, though technically illegal by Idaho State Constitution, have been practiced in the state in one form or the other many times before.

"It's kind of discouraging when the state won't take a firm stand on the issue," said Messerly. But he added that the council, "as an elected body of officials would stay away from lotteries and raffles for fund-raising purposes."

Meeting on Wood River debris raises emotions

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

HAILEY — It was supposed to be a straightforward, informational meeting to explain the logistics of an Army Corps of Engineers project to clear debris from the Big Wood River.

But emotions run high in Blaine County when talk turns to the Big Wood River. And these emotions helped turn Tuesday night's meeting into a debate between environmentalists and long-time ranchers over the pros and cons of the project.

The meeting began calmly enough.

Ron Barrett, a Corps of Engineers official from Walla Walla, Wash., described the details of the $182,000 project, which will remove selected logs, branches and stumps from a 27-mile stretch of the river — extending from the Glendale Bridge near Bellevue to the mouth of Eagle Creek, north of Ketchum.

No gravel will be removed from the water.

Barrett asked that all riverside property owners grant workers permission to enter the river through their lands.

Chuck Ketterman, a county flood-control commissioner, said that to date, the majority of the landowners south of Hailey and about half of those between Hailey and Ketchum have granted such rights.

The project, scheduled to start next week, will use rubber-tired log skidders and chain saws to remove the debris and pile it up along the banks, above the high-water mark.

Barrett said that one, and possibly two crews, will work in the river until heavy snows and freezing temperatures make it impossible to continue. Any work left to be done hopefully will be finished in early spring, before the heavy run-off period, he said.

A report, prepared by Barrett, said the debris causes problems by helping build up gravel bars that reduce the carrying capacity of the river channel. Debris jams also can knock down bridges and contribute to flooding by deflecting water over the river's banks that otherwise might be carried safely downstream, the report states.

Barrett stressed that "we are going to be sensitive to the environment. Some wood that would be good fish habitat, and not a flood hazard, will be left in the river."

A state fisheries biologist will supervise salvage work and will recommend what debris should remain in the channel, he said. Current plans call for the removal of most wood that is eight inches or larger in diameter, he said.

The meeting began to turn into a debate when Ted Chu, the state biologist who will help supervise the project, rose to speak as a private citizen.

He then proceeded to attack the Corps of Engineers for preparing what he called a "form document" that failed to adequately address the environmental issues raised by the project.

Chu said that debris removal would reduce some types of erosion but increase other types and "won't be a cure-all."

"This project is not going to affect large floods," he said. "If we are going to help deal with large floods, maybe the (debris-removal) money could better be spent on other projects."

Chu also said the project would benefit a small number of riverside landholders — mostly ranchers and well-to-do homeowners — at the expense of all taxpayers.

"I don't expect to stop the project, but I'm concerned with its environmental assessment, and I am concerned with taxes."

"These people (the riverside landowners) have a right to be protected since this type of service has been authorized by Congress," Barrett countered.

Woody Watts, another county flood-control commissioner and a long-time Blaine County resident, also defended the project.

"In the old days, when trees fell in the river, we would go in and drag them out with horses. We kept the river where it was supposed to be."

Dinner set for veterans

GLENNS FERRY — All veterans of the Hammett, Glenns Ferry and King Hill areas are invited to a Veteran's Day dinner at the Veteran's Memorial Hall Friday at 6:30 p.m.

Participants are asked to bring a salad or a dessert. The rest of the dinner will be furnished by the Glenns Ferry Veteran's Council.

She was frustrating to talk with, but not nearly as frustrating as sending livestock reports signed "Dale Hooley Ranch" and getting your letter six months later addressed to "Dale Hooley minus Ranch." Then you know they know you're small.

You also know you're small when you milk your cows by hand, you own one tractor and the only computer you have is your pocket calculator.

Well, I've decided that being a small farm has its advantages, too. You don't have to worry about finding good hired help. You are the hired help.

You don't have to worry about watching the stock market or potato futures. You can watch your investment when the four kids go running by, or the 16 cows are in the pasture.

It's a good life. When you're a small farmer there may be more work, but there's also more joy.

Just think what that big corporate farmer is missing out on while he helicopters from one end of his ranch to the other. He'll never know the serisation of crawling under his own tractor to find the bearing that went out while the flies play on his grease-splattered face.

Castleford football Coach Hal Jardine has done some impressive things in two seasons with the Wolves' football program

Castleford's Jardine keeps on winning

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — Whenever coaches get in a misty-eyed mood — which happens about as frequently as they invite a referee to dinner — they are liable to call their profession one of the noblest tasks a man can perform.

"How trite. Such hokum," you say, and perhaps you're right. Until you listen to Castleford's Hal Jardine and what others say about him.

Jardine has established himself as a success after only two years as the Wolves' head football coach. Last year he directed the team to an 8-1 record; this season, Castleford is 9-0 and a victory away from the state A-4 championship, which will be decided Saturday in Buhl.

A more personal way to measure Jardine's effect as a coach would be to cite the bond he has formed between himself and his players.

"I really enjoy working with young men, particularly the ones I work with at Castleford, and helping them achieve success," the 37-year-old said. "It's not really important to me personally or professionally to coach."

"He helps us out a lot," senior Alan Sample affirmed. "He gets along with everybody."

"Hal has quite a good rapport with (the players)," Julie Domowitz, the school's principal, noted. "He feels quite close to them and he really gets a tremendous amount out of them. A lot of them, for example, will go very religiously through his weight program but won't for any other coach." Said Sample, "We just do it and we don't complain."

Jardine can't complain about the way the Wolves have performed this season.

"There's no question about it — these kids have just worked hard," he said. "One of the main reasons for our success is really not related to football. It's related to their own dedica-

Ex-Minico QB Tracy may start for Hobart

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

MOSCOW — Former Minico High School football star Daryl Tracy has been in the University of Idaho football program for two years, but he may be getting a little more experience than he bargained for Saturday night.

Tracy, a 6-foot-2, 190-pound freshman for Heyburn, may get the starting nod in place of the Vandals' all-world signal-caller Ken Hobart when Idaho plays its most important game of the 1983 season in Moscow against the University of Nevada-Reno.

DARYL TRACY
Tough time to debut

Hobart, who has completed 224 of 401 passes this season of 2,965 yards and 26 touchdowns, bruised the elbow on his throwing arm last week in the Vandals' 40-10 victory over Northern Arizona. As of Wednesday, he still hadn't been able to work out with the club.

"It's swelled up pretty good," said Idaho head Coach Dennis Erickson on Wednesday. "We really won't know until Thursday or Friday whether Kenny can throw."

The only alternative for Erickson is Tracy, who redshirted last year and hasn't played a down on offense this season. Hobart, who is currently the second-most prolific passer in college football history, has been the Vandals' only quarterback this season.

"There's not a heck of lot we can change about the offense if Kenny's not in there," said Erickson. "We're still going to be throwing the ball, although Darryl hasn't the experience so we're not going to be able to do some things."

Also listed as doubtful for Saturday is Vandal tight end Kurt Vestman, who has caught 55 passes for 558 yards and three touchdowns this season.

"Kurt's problem is his back," said Erickson. "He sprained it against Northern Arizona. There's no damage to the disc, but he can't run."

To replace Vestman, Erickson can call upon sophomore Scott Auker, who has been in the program for three years.

"Scott's looking pretty good," Erickson said. "And he's had some playing experience."

The Vandals' patchwork offense will be in a pressure situation, to say the least. If the league-leading Wolf Pack wins Saturday night, it will wrap up the Big Sky Conference championship and with it a berth in the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs. A UNR win will also badly damage 7-2 Idaho's chances of getting an at-large berth into the playoffs, since the only other teams in the league with three losses — Idaho State and Weber State — have already beaten the Vandals.

By contrast, an Idaho victory would put the Vandals into a first-place tie with Reno going into the last weekend of the season, with Idaho at home against Boise State and UNR hosting Montana State. If both teams finish the season with 5-2 conference records, the winner of Saturday's game will win the league title.

"Obviously, this football game is absolutely crucial," Erickson said. "We're at the point where by beating Reno we can control our own destiny, and the kids know it."

The Wolf Pack turned a Big Sky runaway into a race two weeks ago by losing 41-38 at Northern Arizona and the once fearsome UNR pass rush has only decked the opposing quarterback four times in the last two games. But Erickson said the Pack is actually getting better defensively.

"They're a just an excellent football team," said the second-year Vandal coach. "Very physical and very aggressive. They played extremely well last week against Pacific (a team the Wolf Pack defeated 34-24) and they played pretty well against Northern Arizona. The kicking game beat them; they had a field goal and a punt blocked."

The Wolf Pack is currently the second-most productive offense in the conference, averaging 379 yards per game to the Vandals' 482. Reno is far and away the Big Sky's top rushing team, averaging 249 yards a game. Fullback Anthony Corley and tailback Otto Kelly both have a chance to have 1,000-yard rushing seasons.

Hagler, Duran square off for crown

By JOE CARNICELLI
United Press International

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Defending champion Marvin Hagler will be fighting for fame and riches and Roberto Duran will be seeking a niche in boxing history tonight when they face each other in a multi-million dollar duel for the world middleweight title.

Hagler, who is undisputed world champion, is considered by many to be the finest boxer in the world today. He is 57-2-2 and has not lost a fight in nearly eight years. Hagler won the title by knocking out Alan Minter in three rounds in 1980 and has made seven successful title defenses, all ending in knockouts.

But Hagler has not been able to break into the truly big money in boxing — until now. Hagler's duel with Duran is his first mega-buck fight and could bring him close to $10 million. It also could bring him the public acclaim he feels he has not been given despite his impressive ring performances.

Duran, who is seeking an unprecedented fourth title, is no stranger to big money fights. He ruled the lightweight division for nearly a decade in the 1970's and then won the World Boxing Council welterweight title by handing Sugar Ray Leonard his only defeat, a 15-round decision in June of 1980.

Five months after his spectacular victory over Leonard, an out-of-shape Duran destroyed his own career by quitting in the eighth round of his rematch against Leonard. He was branded a coward and a traitor in his native Panama and it took him nearly three years to climb back into favor.

That came earlier this year when, after two losses and an uninspiring victory, Duran produced two major victories to put himself in line for a shot at boxing history. First, he knocked out former welterweight champion Pipino Cuevas in four rounds in January to earn a title shot. And then he became only the seventh fighter in boxing history to win titles in three divisions by pounding out defending champion Davey Moore in eight rounds last June to win the World Boxing Association junior middleweight title.

Thursday night's fight, to be held in a specially constructed 15,200-seat outdoor stadium at Caesars Palace, is scheduled for 15 rounds. It is expected to begin shortly after 8:30 p.m. MST and will be televised worldwide on closed circuit television.

Hagler, who has been a middleweight for his entire 10-year career, will have the edge physically. At 5-9½, he is two inches taller than Duran and will enjoy an eight-inch reach advantage. He is expected to weigh nearly three pounds more than Duran when the fighters weigh in at 10:30 a.m. EST Thursday.

"This is the one I've been waiting for," Hagler said. "I've been fighting a long time and I haven't lost a fight in eight years but I could never get the big money fight. I watched guys like Larry Holmes and Gerry Cooney and Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns come along after me and get big money fights right away and I was undisputed world champion and getting nothing compared to them. This will change all that.

No favorites emerge among Northside girls

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

If you take a poll of the girls' high school basketball coaches from the Northside Conference of a team to take the conference title this season, no squad is a clear favorite.

Most coaches think that Richfield and Camas County will be tough to beat because of experience and size on those teams, while Carey and Bliss will be improved this year. Dietrich and Gooding State may be the darkhorses of the conference, they say.

Richfield Coach James Thomas begins his seventh year at the helm for the Tigers. Last season, Richfield finished in first place in the conference and has six players returning from last year's team.

The Tigers will be led by senior Monica Ward this year. "She's been playing underneath the basket in the past," said the coach. "This year, she'll be playing guard for us."

Although the Tigers may be a little slow, Richfield has some tall girls this season. Junior Jody Hilderbrand will be playing forward and center this year while sophomore Pegeen Thomas at the post.

Domowitz stays true to his favorite schools

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — Guts is the quality that allows a man to leave intact his prediction of Idaho defeating Nevada-Reno even after learning that Vandal stars Ken Hobart and Kurt Vestman probably won't play.

Sheer guts is what Julie Domowitz, principal of Castleford High School and this week's guest forecaster, brings to the sports pages of The Times-News. He cared not when informed about Hobart and Vestman. He remained steadfast in his prognostication: Vandals by 21.

Of course, one could assume that Domowitz was driven to his decision by loyalty. An Idaho alumnus, he played guard on offense and defense for the Vandal gridders in 1946 and

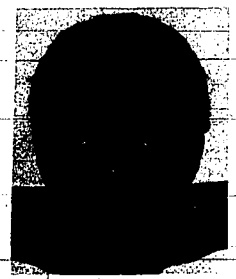
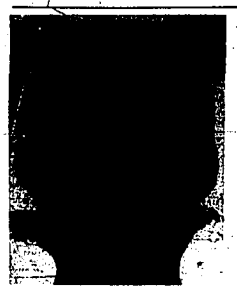
UNR-Idaho: key matchups



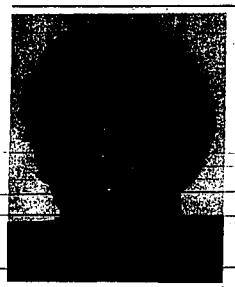
Anthony Corley VS. Ed Rifilato

Middle linebackers in a 4-3 defense usually have a lot of responsibilities, but on Saturday Vandal junior Ed Rifilato will have just one — to stay in front of UNR fullback Anthony Corley. Corley has already rushed for 773 yards this season — 110 per game — and gets 4.4 yards every time he touches the ball. Moreover, he's difficult to double up because running mate Otto Kelly (810 yards) is so explosive. Rifilato, who is just 5-foot-11 and weighs 205 pounds, doesn't make many solo tackles, but he'll have to Saturday. If the Vandals don't stop the 6-0, 210-pound Corley at the line of scrimmage they won't stop the Pack.



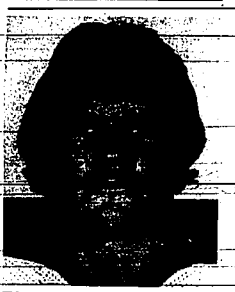
Derek Kennard VS. John Andrews

Idaho's John Andrews, a 6-3, 235-pound defensive tackle, is going to see a lot of Boss Hogg Saturday night. Boss Hogg is 6-3, 265-pound defensive tackle Derek Kennard, who makes a habit of flattening defensive linemen as a prelude to Kelly passing through. Andrews is strong and quick, but Kennard and guard Greg Rea aren't often dissuaded by a head fake and a forearm shiver. Still, the Vandals are the No. 1 rushing defense in the league, and Andrews is a big reason why. It remains to be seen if Idaho will remain No. 1 after Saturday.

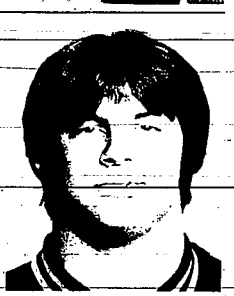


Eric Beavers VS. Boyce Bailey

The Pack tried something different last week against Pacific with QB Beavers, who had a broken nose and a groin pull. They kept him protected in the pocket instead of sending him into the fray on play action. He didn't get touched and he provided enough of a passing game to make UNR's running game go. Look for the same thing Saturday night. Vandal SS Boyce Bailey (nine sacks for 33 yards) will be the Idaho player charged with urging Beavers to move — and to throw bad passes. Bailey is quick enough to get into the pocket on the safety blitz, and to make Beavers run. But Bailey will have other things on his mind, like helping his teammates pull down Kelly and Corley.



Dee Monson VS. Shawn Jackson



The surprise of the year for UNR has to be the emerge of NG Monson, a 6-3, 230-pound senior who wasn't even a starter when the season began. Monson has nine sacks, but most of those were early in the year before the word got out about him. His asset is quickness and great upper body strength, and he'll be a handful even for the Vandals' Jackson, one of the best centers in the conference. Opponents have found that you don't get a second chance with Monson — stop him or he'll get the quarterback. That's going to be especially important if freshman Daryl Tracy has to fill in for sore-armed Ken Hobart. Tracy hasn't developed the street smarts as yet to dodge the likes of Monson.

Joe Cooney VS. Daryl Tracy

ILB linebacker Joe Cooney is to the Wolf Pack this year what Sam Merriman, now the the Seattle Seahawks, was to Idaho a year ago. Cooney is quick and he doesn't give away much speed to tight ends and running backs, who he most often encounters. But he's particularly a threat to a quarterback, who like Tracy, has been trained to make the most of the opportunities that develop underneath the zone. Cooney has three interceptions and four sacks this year, but his principal value is probably intimidation: quarterbacks must always be conscious of where he is going and what he will do, and it limits their options and their use of secondary receivers.

Jardine

tion. Many of them have jobs, help their dads out on the farm, things like that. Through that kind of life and environment they've been able to accept the kind of hard work I've given them."

Jardine knew he had a solid team even before the season began. But he wasn't sure it possessed true championship quality, because of what he perceived to be two shortcomings.

First, Jardine initially felt the Wolves might suffer from the lack of a "big" fullback. "I knew we had a good fullback in Rich Owen, but without the fullback we couldn't establish an inside running attack," he said. However, Owen and the Wolves' runners have contributed strong efforts, primarily, Jardine feels, because the offensive line has exceeded expectations.

Indeed, the offensive line was Jardine's other concern. "I felt like we were one lineman short of going all the way," he said. However, one of the highlights of the Wolves' campaign has been the emergence of sophomore center Ron Owen and freshman guard John Darrow. "Those two, along with the senior linemen I was counting on, have been able to get the job done," Jardine said.

Before getting the job done at Castleford, Jardine, a Utah State graduate, taught and coached in Elko for 10 years, serving as a varsity football assistant, head track coach and junior high basketball coach. He came to Castleford in 1980 and assisted Randy Clark for two years before assuming the head coach's post last year.

While Jardine is well-informed about football — "He has a really good knowledge of the game," Domowitz said — he doesn't allow the sport to consume him. His appreciation for the game is sincere yet simple.

"You could get into all those Vince Lombardi statements about how it replicates life itself, but I just enjoy football," he said. "And coaching it is really intriguing."

And, of course, rewarding.

"I'm in the best shape of my life. I plan on busting up Roberto Duran. His people talk about his fire and his dedication but there's no one more dedicated than I am. I know what I went through just to get a title shot and I know what I had to do to get it and how much it means to me. No one, especially not Roberto Duran, is going to take that away from me.

"I hope this fight will show the public just how good Marvelous Marvin Hagler really is. I think people in boxing recognize my accomplishments but I don't think the general public does. I think this victory over Duran will show the public just how good I am."

Duran, who is 76-4, started his career in the 135-pound lightweight class and has moved through the welterweight — and — junior — middleweight divisions to compete for Hagler's 165-pound middleweight title. He feels his vast experience and his burning desire for a spot in boxing history will overcome Hagler's physical advantages.

"I feel I am destined to make boxing history, to become the first man ever to win four world titles," Duran said. "Marvin Hagler's size and strength don't bother me because I have experience fighting bigger men. Marvin Hagler has never fought anyone like me — there is no talent in his division — and I will show him things he has never seen before in the ring.

"I have the experience to counter anything he does in the ring. I can box and I can get inside. No one has ever hit Marvin Hagler in the body and I promise you, he will get hit in the body Thursday night. We will see then just how marvelous Marvelous Marvin Hagler is."

"In no way am I underestimating Roberto Duran," Hagler said. "I know he's a dangerous fighter and he'll have a lot of Latin fans at the fight rooting him on. He's going to be sky-high and emotion can lift a fighter. I want to get rid of him as soon as I can. I'm really looking to bust him up. I'm getting very tired of his people and their attitude. I want to retire Roberto Duran Thursday night."

Duran's style is to bob and weave, move side-to-side and try to work inside. Despite his reputation as an aggressive fighter, Duran is quite solid defensively. He rolls with punches well, is difficult to hit and can be dangerous once he gets inside.

One problem for him may be that he has not faced a left-hander since he stopped Leonico Ortiz in the 15th round of a lightweight title defense in December of 1975.

"I'm not concerned about his being left-handed," Duran said. "It presents a few problems but nothing I can't handle. I've been training with left-handers for two months. One or two rounds with Hagler and I'll know what he has and what he likes to do."

Hagler's camp is concerned with the judge appointed by the World Boxing Association, which is supervising this title defense. Guy Jutras of Canada came under heavy criticism last year for his handling of the WBA featherweight title bout between Eusebio Pedroza and then-challenger Juan LaPorte at Atlantic City, N.J.

Blankenship will rely on center Angela Bennett to be a key player for the Mushers. The coach says the 5-foot-10 senior will be the main rebounder for this year's team.

Blankenship is also expecting a lot from junior Maray Lemons and sophomore Mindy Funkhouser, who will direct the team at the guard position.

The Mushers will have a strong offense this season.

"We have a lot of depth and size," said Blankenship. "We have a lot of consistent players and won't be looking for one player to carry the load for us."

Carey has three starters back from last year's third-place team. Panther Coach Blaine Tingey said that seniors Donna Young and Heather O'Crowley will see a lot of action this year. Tingey also said juniors Didi Youren and Shene Lee will add expereince to this years squad.

"Our team is pretty small this year," said the coach. "But we have a good bench and we have a lot of quickness on the squad."

Carey won't start their season until Dec. 1, when it will play Dietrich.

Dietrich coach Ben Stroud hopes that the Blue Devils' size and experience will help this year. Three seniors will lead the team this season: Carol Perron, Shannon Bingham and Becky Jensen. The coach said that Dietrich may look for the long shot. "We'll be shooting from the outside a lot this year," said Stroud.

Diana McAnulty will take over a Bliss team that won just two games last season. The new coach will try to win more games by utilizing a passing game and a pressure defense this year along with some experience from last year's squad. Bliss has eight girls returning from last year.

McAnulty said seniors Michelle Hobdey and Louise Sears will provide some offense this season and freshman Lois Hobdey will add some quickness for the Bears.

Gooding State will also have a new coach this year when Darcie LeMieux takes over a team that only managed one victory last season. LeMieux will take over from Bill Andrew, who will serve as an assistant coach this season.

Andrew said that Gooding State should have good performances from senior Terri Fargher and junior Jodi Rodocker. He said the two girls will be playing inside this season while freshman Jodyann Bakke will be seeing action at the guard position. "Bakke will be handling the ball for us most of the season," said Andrew.

Andrew also said that Gooding State may take advantage of the new three-point shot this year. "We'll be practicing a lot on the 19-foot shots," said Andrew.

CrossCountry

CSI harriers eye JC national meet

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

HUTCHINSON, Kans. — Merernette Simmons will be shooting for a national championship and John Walsh will be gunning for a spot in the top five Saturday when those two represent College of Southern Idaho in the national junior college cross country finals.

Simmons thrust herself into the title picture last week when she defeated Ricks' Liz Lynch by seven seconds in the regional finals. The latest NJCAA cross country national ratings have Lynch, Stacy Hartsfield of Phoenix and Cheryl Westhoffer of Mesa listed as the top three in the country — and in no particular order. Ricks' Karen Harvey, who was third in this region, was ranked fifth individually.

By defeating Lynch, Simmons has buoyed Coach Karl Kleinkopf's hopes for a second straight individual champion, Kimberly Swedberg, now at Purdue, accomplishing the trick last year.

"I think Merernette has a real shot at it. I feel that she can beat Lynch again," Kleinkopf said. "You have to remember that Merernette didn't run all summer because she didn't know if she would be going to school this fall. Lynch has been running all year and Simmons is just starting to get into top shape. It's true Merernette hadn't beaten Lynch until last week, but she's been getting consistently closer every meet this year."

"Still, I realize that it is going to be a tough race and Merernette will have to be in peak form. Then, too, we really don't know very much about the other two girls. But I have to think, Simmons can win Saturday."

Simmons, who was hailed as Bermuda's female athlete of the year for her high school performances, graduated from high school last December and enrolled at Northern Arizona in January where she participated in track.

However, she declined to return to the Flagstaff school and came to CSI

Students place at kung-fu meet

CALDWELL — Students from Gene Starr's Tai Kung-Fu School of Self-Defense had more placers last weekend in the Western Idaho Karate and Kung-Fu tournament than any other school.

The entrants competed in both sparring and kata forms, along with students from Washington, Oregon and other parts of Idaho.

Kata forms -- Liesl Lehman, first place, women's division; Jon McLinn, second place, 9-12; David Nevares, second place, black belt weapons.

Fighting division -- Gene Starr, Jr., first place, men's junior; Manuel Trejo, first place, men's yellow belt; Jon McLinn, first place, 9-12; Shawn McLinn, third place, 9-12; Liesl Lehman, third place, women's division.

Cowboy Henderson arrested

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Former Dallas Cowboy linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson was charged Wednesday with five sex and drug felonies involving two teen age girls, one of whom is a paraplegic.

Henderson, 30, was charged with two counts of false imprisonment and one each of forced oral copulation, sexual battery and furnishing cocaine to a minor. He claims the girls solicited him.

The former Cowboy, who went with Dallas to three Super Bowls, was ordered to appear Thursday in Long Beach Municipal Court for arraignment. He was freed on $16,000 bail following his arrest last Thursday.

Prosecutors claim two girls, a 15-year-old and a 17-year-old who is confined to a wheelchair, were lured to Henderson's apartment, where the 6-foot, 3-inch, 240-pound former football star forced the 15-year-old to have sex with him at gunpoint.

Rim Runners meet tonight

The group will gather at the YFCA at 7:30 p.m.

Persons interested in running and fitness are invited to attend the group's meetings.

1947. The highlight of his career was a team achievement, a 19-16 triumph at Stanford in the '47 season opener. But when the Heisman Trophy ballots were counted, Julie didn't get many votes.

"I was just on the squad a couple of years as a scrub," he said modestly. "There's nothing to describe about my playing. It was very, very run of the mill."

Domowitz attended graduate school at UCLA before coaching at Los Angeles' Jefferson High School. There, he watched a youngster named Johnny Mathis from Oakland's McClymonds High School set a state record in the high jump. Mathis never did much with his track and field abilities, but he did record a few songs, collect a few gold records and earn a few million dollars.

Sometime after this brush with fame, Domowitz returned to Idaho. From 1960 through 1970 he taught and coached at Twin Falls' High and served as principal at Jerome High. He spent six years in Northport, Mich., then returned to the Magic Valley to take his present duties at Castleford.

Domowitz realizes what a lift the town is receiving from the Wolves' bid for a state title. Except for the school's eight-man football championship, which wasn't officially sanctioned by the state high school athletic association, Castleford owns no No. 1 trophies.

"The community is really 'jacked,' " he affirmed. "You were at Nampa the other night, weren't you? Well, you saw the number of Castleford people there — four or five hundred. They'll all be there Saturday, too."

"We're healthy for the first time in three or four weeks," says UNR Coach Chris Ault, noting that a number of his defensive players have been injured during the four games the Pack has lost this year. "We're looking forward to playing a very, very fine football team at full strength. We know that if we can win one of our last two games, we're in pretty good shape to win the championship."

Elsewhere in the Big Sky Saturday, Weber State will visit Idaho State, Northern Arizona will meet Boise State and Montana will play Eastern Washington.

NOTICE OF INTENDED RULE-MAKING

In compliance with Section 67-5203(a) (1), Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Welfare, has initiated rule-making. The proposed action, under Docket Number 0301-8308, involves the adoption, amendment, and renumbering of rules governing Eligibility for Financial and Medical Assistance, Title 3, Chapter 1, Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. The action is proposed under the authority granted in Section 56-202(b), Idaho Code, for the purposes of implementing the provisions of 20 CFR 416.2095 through 2098, effective as soon as possible.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the intended action and of the principal issues involved:

The Department proposes to pass along to applicants for and recipients of AABD the Social Security cost-of-living adjustment payable January 1, 1984. The adjustment will be passed along by increasing the nursing home income eligibility limits and certain allowances used to determin eligibility and compute grant amount for AABD. Residents of room and board homes will not receive an increase in payment level. In addition, several new allowances are proposed to distinguish among unlicensed shelter home care, room and board, and licensed or approved adult care living arrangements requiring some degree of supervision. These living arrangements are specialized shelter home care, semi-independent group residential care, and adult foster care.

Within the time limits specified below, any person can review the proposed rules in the DHW Administrative Procedure Section or in any of the regional administrative offices of the Department. Copies of the proposed rules will be made available upon written request specifying the docket number cited above and at a rate of ten cents (10¢) per page. Checks must accompany the request and be made payable to the Department of Health and Welfare for the amount of $2.90.

Anyone can submit written comment regarding the proposed rules, and any individual or industry who may be affected by the proposed rules is encouraged to submit information concerning the anticipated economic impact of the proposed action. For assistance on technical questions concerning the proposed rules, contact Pennie Bjornstad, Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Welfare, (208) 334-4340, Boise. All written comments and data concerning the proposed rules must be directed to the undersigned and must be postmarked or delivered on or before November 30, 1983.

Rule-making hearing(s) will be held if signed, written requests for a hearing are submitted personally or are addressed to the undersigned and postmarked on or before November 30, 1983, from twenty-five (25) or more interested persons, or from an association presenting a petition with signatures of not less than twenty-five (25) members of the organization, or from a governmental subdivision or agency. Hearing requests should include a statement of the direct interests of the petitioner(s) in the subject matter of the proposed rules. Any hearing site(s) will be accessible to the physically disabled. Interpreters for persons with hearing impairments and brailled or taped information for persons with visual impairments can be provided upon five days notice. For arrangements, contact the undersigned at (208) 334-4397.

PUBLIC DEFENDER CONFLICT OF INTEREST AGREEMENT
On September 19, 1983 Robert W. Galley was awarded the Public Defender "Conflict of Interest" bid. Said agreement follows:
AGREEMENT TO PROVIDE PUBLIC DEFENDER SERVICES ON A CONFLICT BASIS
BE IT KNOWN AND UNDERSTOOD That the Twin Falls County Commissioners do hereby contract with Robert W. Galley, Esq. to provide representation for indigents in the Twin Falls County who need such services and whose representation cannot be performed by the Office of the Public Defender because of a conflict of interest.
FURTHER, aforesaid parties agree that the terms and conditions of said contract are as follows:
1. That Robert W. Galley be paid a flat fee in the amount of $10,200.00 per annum at a rate of $850.00 per month as remuneration for his services.
2. That the term of this agreement is from October 1, 1983 to September 30, 1984.
3. That Robert W. Galley shall be responsible for providing legal services for all Public Defender conflicts, and multiple conflicts which are assigned during and which require legal services to be performed during aforesaid period.
4. That Robert W. Galley shall provide all necessary legal services and cover such expenses as normal office overhead, phone expenses, mileage, mailing costs and other similarly related expenses.
5. That Robert W. Galley will provide to the Twin Falls County Commissioners a monthly report detailing new cases, pending cases and the final disposition of cases.
6. That Twin Falls County through the District Court Fund is responsible for extraneous costs such as preliminary hearing transcripts, appeal transcripts, expert witness fees, psychiatric examinations and similarly related extraordinary expenses which would involve substantial payments to outside parties.
7. Whether a case is a "conflict" is a matter to be determined by the Office of the Public Defender. However, such a determination may be contested by appealing or getting an interpretation by the Court; whether it be a Magistrate or a District Judge.
SO AGREED This day of October, 1983.
Robert W. Galley
Ann Cover, Commissioner
Marvin Hempleman, Commissioner
Judy Felton, Commissioner

4,000 apply for special late deer hunting permits

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JEROME — Some 4,000 applications for the special predation hunts aimed at reducing the deer herd in the Snowville area were processed by the Region 4 office of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game Wednesday.

In a day-long procedure, the 4,000 postcards were drawn one-by-one by either former commissioner Steve Herrett, Twin Falls, or regional supervisor Bill Webb. The cards then were scrutinized for proper information and then numbered one through the final card to fill the permits.

Through these late hunts, the department hopes to reduce the migrant herd in the Sublett unit from about 1,400 to 700. Once one of the most flourishing deer herds in the state, the Sublett herd, particularly those summering in the Rockland hills, was put under stress by construction of Interstate 84.

The fenced highway cut off the deer migration route from the summer range to winter range in the Black Pine area. Dozens of deer were killed in battles with the four-strand barbed fence that protects the interstate right-of-way.

This necessitated initiating a large and expensive winter feeding program, worsened by the fact the deer selected private land for their winter area. This has resulted in considerable complaint from landowners.

As the old does in the herd have died off, biologists believe the herd's pattern has changed. The instinct now perhaps is not to cross the interstate and reach former winter range, but simply to come to the feedlot.

Gary Will, out-going regional wildlife manager, emphasized the department is hopeful that the herd will have to be held at a minimal level only "temporarily."

The department is still in contact with the federal and state transportation agencies, trying to obtain some mitigation or compensation for disrupting the migration route.

The department's major hope is, though underpasses, overpasses or some form of physical modification, to reconnect the migration route. Failing that, the department would like the transportation agencies to at least participate to some degree in underwriting the expense of the feeding program.

Because the Wednesday drawing had to be done by hand without the lightning-like aid of a computer and the limitations of the hunt, the logistics will be achieved only through a lot of work. Because of that, Webb said applicants should not call the regional office to see if they were successful.

"Because the winners are simply numbered and we don't have the computer capability to call up names, hunters will just have to wait. We (the department) have a battery of phoners in Boise who will spend the next few evenings contacting all successful applicants at their home."

The department hopes to control the harvest through a managed number of weekly hunts. The first hunt will have 300 permits. If that group would take 200 deer, the department could plan on two more hunts of 300 each. But as many as nine weekly hunts have been authorized.

The department will keep a close tab on the total harvest and when the 700 figure is reached, succeeding hunts will be cancelled.

All of the 4,000 applicants were numbered Wednesday because the department can't be that certain of participation.

"We will begin calling the first 300 tonight," Webb said Wednesday, "to confirm that they still want to hunt. Some may have taken deer in other areas and won't want to try for a second. Some may not be able to hunt on the specific dates for the hunt they've drawn in. Others just may want to bag it."

"When we come across people who decline to accept the permit, we will simply move the entire list up until we get confirmation for a full 300 in each of the hunts."

Webb said a large number of the postcards had to be voided because primary information was not included.

"A surprising number listed everything except their hometowns," Webb said. "With these regional post offices, like Ketchum mail actually being postmarked in Twin Falls, it is impossible to determine the applicant's home town and we don't have the manpower to sit down with a lot of phone books and look those things up. There were a few that didn't include their names, just their addresses and license numbers. There were some voided for just about everything that was required on the application but the number that forgot to put down their home town was the biggest."

Webb said it appeared as many or more hunters from the Pocatello area had applied as Magic Valley hunters. However, applications were received from all parts of the state.

The Snowville hunt is one of two special winter seasons that have been approved by the commission. An elk hunt was okayed in northern Idaho with the drawing held in the Coeur d'Alene office Wednesday. Both hunts are designed to reduce populations on critically reduced or limited winter ranges and in answer to landowner complaints of predation.

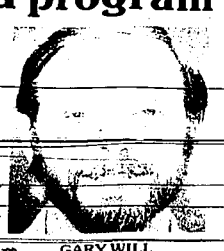
Will to head state game bird program

JEROME — After nine years of heading up the wildlife programs in this region, Gary Will will become the state game bird manager for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

Will, replacing Dick Norrell who is moving into the department's land management division, will assume his duties Nov. 20.

Will took his bachelor and masters degrees from Colorado State, getting the latter in a two and one-half year study of geese in the eastern portion of that state.

He earned his PHD at University of Idaho in a three-year study on white tail deer population dynamics.



GARY WILL
Promoted to Boise

As regional wildlife manager, a large portion of Will's time was bent toward the numerous big game problems in various areas plus the logistics of handling two of the state's larger winter feeding projects — deer in the Snowville area and elk in the South Fork of the Boise and Camas prairie.

He said the switch from big game to strictly birds is not particularly a matter of personal preference. "I have a background in waterfowl (his master thesis) as well as big game (PHD thesis)," he notes.

Will said he didn't want to get into any specific items concerning entering this new position with some pre-determined plans.

"Our first major project will be assembling the five-year management plan from 1985 through 1990," he said. "I think the most important thing that we (the department) have done since I've been here is the five-year management planning. Those plans, for the first time, have given the department a general direction. We've never managed from a long term position and this is the first time we've sat down with our own field people and taken input from the public and other agencies to formulate these guidelines. I'm sure the next plans will be much better."

In his new position, Will said he wants to take "a hard look" at the department's sage grouse programs.

"I think we are at the point where we can become more specific in these plans in the area

Twin Falls sets DU banquet Nov. 17

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls chapter of Ducks Unlimited will conduct its annual fund-raising banquet Nov. 17 at Canyon Springs Inn.

Chapter chairman Craig Fisher said the event will begin with a no-host cocktail hour at 6:30 p.m.

The dinner will cost $25 per plate but that includes the price of the meal, a year's membership in Ducks Unlimited and a chance at this year's door prize — a Honda ATC, donated by World of Wheels. Tickets purchased by Nov. 10 will entitle the holder to a chance for a white water river trip, donated by the Idaho River Company.

"We're going to have a lot of good food, good prizes and good fun for everyone and those who attend can rest assured the dollars we raise are going to a very good cause," Fisher said.

The evening will include the usual auction for paintings and other wildlife-associated art objects plus the special shotguns designed for Ducks Unlimited. Additionally, hundreds of raffle prizes have been donated by dozens of Twin Falls area businessmen.

Ducks Unlimited is a conservation group dedicated to the perpetuation of the continent's migratory waterfowl population through perservation and enhancement of brood-rearing wetlands. Most of the organization's work is concentrated in Canada and the northern territories which produce at least 70 percent of the continent's ducks.

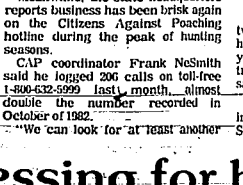
Since organized during the dust bowl days of the mid-1930s, Ducks Unlimited has been given over $200,000 million by American sportsmen. Eighty-five cents out of every dollar is used in physical enhancement of wetlands.

Non-residents pay $1,100 in bird fines

JEROME — The Idaho Department of Fish and Game recently announced checking stations and field work have resulted in fines and penalties against hunters caught violating regulations in two separate instances.

Seven conservation officers and one federal game management agent, manning a checkpoint at the Hollister port of entry to inspect hunters heading out of state, wrote eight citations — seven to California hunters, one to a Nevada hunter — primarily for exceeding pheasant limits. Some $1,100 in fines were assessed.

Also, on Oct. 19, the first day of deer hunting season, the department cited Raul Espeytia of Twin Falls for shooting two deer without a permit in Unit 54 south of Twin Falls. Espeytia received a $600 fine and had his hunting license revoked for two years.



Meanwhile, the state headquarters reports business has been brisk again on the Citizens Against Poaching hotline during the peak of hunting seasons.

CAP coordinator Frank NeSmith said he logged 206 calls on toll-free 1-800-632-5999 last month, almost double the number recorded in October of 1982.

"We can look for at least another 100 hotline reports in November," he added.

Information from CAP callers continues to produce citations for fish and game law violations, NeSmith said.

"For example, three Payette County residents recently were fined a total of $600 and ordered to pay $400 in mandatory civil penalties on a combination of charges that involved shooting deer during an archery-only hunt, failure to validate a tag and over limit.

"They were also each sentenced to two days in jail and each had their hunting privileges revoked for three years following the investigation triggered by CAP calls," NeSmith said.

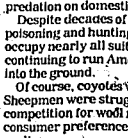
CAP paid or offered rewards totaling $2,850 from last July through September and the citizen organization's records show that rewards have added up to $69,650 since the anti-poaching program was initiated in January, 1981.

Magistrate court dispositions recorded for the same period list $56,524 in civil penalties assessed and $44,579 in fines, forfeitures and court costs, representing a 95 percent conviction rate, according to NeSmith.

All suspected violations reported to CAP are investigated by conservation officers and a reward of from $100 to $500 is offered if a citation is issued. NeSmith said the caller's identity is protected.

CAP is finance entirely by volunteer, tax-deductible contributions, most of them from hunters who donate all or part of their refund after they are unsuccessful in applying for a controlled hunt permit.

Approval of 1080 is mixed blessing for hunters, ranchers



Mike Harrop Outdoors

There is no question that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) delivered westerners a mixed blessing when it okayed 1040 for use as coyote poison.

The chemical is more selective than other poisons formerly used for predator control.

However, it gains mixed reviews from wildlife experts, ranchers and predator control specialists.

However, if it is mixed with baits, some damage to birds is possible. If the poison is not used correctly, it poses a danger to such endangered species as wolves, grizzlies and, the kit fox.

It was suspected to be an agent in the decline of bald eagles, wolves, grizzlies and had not solved the problem of coyote predation on domestic animals.

Despite decades of coyote trapping, poisoning and hunting, coyotes continued to occupy nearly all suitable habitat and were continuing to run America's sheep industry into the ground.

Of course, coyotes weren't the only cause. Sheepmen were struggling because of foreign competition for wool markets and because of consumer preferences for beef, pork and poultry.

When the livestock industry lobby came up against the environmental lobby, it suffered badly.

Although environmentalists are as given to emotional argument as stockmen, they had a great many facts on their side which gave their argument some weight.

The livestock industry must have hired the same people to count dead sheep that the U.S. Army was using to amass kill counts in Vietnam because credibility was lost.

When the substance was banned in 1972, traps and guns became the only effective means of curbing coyote populations.

If poison didn't work, traps and guns proved even more ineffective and the livestock industry argued that poison was needed to reduce coyote populations near livestock kills.

I'm sure that the burning question for most outdoorsmen is whether the poison will ruin coyote hunting as a sport.

I believe that it will lessen coyote numbers temporarily near the scene of stock kills. It will probably increase the number of coyote hides coming to market, lowering the price.

It may also serve to reduce the intensity with which sheepmen welcome hunters near their herds.

Coyotes are used to guns and traps and have learned to avoid them. But it has been a long time since poison was used and it will be quite effective for a time.

Until coyotes learn to cope with the poison, stockmen might prefer to have fewer armed strangers about.

On another side, the license to use 1080 is probably going to be temporary.

I believe that permission to use the substance was granted in a political move and that another political move will probably withdraw the approval.

Consider the situation which the Reagan administration now faces.

The forced resignation of former secretary of the interior, James Watt, left many stockmen with the feeling they'd just lost a champion. Watt was ably defending them against the emotional interests of eastern wildlifers who learned biology from watching Walt Disney specials on television.

While the administration wanted to show stockmen it continued to support them even without Watt, the political reality of getting Reagan re-elected did not include continuing to anger the nation's anti-hunters.

But when the Reagan administration realized that its stock was rising on the public opinion market because of the military actions in Grenada and Lebanon, it realized that the time had come to move.

Not only had the public's attention switched to the two world trouble spots, but the available air time and newspaper space was jammed with war news. In the west, earthquake news also demanded attention.

The result was that the story moved fully on United Press International (UPI) wires apparently was omitted on some Associated Press wires in the earthquake belt.

As a result, the poison will be in use before many of its opponents know of the release and opposition will be limited to low background murmur.

If 1080 is used only in collars on sheep, it will create no problem for wildlife at all.

But the collars are expensive, while the poison baits are cheap. In addition, by the time the coyote has died from the collar-applied poison, it has killed a lamb or several while baits do not involve the sacrifice of a domestic animal.

Coyotes preying on cattle will have to be controlled with baits because the prey are

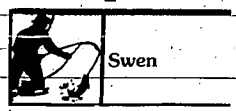
Committee report leaves anadromous problem unresolved



Swen

But it's still a very important document in the steps the region is taking to save salmon and steelhead runs.

It's called "Public Review Draft, a New Management Structure for Anadromous Salmon and Steelhead Resources and Fisheries of the Washington and Columbia River Conservation Area, Preliminary Findings or the Salmon and Steelhead Advisory Commission."

With a handle that long, it should warn that what is between the covers of this report reads like the old song Walla Walla bing-bang.

It does, except for the impressive introduction: "Because the fish are considered everybody's common property, everybody fishes and over fishes and fights with everybody else over declining numbers of fish."

There has not been a consistent policy for sea run fish. Federal, state and Indians compete rather than cooperate.

Society at large is paying for most of the cost of trying to maintain the runs but the expensive catch-as-catch-can harvesting of the runs "has become an economically marginal proposition for society as a whole."

Hearings were held Nov. 2 in Seattle on this issue. The hearings were important. Out of them will develop new salmon and steelhead laws for good, bad, or as it looks, indifferent, which is the same as bad.

Yes, someone should resolve fisheries disputes before the fists fly and the lawyers get into this dispute. Yes, someone must enforce new regulations. Yes, anyone who hurts a fish run should pay up, preferably with new fish production. Yes, hatcheries, because they may endanger natural runs, should be used with caution.

The report is especially weak on how to allocate fish among commerical and sport fisheries. The general tone implies that sports fishers are secondary to the commercial take.

I have used the tie-fast and have found that the knot it ties will save many a fish losse.

Lure fishermen should especially be interested in this gadget because a lost lure involves not only the loss of the fish but also the expensive lure.

Don't run out and try to buy a tie-fast locally. I have checked many of the local tackle dealers and the usual answer to my query is "tie-what?"

Some of the commerical fishermen have made their own out of wood, carved in the pattern of the patented model. Some tell me they prefer the wooden hand carved model.

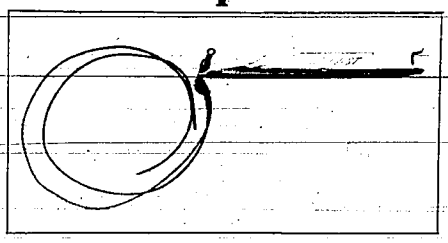
To tie on a swivel, hook or lure with the tie-fast, simply run your line through the item and double the line back along the body of the tie-fast with plenty of slack.



Hook the item on the back and bring the doubled up line to the working end of tie-fast. Wind the loose end around the point about four or five times and then run the loose end of your line under these windings. Slip off your swivel or hook from the back end and pull the line, forcing the knot up snug on the swivel.

The harder the fish pulls, the tighter the knot becomes. If you have ever socked back on a monster only to get that empty feeling on the end of your line and found that your knot became untied or broke at the knot point, this may be your item.

Sportsmen, foresters compromise

BOISE (UPI) — A wildlife group has abandoned its request for a court order to stop construction in the Payette National Forest, and in return the Forest Service agreed to delay a timber harvest in the Rapid River roadless area, court documents say.

Under the terms of an agreement between the Idaho Wildlife Federation and the U.S. Attorney's Office filed in Idaho U.S. District Court earlier this week, the Payette National Forest will install gates to control access to the Whitebird Ridge Road after the completion next year of the Indian Creek bridge and a reconstructed road.

In return, the government agreed to halt all proposed activities relating to a proposed timber sale in the nearby 28,000-acre roadless are until a Wildlife Federation appeal against the plan in federal court is resolved.

The Forest Service had proposed to allow the harvesting of 12-14 million board-feet of timber during 1986 in the Lockwood and Fall creeks area.

William Stockley, the Wildlife Federation's Boise attorney, said the organization dropped its injunction request, which was scheduled for a hearing Friday.

Hunt is discriminatory

I would like to call the people of Idaho and responsible participants to attention in the way the Idaho Fish and Game Department is mishandling their deer hunts.

They put a buck-only hunt on Unit 56, Sublett area. They knew that this unit was hunted out for bucks. Only a few four-point but mostly spike and two-points were taken out this year. So much complaint came in they cooked up this deal of getting 600 does and fawns at the feeding area out.

When Stu Murrell came on TV and announced about this special hunt and gave instructions how to send in for a draw, it was stated that it was absolutely necessary that participants have a telephone, so they could be notified if their application was drawn.

To heck with the retired people who can't afford a phone. No, they would let them spend their money on a hunt that if they got a deer it would be pure luck. Then come up with this special hunt where they don't stand a chance if they don't have a phone.

Why didn't they incorporate it into the regular hunt and give the people who have paid taxes all their life a chance? I think that the department should be investigated. It looks as if they could have a discrimination suit on their hands. They made sure all out of state permits were filled first.

Please write your congressman and governor if you feel about this situation the same as I do.

of flock management for sage grouse and waterfowl," he said. "We can set management policies for each population in rather small areas rather than a broad statewide type of management plan. We can tailor our management on each population — both resident and migrant — to control or improve them in some way, independent of another population 100 miles away or in another drainage."

Bill Webb, regional supervisor, said Will's position at the Jerome office will be filled through hiring and promotional procedures prescribed by the Fish and Game Commission.

Since some openings occurred last month through two retirements, the department already has a "register" of qualified people who are seeking promotion or transfer.

"Because of that we don't think it will be very long," Webb said of filling the vacancy.

He noted that Craig Kvale, a biologist who has worked with Will the past two years, "would be a candidate but it will be a matter of procedure and qualification and interviews through the lists that are being prepared in Boise now."

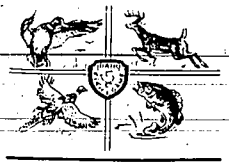
Bankside etiquette sadly neglected by Idaho steelheaders

By STU MURRELL
Idaho Fish and Game Dept.



JEROME — A good number of steelhead fishermen need a lesson in sportsman ethics, according to Kent Ball, anadromous fishery manager at Salmon.

Steelheading has been excellent in the section of the Salmon River from North Fork downstream to Corn Creek and fishermen from all over Idaho have flocked to the area. This has created a whole assortment of conflicts among anglers that have steadily increased as the fishing has improved.

One of the common complaints has been fishermen driving roads until they see a local steelheader in a hole or spot someone catching a fish. They then crowd right up to the person fishing, literally casting over their lines.

This behavior is not good etiquette and results in an unpleasant experience for everyone concerned.

Ball feels this may be a result of the typical fishing situation in many locations in the state where sportsmen utilize reservoir areas having still water. They can be relatively crowded but their lines will remain in one place after a cast.

This is not true in a river situation and fishermen must learn to take their turn as they drift down through a hole. In Oregon, where angler density is much higher than Idaho, fishermen have learned to get along by anglers spacing themselves properly and moving gradually downstream. When the lowermost angler reaches the bottom of the hole, he walks to the upper end and waits his turn to proceed.

Another problem has been improper use of jet boats. This section of the Salmon River is classed as a National Recreational River and the enabling legislation clearly states boat traffic will be allowed.

Therefore, it would take an act of Congress to restrict jet boat use to certain sections to avoid the conflicts between boat and short anglers. The only solution is to have boat operators use good judgment in roaring up through a group of shore anglers. Try to fish the sections less accessible to the bank fishermen and move slowly between holes.

One change compounding this problem has been the use of small rafts or boats by bank fishermen to reach the other shore away from the road along the river. This results in fishermen on both banks and lines literally clear across the river since it is quite narrow through much of this section.

Studies on the lower Clearwater River last year showed the excessive boat traffic reduced fishing success even though they had excellent numbers of steelhead in the river. Salmon River anglers caught a much higher percentage of the run because of the longer stretches of river available and less intensive boat traffic. However, this could change if this activity increases in those areas readily accessible to boat fishermen.

Litter and human waste problems are serious in this section. The U.S. Forest Service, which administers this public land, is considering additional installation of portable toilets and dumpsters. However, much of the problem could be solved by persons avoiding littering.

The steelhead resource is worth millions of dollars to Idaho's recreational industry and fishermen can help to make it an enjoyable sport by practicing the "golden rule."

Outdoor briefs

Hunters can expect telephone survey

BOISE — The first of about 20,000 hunters will soon be getting telephone calls from the Department of Fish and Game asking them how they fared in the 1983 big game seasons in Idaho.

When the annual telephone survey is completed early next year and the information is compiled and analyzed, wildlife managers will have a close estimate of this year's harvests along with other guidelines they need to help them set big game seasons and regulations in 1984.

Staff biologist Lou Nelson is in charge of the survey. He said callers will be asking:

- Whether or not the license holder hunted.
- What species of big game was harvested and the size of antlers on deer and elk, what management unit the animal was taken in and when.
- How many big game animals were seen and how many days were spent hunting.

These are strictly calls to gather facts. We are not checking for possible violations," Nelson emphasized. "Hunters can help us by answering the questions and they can help themselves toward the probability of continued success afield in the future."

The 20,000 persons to be called starting about Nov. 16, represent a five percent sample of license holders. They include residents and nonresidents who participated in controlled hunts and general firearm, archery and muzzle-loader season, Nelson said.

Magazine features Whooping crane

BOISE — The story of a tall, rare bird "with dull red forehead, black mustache and black-tipped wings that measure nearly eight feet across" leads off a bonus section in the September-October issure of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game's Idaho Wildlife Magazine.

Writer Donna Gleisner so describes the whooping crane, an endagered species that probably numbers no more than 100 in the wild today. About a dozen of the whoopers visit Idaho each spring.

Other Idaho endangered wildlife in the illustrated 12-page supplement are the gray wolf, bald eagle, woodland caribou, grizzly bear and peregrine falcon.

Idaho's snakes, from the rubber boa to such reptiles as the desert night snake and western rattlesnake, are the subject of the lead article by Ron Pace of McCall, who has a master's degree in zoology and has studied snakes for 25 years.

Editor Diane Ronayne also listed features that include a progress report on Citizens Against Poaching and a boy's first nuzzle-loader hunt. And the wildlife recipes in "Chuckwagon" have the ingredients for venison stroganoff and venison heart with onions.

Glacier grizzly sightings double

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (UPI) — More than 1,000 grizzly bear sightings were reported in Glacier National Park last summer — nearly double the amount for 1982.

Biologists on Tuesday attributed the increase to greater awareness and concern for the animals by park visitors, whose number exceeded 2 million for the first time ever.

Pacific Fisheries salmon program faces new delays

BOISE (UPI) — The chairman of the Pacific Fishery Management Council said Wednesday it might take several more weeks to complete revisions in the panel's proposed ocean salmon plan, even though the delay poses "horrible" administrative problems.

John R. Donaldson said the council would rather not delay the plan — which officials expect will streamline the regulation of fishery harvests off the coasts of Washington, Oregon and California beginning in 1985.

But several members insisted at a council meeting Wednesday that the panel thoroughly review the latest public testimony on the plan before voting for final adoption of all parts of the long-term management framework.

"We will have horrible problems if we delay" because the council is running behind on completing the plan and submitting it for review to the U.S. Commerce secretary, Donaldson said.

But he agreed to delay completion of some facets of the thick document, which was before the council in draft form. The council voted on several items Wednesday, but many others will not come up for consideration until the council's December meeting, officials said.

Officials said the plan would provide long-term guidelines for making year-to-year adjustments in Pacific Coast salmon management practices and harvest regulations, which affect commercial and recreational fishermen in the three states, and Indians and other interested parties in upstream areas where the salmon migrate to spawn.

The guidelines are meant to provide more flexibility than under the 1978 management plan on what steps officials can take to limit salmon harvests in times of population declines among the migratory fish, officials said.

Council members agreed on a voice vote that the management plan should "establish ocean harvest rates.

WORLDWIDE COOKIE SHORTAGE

A recent survey commissioned by Swensen's Markets has discovered the appalling fact that 95% of the world's cookie jars are empty. The 5% that contained cookies were found in the kitchens of grandmothers, who lived long distances from their grandchildren. Even more disturbing than the absence of cookies was the fact that in many cases, cookie jars had last been filled with hard, crummy (crumbly) store-bought cookies instead of moist, soft, chewy homemade cookies like chocolate chip, peanut butter, oatmeal raisin (thought by one narrow-minded, biased Swensen to be the best cookie in the world) cookies that only mothers or grandmothers can make so well. Without a doubt, the only way to correct this cookie crisis and help starving, homemade cookie lovers, is by stocking up at Swensen's this week, where everything you'll need for cookie baking is selling for less.

Blue-chips pace explosion on Wall Street

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — The stock market exploded from a lengthy slump Wednesday.

It scored its biggest gain in a month on a late-breaking rally paced by blue-chip issues.

Technology, retail, food and brokerage issues also moved into the spotlight in the rebound from Tuesday's dull election day session.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which managed to gain 0.10 Tuesday, spurted 17.58 to 1,232.52, the biggest gain since it climbed 18.60 on Oct. 6. The Dow, which hit a two-month low Monday, had fallen 70 points since hitting a record high of 1,284.65 on Oct. 10.

The New York Stock Exchange index gained 1.11 to 94.44 and the price of an average share increased 41 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 2.21 to 163.97. Advances topped declines 1,021-605 among the 1,989 issues traded.

Big Board volume rose to 83,100,000 shares from the 64,900,000 traded Tuesday, the slowest session in nine weeks. The turnover was heavy, in the final hour as the rally accelerated.

While the trading pace improved, it trailed the year's daily average of 85 million shares. That indicated some investors were waiting for the Treasury to complete its $16 billion quarterly refunding today.

Bankers Trust triggered some afternoon buying when it lowered the rate it charges brokers for loans to 10¼ percent from 10½ percent. Federal funds rates banks charge one another for overnight loans droped to 9¼ percent.

"The bond market stopped its slide and that helped the stock market," said John Burnett of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette. "There is a feeling of quiet optimism about a yearend rally."

"The rally spread out from blue chips to secondary stocks in the final hour and that was the most encouraging thing about this rally," said Trude Latimer of Evans & Co.

"The Dow average was oversold and we had a knee-jerk reaction," said Alfred Goldman of A.G. Edwards, St. Louis. "Retail stocks scored because investors are anticipating a strong Christmas season."

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 108,646,700 shares, up from 78,960,220 Tuesday.

The American Stock Exchange index jumped 2.76 to 215.28 and the price of an average share rose 19 cents. Advances topped declines 330-262 among the 820 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 5,596,300 shares compared with 5,136,500 Tuesday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers index of OTC stocks rose 1.43 to 271.00.

Pork producers at Ponderosa

BURLEY — The Idaho State Pork Producers Association will hold its annual convention Friday and Saturday at the Ponderosa Inn in Burley.

The gathering, with the Southern Idaho Pork Producers Association as host, will feature programs on current marketing trends, a new pricing structure for hogs and production management using computers.

Convention registration begins at 10 a.m. The annual dinner is scheduled for 7 p.m., and program will resume for a half-day on Saturday, said Jim Miller of Jerome, secretary-treasurer for the southern Idaho association.

Record sales, income for JB's

SALT LAKE CITY — Record sales and net income during fiscal 1983 have been reported by JB's Restaurants, Inc.

Clark D. Jones, president, said net income of $2.18 million or $1 per share was up 35 percent from $1.61 million or 93 cents a share during fiscal 1982. The firm's fiscal year ended Sept. 25.

Revenues for the year were $53.43 million, up 18 percent from $45.24 million during the previous year.

For the fourth quarter of fiscal 1983, net income was $700,000 or 31 cents a share on revenues of $13.73 million. Those figures compare with net income of $597,000 or 35 cents a share from revenues of $12.09 million in 1982.

BOISE — Home resale activity in Idaho during the third quarter of 1983 was 46 percent above the level of the same period in 1982.

The Idaho Association of Realtors reports that on a seasonally adjusted annual basis, home resales rose to 14,600 units from 10,000 units in the same period a year ago. The figures include single-family homes, condominium apartments and cooperative units.

Nationwide, resales of homes in the third quarter rose 48 percent over 1982 levels to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3 million.

Store asks to switch courts

BOISE (UPI) — Albertson's Inc. has asked the federal court in Boise to assume jurisdiction over a case in which the supermarket chain is accused of the unauthorized use of a butcher company's trade name.

Pocatello-based Butcher Block Inc. filed suit in Idaho Sixth District Court last month, seeking an injunction against Albertson's and $350,000 in damages.

Butcher Block, which has been operating as a retailer and wholesaler of meat products for six years in eastern Idaho and parts of Wyoming, Utah and Montana, asserted Albertson's has been improperly using the "Butcher Block" trade name in its own meat-market sections.

Attorneys for Albertson's filed documents in U.S. District Court on Tuesday seeking transfer of the suit to federal court, saying the case extended beyond matters that could be addressed in state court.

Shutdown to hurt Idaho town

POST FALLS (UPI) — Community leaders say a decision by a Washington Water Power Co. subsidiary to close down a Post Falls manufacturing plant and move it to the Spokane Valley will have a serious economic impact on the town.

Kootenai County Commissioner Frank Henderson and Coeur d'Alene Area Chamber of Commerce Manager Sandy Emerson said Itron, Inc., plans to shut down its Post Falls plant next spring and move the computer-software manufacturing operation to an industrial park near Spokane.

About 100 people are employed by the Post Falls facility, they said.

They said the Spokane industrial park is also owned by Washington Water Power Co.

Emerson said the move, accompanied by a WWP request for a 60-percent hike in power rates, amounts to a "one-two punch" for county residents.

Itron President Paul Smyly said the move was prompted by several factors, including availability of a trained labor force in Spokane and Washington's lack of a personal income tax.

Corn crop smallest since '64

Chicago Sun-Times

U.S. farmers will harvest the smallest corn crop since 1964 this fall, a private crop analyst says.

Leslie E.F. Hutton's Crop Survey placed the soybean harvest at 1.5 billion bushels -- the smallest since 1976.

As of Nov. 1, Leslie estimated corn production at slightly more than 4.1 billion bushels, down more than 50 percent from a year ago. The estimate was down from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's October prediction of 4.3 billion bushels and off from Leslie's estimate of 4.34 billion bushels.

In 1982, American farmers harvested a record 8.4 billion bushels of corn. But a severe drought and high temperatures significantly damaged the 1983 crop, according to the report compiled by Leslie Analytical Organization and distributed by E.F. Hutton & Co.

The 1983 harvest also was affected by U.S. farmers' decision to idle a record 33 percent of cropland this year in return for a combination of cash and guaranteed grain through the federal government's acreage-reduction programs.

The USDA's November crop report will be released today.

Reflecting the drought impact, Leslie's latest forecast shows an average yield of 80.3 bushels of corn per acre in 1983, down from the 82.9 bushels predicted in October. In 1982, a record 114.8 bushels per acre were harvested.

November soybean production estimates are down slightly from the USDA and Leslie's October estimates. In 1983, farmers harvested a record 2.2 billion bushels of soybean.

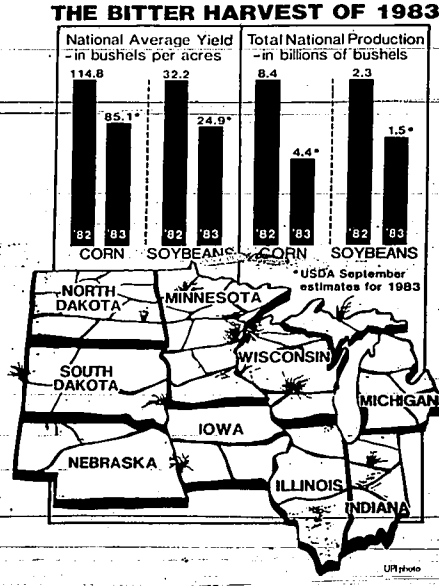
Because Leslie's corn forecast is a bit lower than expected, future prices at the Chicago Board of Trade were expected to be up a bit at the opening Wednesday, said Kal Hachem, a Cargill Investors Services official. The soybean prediction was "on the high range of the average guestimate," he said.

On balance, corn prices won't rise much unless the U.S. expands it export markets, Hachem said. Without a broader market, he said corn prices may experience a setback. He predicted soybean prices will remain stable.

Corn futures for delivery in December closed at $3.57¼ Tuesday at the CBOT, down half a cent. Soybean futures for January delivery fell 7.5 cents to $8.70.

"The question is how far they can push (prices) without a setback in the absence of more business," Hachem said. "I don't see much new export business around. To fuel a rally in the market, you have to create some demand."



FTC chairman under fire at hearing

By THOMAS FERRARO
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Five former Federal Trade Commission officials, joined by three business leaders, charged Wednesday that FTC Chairman James Miller is inadequately enforcing antitrust and consumer protection laws.

Testifying at a congressional hearing to review complaints about Miller's stewardship, the eight witnesses attacked President Reagan's appointee on several fronts.

"If the policies of the current chairman are permitted to govern for a sufficient period of time, some of our most basic liberties will be jeopardized," said Carlton Eastlake, who was director of the FTC's Los Angeles regional office from 1981 to last spring.

Donald Randall of the Antitrust Committee of the Small Business Legislative Council, a group of 79 trade associations, complained the FTC "has become dormant and effectively is not enforcing antitrust laws."

Chairman Doug Barnard, D-Ga., opened the hearing of the House Government Operations subcommittee by saying, "What we want to know . . . is whether the nation's marketplace today is a freer and a fairer marketplace for business and consumer than it was three years ago" — before President Reagan took office.

Miller has been repeatedly criticized by consumer and business groups, as well as members of the commission, chiefly former chairman Michael Pertschuk, a Democrat who still serves on the FTC, for cuts in staff and enforcement.

A report by the subcommittee's staff released earlier this week found the number of FTC investigations and enforcement actions has been cut in half since Miller took office two years ago.

It concluded, "The FTC has effectively dismantled its highly productive regional office operations, reducing staff from 345 to 134 in 1 ½ years, thereby causing a likely diminution in the commission's law enforcement effectiveness."

Reagan took office promising to reduce government regulation and Miller has favored, where possible, voluntary compliance to fair trade laws.

But "under Chairman Miller, I believe the pendulum has swung too far in the direction of inaction," said Terry Latanich, who served as a FTC staff lawyer from 1975 to 1982.

Other former FTC officials who testified were Benjamin Sharp, who held several agency positions from 1977-82; Paul Daw, an FTC staff member, 1972-82; and Jack Schwartz, a member of the general counsel office, 1975-77.

The other two businessmen who testified were Andrew Lewis, president of Best Products Co. Inc., and Bernard Fauber, chairman of the board of K mart Corp.

Consumer confidence reaches 10-year high

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) -- Consumer confidence in the economy is at the highest level in a decade and that should mean a "robust recovery" in sales of houses, cars and major household goods, University of Michigan researchers report.

Interviews with more than 2,000 consumers nationwide in the third quarter revealed widespread optimism about prospects for personal finances as well as for the economy as a whole, they said in a report.

The ISR Index of Consumer Sentiment reached 91.6 percent in the third quarter, just above the 91.5 figure recorded in the second quarter, and the highest quarterly reading since the peak of 94.4 was recorded in 1972. The figures are based on the February 1966 index of 100.

Survey director Richard T. Curtin said the third quarter barometer is "based on the current or the expected direction of change in the economy, following a prolonged period of adversity, not on the current or expected level of economic performance."

"Nonetheless, the very favorable attitudes and expectations point toward a robust recovery in sales of vehicles, houses and large household durables through mid-1984."

He said the pace of recovery will not depend on willingness to make large purchases, but on consumers' ability to finance such purchases "without a resurgence in interest rates."

Some highlights of the third-quarter report:

•63 percent of the families surveyed felt overall business conditions had improved during the past year, a higher proportion than recorded following any of the prior six recessions during the past 30 years.

•58 percent of the families felt conditions were favorable for buying houses, down from the peak of 64 percent in the second-quarter survey.

•64 percent of the households thought conditions for buying cars were favorable, unchanged from the second-quarter survey.

New reporting rules could result in more audits by IRS

Last in a series

A one-time-only provision, part of the 1983 tax law, could create major problems in matching up information returns with the information you put on Form 1040.

It also might lead to an Internal Revenue Service audit of your '83 tax return. And beware: You're a prime target for an audit if information submitted by a third party does not correspond to your tax return.

What is creating the problem and what can you do about it?

A new tax law requirement forces brokers to report gross proceeds from the sales of stocks, bonds, commodities and futures contracts. The 1983 Treasury regulations specify that for '83, the new reporting rule applies only to transactions on or after July 1, 1983. (In the future, the reporting will cover the entire year.)

So far, simple enough. But this is only the start of several vexing questions. Will your broker send you and the IRS each one Form 1099-B (the required form) showing your total transactions for July 1, 1983, to the end of the year? Or will your broker send a separate form 1099-B for each deal? It can make a big difference, stresses Eli Waraich, editor in chief and divisional vice president of Prentice-Hall.

Background: For '83 and for '83 only, the broker can choose to report all transactions for one person's account on an aggregate basis on one Form 1099-B. But, if they wish, brokers may report each separate sale for '83. After '83, the broker has no choice; he must report each transaction (other than regulated futures contracts) on a separate Form 1099-B. Ask your broker how he/she will handle this.

Another question: Will the 1099-B you receive reflect all of your '83 transactions or just those from July 1, 1983, to year-end? While the broker is required to report transactions only for the last half of the year, he is allowed to report all the 1983 transactions.

That's right, the entire year. Ask your broker how he/she intends to handle this, Waraich urges.

Still another question: While the broker is required to report "gross proceeds" -- what "gross proceeds" will show up on the Form 1099-B that you receive? The regulations say that gross proceeds are the total amount paid to you, the investor, or credited to the investor's account. However, the broker may (but is not required to) take commissions and option premiums into account in determining gross proceeds. One possible result: If you have more than one broker, you will may wind up with two or more 1099-B forms that figure gross proceeds differently. Find out, too, how this will be handled.

The purpose of this new reporting requirement is, of course, to get more information on who is receiving how much money from stock market transactions. The problem for 1983 is that while the result is desirable, it also can be very confusing.

Won't Schedule D of the Form 1040 reflect this information? Not necessarily, for there are some problems here as well. Although there is a change in Schedule D linked to this new reporting requirement, it will not be really helpful to you.

In 1982, Schedule D had an entry for "Gross sales price less expense of sale." The same column for this year is simply "gross sales price." That's an attempt to match broker reporting with taxpayer reporting. But there are lots of variations in matching these figures. And this could open up grim audit possibilities.

First, there is no single entry on Schedule D for total sales proceeds from the sale of securities after June 30.

The total "gross sales price" items on Schedule D will include securities sold before July 1 and gross proceeds from the sales of capital assets that are not securities (for instance, land).

Then there are sales that must be entered on Schedule D that are not reported on Form 1099-B -- the sale of a call option, for instance.

Then there are sales reported on Form 1099-B that may not be entered on Schedule D. Say a short sale in '83 that closes in '84.

In sum: You must be doubly certain that you have records of your transactions. Some taxpayers say they will attach copies of their transaction statements -- as protection for themselves.

And keep in mind the broker won't report losses on 1099-B, just gross proceeds. (Personal note: For this mess, the IRS has no one to blame but itself.)

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat, oats and soybeans were mixed and corn mostly lower at the close Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was off 1½ to up 1¼ cents, corn up ¾ to off 2¼, oats off ¾ to up ½, and soybeans up 2½ to off 2½ cents.

Liquidation and profit-taking late in the session forced prices back to mid-range levels at the closing bell. Good buying interest earlier in the day had helped prices advance.

Many traders were evening-up positions in advance of the Agriculture Department's crop production report scheduled for release today. It will be the last one this year — the final estimates for the 1983 crop will come in January.

Some traders expect the December wheat-corn spread to widen. Corn traded at a premium of nearly one cent at times, however the December contracts in both corn and wheat settled at $3.58 per bushel.

Soybean meal was supported by active trading in Rotterdam and rumors of upcoming export demand.

Trustee joins battle over rail merger

Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — Milwaukee Road trustee Richard B. Ogilvie has joined the Chicago & North Western Transportation Co. efforts to acquire the Milwaukee Road by saying the C&NW plan "does not currently satisfy reorganization requirements" for the bankrupt railroad.

Ogilvie says the previously approved plan for the Grand Trunk Corp. to acquire the Milwaukee Road already has been proved a success by the shipping cooperation between the railroads that has been in effect since June, 1982.

The two suitors for the Milwaukee Road have been engaging in a battle of press releases and white papers, aimed at discrediting each other.

Ogilvie came down strongly in favor of the Grand Trunk in a statement filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"My amended plan, including the Grand Trunk acquisition of the Milwaukee Railroad, meets all statutory criteria and will satisfactorily reorganize the railroad," he said. "I believe that in some form the C&NW acquisition of the Milwaukee Railroad could be financially and operationally feasible and could still meet the public interest standard. I am not persuaded that the C&NW plan currently before the commission satisfies all these criteria."

Ogilvie questioned the North Western's plan for treatment of Milwaukee Road employees, the impact on competition of that merger compared to the end-to-end merger of the Grand Trunk, and the treatment of government and employee creditor claims. In contrast, he claimed that his previously submitted plan provides fair treatment for employees and creditors and will have no adverse effect on competition.

However, a procedural matter concerning possible conflict of interest in legal representation of the North Western caused a federal court judge to enter a stay order with respect to ICC consideration of the C&NW proposal, pending a resolution of that issue. This could delay the ICC's decision.

In recent salvos fired by the competing companies, the North Western questioned the economic viability of the Grand Trunk Corp., which is wholly owned by the Canadian National Railway, and ultimately by the Canadian government.

Sears sprucing up stores

Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — Reflecting what Chairman Edward R. Telling called a "dramatic decline in the number of desirable new shopping mall locations," Sears, Roebuck & Co. said Tuesday it will spend $1.7 billion by 1989 to upgrade more than three-fourths of the existing stores in its Merchandise Group and build 62 more.

Sears' decision to embark on a renovation program of this magnitude was spurred by "the competitive importance of upgrading existing facilities to generate sales and profit growth," said Telling.

Sears said it will remodel more than 600 stores in the next five years using its "Store of the Future" concept, which gives its traditionally staid stores a sleeker image with conveniently grouped merchandise, speedier cash register banks, fresh pastel colors and jazzy wall displays.

The company will renovate 350 of its largest and most profitable stores in the next three years, said Edward W. Brennan.

Lawsuit calls PIK 'welfare'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A lawsuit contending the Reagan administration's $11 billion payment-in-kind program is a welfare program for California farmers has been filed in federal court.

Plaintiffs in the suit challenging the program, which encourages farmers to avoid planting crops, were Rep. Fortney "Pete" Stark, D-Calif., and two Sacramento welfare mothers, Jeanne Davis and Barbara Burt.

Robert Teets Jr. of California Rural Legal Assistance, which represented two welfare mothers, described the PIK program as "a welfare program for California agribusiness."

"The reductions in foodstamp levels and AFDC benefits have been the source of increased federal revenues the Reagan administration through Agriculture Secretary John block has chosen to dole out," Teets said.

The PIK program was established to soak surplus producers of crops which have deflated prices for wheat, animal feed crops, cotton and rice. Farmers agree to keep fields fallow in exchange for an equivalent amount of crops that can be sold on commodity markets. Favorable tax treatment also is provided.

CRLA cited a federal report showing seven farmers, all from California, received more than $2 million apiece for keeping fields fallow under the program.

"The resulting increase in food costs constitutes an unprecedented system of income redistribution from consumers to farmers," the lawsuit said. "While such redistribution affects all consumers, it is especially devastating to low income consumers."

The U.S. District Court suit seeks to restrict PIK payments to $50,000 a crop per farmer as required under federal law for other acreage reduction programs. The limit was set to help small farms.

Ralph Abascal, CRLA general counsel, contended the Reagan administration improperly justified the exemption because farmers are given actual commodities rather than cash.

"There is no better example of trickle-up economics," Abascal said, explaining the program took over 80 million acres in the nation out of production, spurring higher farm prices.

House panel OKs farmer tax breaks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House Ways and Means subcommittee has approved legislation that would extend for one year favorable tax treatment to farmers participating in the Agriculture Department's 1984 payment-in-kind program.

The action was approved by voice vote and sent to the full committee. A subcommittee spokeswoman said the full committee planned to consider the measure Wednesday.

In addition to extending the current tax regulation for the 1984 PIK program, the measure would ask federal courts to rule on whether individual PIK payments in excess of $50,000 would be legal in 1984.

Rep. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., chairman of the subcommittee on select revenue measures, said the court request is limited to the 1984 program. It would not touch the controversy surrounding the current program.

Present law limits to $50,000 the total annual cash payments that can be made to any farmer under an acreage reduction program. When the PIK program was announced, the Agriculture Department determined that the $50,000 limit did not apply to it, but on Nov. 1, the General Accounting Office, the auditing arm of Congress, said the limit does apply to PIK.

The overall PIK tax legislation would extend for another year a special rule that treats a commodity received by a producer as if it were grown on the land withdrawn by the producer, and allows the farmer to defer income on PIK commodities until the commodities are sold.

The Agriculture Department has announced a payment-in-kind program for 1984 only for wheat.

Girl's heart beats dangerous rhythm

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl who is seriously in love with a boy who will be 14 soon. I will call him "Matthew."

He is gorgeous, sweet, kind, polite and a lot of fun. My problem is that I can never get him alone. Matthew always comes over with another kid or several other boys, but he never comes over all by himself.

I would like a close and loving relationship with him, but how do I get into one the way things are going? He knows how I feel about him because I told him. (Was that a mistake?)

When I asked Matthew how come he never comes to see me alone, he said his mother told him it was "dangerous." Abby, where is the danger? I'm not going to hurt him.

Answer soon because I want this guy to like me so bad I am going crazy.

— POUNDING HEART IN DENVER

DEAR POUNDING: Slow down, honey. Girls mature earlier than boys, and you are moving too fast for Matthew.

And yes, it was a mistake to tell him how you feel about him. (Boys, and girls too, know when someone "likes" them — they don't have to be told.) Matthew sounds like a normal boy his age. Don't try to get him alone or you may never see him at all.

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired Chicago policeman now living in Arizona. I am constantly amazed at these retired people who open their wallets in public and expose large sums of money and a string of credit cards. Don't they realize that they are asking for trouble? I see this done at every checkout counter.

After the victim was robbed, this is what we used to suggest:

1) Carry only as much money as you can afford to lose.

2) Carry only the credit card you will be using. Leave the rest at home, and be sure the cards and a list of their numbers are in separate places.

3) Keep your house keys and your ID in different places on your person. If a purse snatcher or a pickpocket gets both, he can rob your home anytime. If you do happen to lose both, have your locks changed immediately — I mean the same day!

Almost none of the victims had obeyed any of the above rules.

— C.R. HALEY, PHOENIX

DEAR MR. H.: Your rules are helpful for everyone — not only retired people. Thanks for reminding us.

DEAR ABBY: A man from Toronto was visiting friends in Florida last winter. Being handy around the house, he offered to repair a loose shelf for his friends. The shelf was lined with an old newspaper, and when the Toronto visitor looked at it he noticed that it was The Toronto Sun!

Face up was a "Dear Abby" column he knew he had never read, and being a fan of yours, he promptly scanned it right there on the shelf.

That column had a special meaning for him because he was a transsexual who had never had any help with his problem. In your column was a letter from Christine Jorgensen, suggesting that you publish addresses of places around the country where transsexuals could find help. Our friend quietly pocketed the column before he fixed the shelf.

Today he is a patient of "Confide," a personal counseling service in New York, one of the places you named, and he is well on his way to fulfilling a lifelong dream — to become a woman.

I thought you would like to know that you helped a very desperate man who was afflicted with the feeling of having been born into the wrong sex.

— NO NAME, PLEASE

Broad shoulders counteract hips

By PATRICIA SHELTON
Chicago Sun-Times

Q. I'm going to a black-tie party in December and want to look great, even sexy if possible, but I have some figure flaws. I'm 28 years old, about 5 feet 8 inches and thin everywhere except my hips.

They're wide. Everything that I try on seems to make my hips look wider. What dress style will hide my hips but won't make me look frumpy? Also, will high heels look more dressy than medium-height heels?

A. Use the trick designer Adrian used to minimize Joan Crawford's hips in the 1940s — broad shoulders. They'll create a balance with your hips. Look for a broad-shouldered dress with a slim skirt, whether it's a long gown or a very sophisticated cocktail dress (which is OK for black-tie today).

Even though the gown may be sleeveless with plunging necklines front and back, there are styles with wide shoulder treatments such as draping. By all means, wear high heels.

Q. I have a seven-eighths length teal blue wool coat. When I wear trousers, the coat looks fine, but when I wear a skirt or dress with the coat, I look silly. Are short coats supposed to be worn only with pants?

A. No. Designers have been showing them with skirts and dresses. What looks best, other than pants, are pencil and pleated skirts at lengths a few inches longer than the coat. Fabrics with substance are best. Wear your coat with woolens so you won't look as if your clothes shrunk.

Q. What is the proper way to remove eye makeup?

A. Very gently. Use an oil-free eye makeup remover with gauze or a tissue. Cosmetics expert Marilyn Miglin says to avoid oil because it will seep through delicate eyelid membranes and clog the tear ducts. With chin thrust forward and eyes focused downward, wipe the upper lid area and lashes. Roll eyes upward, point chin down and wipe across the lower lashes. Do not pull the skin, or you'll be sorry years later. Some people recommend using cotton. Miglin and I prefer gauze or a tissue to keep cotton fuzz out of the eyes.

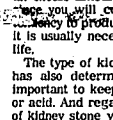
Drinking water helps fight excessive uric acid



Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 53-year-old man and I discovered, with the help of a urologist, that I have uric-acid stones. I have been experiencing kidney attacks approximately two times a week.

The doctor took a blood and urine test and he prescribed allopurinol (Zyloprim), which I have to take every day. He tells me that I have to take this for the rest of my life. How do you feel about this?

He also prescribed a low-purine diet for me, which probably means low on fat and more carbohydrates. Should I get a second opinion on the diagnosis?

DEAR READER — Uric-acid stones are not the most common form of kidney stones, but they certainly do occur in untreated gout or high uric acid conditions. Since the stone is easily analyzed — and I presume, if you passed a stone, that it was analyzed — it is fairly easy to be certain about the diagnosis.

The major source of an increased blood uric acid is from your own body cells. Some people are born with the mechanism to produce an excess of uric acid. We all produce some.

If you have that characteristic, allopurinol is a good medicine to take. It prevents your cells from producing an excess amount of uric acid. And once you will continue to have the tendency to produce excess uric acid, it is usually necessary to take it for life.

The type of kidney stone a person has also determines whether it is important to keep the urine alkaline or acid. And regardless of what type of kidney stone you have, almost all physicians agree that it is important to have diluted urine. You can accomplish that by drinking lots of fluids around the clock. At least half of the fluids should be water.

I am sending you The Health Letter 11-2, Kidney Stones: Treatment Has Changed. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 72 years old. For two years I have had fingernail problems. They break and the edges are rough, like the teeth of a saw. The cuticles are dry even though I use gloves when washing dishes.

Is there something lacking in my diet? My husband is on a low-sodium, low-cholesterol diet for congestive heart failure and I eat the same diet. I cook everything fresh, with plenty of fruits, vegetables, whole grain cereals, meat, poultry and fish. I have used gelatin and nail hardeners with no success.

DEAR READER — Your letter suggests that your diet is quite good. You need plenty of the protein that you get in meat, poultry and fish. Gelatin is an incomplete protein and is of no value if you have a good amount of protein in your diet.

Opiates may help cause pre-menstrual blues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Premenstrual syndrome is a catch-all term for a bunch of symptoms no one has been able to explain.

Women undergoing premenstrual syndrome can suffer headaches, tension, fatigue, constipation, cravings for sweets or huge helpings of food for days before their periods. Their personalities can turn irritable, angry and in a few cases, even psychotic. Then, once the flow begins, the symptoms disappear.

A few scientists now believe the widely disparate symptoms may have one cause: extra-high levels of naturally occurring opiates in the brains of victims.

"Our position is that the ovaries are able to alter production of the natural pain killers in the body, the endorphins," said Dr. Robert Reid, a reproductive endocrinologist and professor in the obstetrics-gynecology department at Queens University in Kingston, Ontario, Canada.

"What seems to be happening is that during the two weeks prior to the menstrual period, levels of endogenous opiates in the brain are very high," he said in a telephone interview.

Endorphins are among the most powerful known appetite stimulants, he said. Another of their classic side effects is constipation.

"We believe that at the onset of menstruation, there's a precipitous fall in the levels of opiates, which we think produces a syndrome similar to a heroin addict going cold turkey." In other words, irritability, anger and mood swings.

"The significance is there may (eventually) be some new treatments for premenstrual syndrome."

There is also evidence natural opiates can inhibit the release of other neurotransmitters implicated in generating a happy mood, Reid said; hence, opiates may be involved in causing premenstrual blues.

The theory conflicts with those that attribute some premenstrual syndrome symptoms strictly to fluctuating estrogen and progesterone levels. Although the opiates seem related to hormone levels, the hormones themselves are not to blame, he said.

If the opiate theory proves true, Reid said, there may be three possible treatments:

- Eliminating the monthly cycle and keeping estrogen levels steady with doses of the hormone LRF, also known as LH-releasing hormone. Produced by the hypothalamus of the brain, LRF stimulates the pituitary gland to release hormones which regulate estrogen production. Extra LRF, however, shuts off this production in the pituitary and estrogen levels remain steady.

LRF is under investigation as a contraceptive, but must be taken by injection or nasal spray.

- Opiate blockers. One, called naloxone, is already used to reverse overdoses of opiates such as morphine. It, too, can only be given intravenously. An oral agent called naltrexone is being testing in the United States, Reid said. It also acts as an appetite suppressant and has been used experimentally to treat obesity.

- An agent that would prevent opiate withdrawal symptoms. One, clonidine, has been shown in tests to prevent such withdrawal symptoms, including anxiety, irritability and tension. However, it would have limited use, he said.

Reid said the LRF route shows the most promise as a premenstrual syndrome treatment, as long as women who use it aren't interested in getting pregnant. The other agents, naltrexone and clonidine, are potent and long term use may have dangerous side effects, he said.

None will be be available to the public for some time to come, he said. For now, treatments rely on "a large amount of education and reassurance."

Donations asked for convoy

TWIN FALLS — Contributions to the annual Idaho American Legion gift convoy to the Idaho Veterans home may be made during the Veterans Day service Friday in the Twin Falls City Park.

Mayor Chris Talkington will speak at the service scheduled for 10:45 a.m.

A specially marked pickup truck will be available at the park from 10:45 a.m. to noon Friday to receive donations for the annual gift project to the Veterans Nursing Home and Domiciliary in Boise, according to Donald L. Siplon, first vice commander of the Twin Falls American Legion Post No. 7.

Individuals who have donations they would like picked up may call 734-6583. Cold storage is available for donated frozen food. Gifts to the veterans home are tax deductible.

On Saturday, area Legionnaires will transport the gifts of food, new clothing, books, games and toilet articles, which have been donated by local businesses and individuals, to Boise.

On Sunday, the convoy of Legion groups from throughout Idaho will be formed and the formal presentation will be made at the Idaho Veterans Home.

Tips for elderly

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) -- Moving an elderly relative to a nursing home, retirement village or even a room in your own home can become a happier experience than usual if you show common sense and loving concern, says college professor Ruth Brent.

The University of Missouri faculty member said rooms for the elderly should have good lighting for tasks like reading, and a minimum of background noise to avoid confusing people who are hard of hearing or nervous.

Lots of mirrors can disorient an older person who can't see or move around too well, the assistant professor of housing and interior design said.

Coffee tables are also a poor idea because they're too low and can easily be tripped over.

Wing chairs should be avoided because it is hard for elderly people sitting in them to converse.

MOTHER'S HOLIDAY KITCHEN

The Times-News

Miriam Koester with coffeecake

Gooding woman wins

GOODING — Miriam Koester could hardly wait to get home last Friday after winning the grand prize in The Times-News' cooking contest with her Fruit Coffee Cake, or Kuchen, the German name for the family traditional holiday bread.

"My son in Appleton, Wis., always said my kuchen wasn't as good as grandma's," she laughed, adding he was so small when his grandma died she didn't see how he really could remember.

"I'm going right home and phone him to tell him I won the grand prize," she said.

Her winning Kuchen recipe, which placed first in the bread category and is printed on Page 12, is an old family recipe. Her mother made it every holiday ever since Mrs. Koester can remember as a child. Because her father was a Congregational minister, the family moved frequently, but once lived at Paul.

Mrs. Koester, whose husband, Ed, served for many years as Gooding county agent before his retirement, taught home economics for 21 years at the Idaho School for the Deaf and Blind at Gooding.

Newcomer places first in appetizers

TWIN FALLS — Donna Hardwick, who placed first in the appetizer category of The Times-News annual recipe contest, is a comparative newcomer to Twin Falls.

She and her husband, Jim, who is associated with management of Pay-Less Drug, moved here last spring from LaGrand, Ore. She works for Dr. Robert A. Ridgeway, orthodonist, and has a seventh grade daughter and twins, a boy and girl, who are second graders.

Her winning entry, Cheese-Ham Cubes, was a recipe she remembers her mother always made around holiday time.

"It's a good recipe because it can be made ahead of time," she said.

She and her older daughter both enjoy cooking and Mrs. Hardwick also likes to do stitchery. The contest winner entered a similar newspaper recipe contest in La-Grand last year, but didn't place.

"This is much more exciting," she said.

CHEESE-HAM CUBES

2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 (8 oz.) package cream cheese
6 thin slices boiled ham

Beat all ingredients except ham until creamy. Place one ham slice on a large piece of waxed paper. With knife or spatula, spread some of creamed mixture over it. Top with ham slices. Repeat, ending with ham slice on top. Wrap securely in waxed paper and freeze for at least 2 hours.

About 1 hour before serving and remove from freezer and using a very sharp knife, cut into cubes. Serve with toothpicks.

HOMEMADE SALAMI

5 pounds lean ground beef
5 rounded teaspoons quick salt
2½ teaspoons mustard seed
2½ teaspoons coarse ground pepper
2½ teaspoons garlic salt
1 teaspoon hickory smoke salt

FIRST DAY: Mix all ingredients in large bowl, cover and refrigerate.

SECOND DAY: Mix by hand and refrigerate.

THIRD DAY: Mix by hand and refrigerate.

FOURTH DAY: Form into 5 to 8 rolls (depending on size you desire) and place on rack of broiler pan. Place in 175 to 200 degree oven on bottom rack of oven. Bake 8 to 10 hours. Turn the rolls every 2 hours. It won't fall apart as it forms its own casing.

Editor's note: Many of the nearly 170 recipes submitted for this year's recipe contest are not included in this cookbook edition because of lack of space. They will be used in future Valley Life pages as space permits. The Times-News expresses appreciation to all those entering the contest.

CHERRY SALAD SURPRISE

1 3 oz. pkg. raspberry-flavored gelatin
1 21 oz. can cherry pie filling
1 3 oz. pkg. lemon-flavored gelatin
1 3 oz. pkg. cream cheese, warmed to room temperature
½ cup mayonnaise
1 cup crushed pineapple
½ cup whipping cream
1 cup tiny marshmallows
2 tablespoons walnuts finely chopped

Dissolve raspberry gelatin in 1 cup boiling water, stir in pie filling. Turn into a 9 x 13 inch baking dish. Chill until set. Dissolve lemon gelatin in 1 cup boiling water. Beat together cream cheese and mayonnaise. Gradually add lemon gelatin. Stir in undrained pineapple. Whip cream. Fold into lemon mixture. Add marshmallows. Spread on top of cherry layer. Top with nuts. Chill until set. Salad can be made ahead if covered. Cream cheese must stand at room temperature to mix well with mayonnaise. Cut into small squares and serve on lettuce.

MOM'S CUCUMBER SALAD

3 long slender cucumbers
2 large sweet onions
Salt and pepper
Salad dressing

In large bowl slice one layer of cucumbers about ⅛ inch thick, one layer of thinly sliced onions, a little salt and pepper, and a thick layer of salad dressing. Keep doing this until cucumbers and onions are all used up with the last layer being salad dressing.

Put a pie plate over cucumbers and weigh down with a rock. Place in refrigerator overnight. Next morning stir well and maybe transfer to smaller bowl. Garnish with sprigs of parsley.

The juice which comes out of cucumbers from the weight and mixes with salad dressing resembles thick sour cream.

CREAM CHEESE SALAD

1 (No. 2) can of pineapple
Juice of 1 lemon
1 cup sugar
1 package unflavored gelatin
1 (8 oz.) package cream cheese
¼ pound American cheese, grated
½ pint (1 cup) whipping cream
½ cup chopped nuts, walnuts or pecans

Combine pineapple, sugar and lemon juice and let boil for 2 minutes.

Remove from heat and add the gelatin which has been soaked in ½ cup cold water. Chill. When the mixture begins to congeal, add cream cheese, grated cheese and chopped nuts. Fold in the whipped cream. Place in refrigerator until set firm.

Carol Scherer developed recipe

Hot chicken salad recipe wins prize

TWIN FALLS — Carol Scherer of Twin Falls was searching for recipes to use leftover turkey when she developed the Hot Chicken Salad which won in the salad category of the annual Times-News recipe contest.

A veteran recipe contest winner, she found the basic recipe and "added more things" to create a different texture. She likes to cook and with seven children has had much experience.

The winning cook is an aide at Sawtooth Grade School and her husband, Frank, is a counselor at Gooding High School. The Scherers have lived in Twin Falls for about 15 years.

GERMAN POTATO SALAD

4 potatoes, preferrably red
1 pound bacon
1 medium onion, finely chopped
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoon sugar
3 tablespoon vinegar

Cook potatoes until done. Do not overcook. Cool until luke warm and slice or chop in bowl. Chop bacon into pieces and fry until well done. Add bacon to potatoes and drain all grease from pan except for 3 tablespoons. Add onion and fry slowly until done. Add flour to onions and bacon grease. Brown a little and then add enough water slowly to make a thin sauce. Add sugar and vinegar. Pour bacon and potatoes into pan and stir until well coated with sauce. Salt and pepper to your own liking. Sprinkle with parsley and serve hot.

Pam Berg's 'mistake' wins main dish category

Stirfry szechuan wins in category

The recipe needs only 1 teaspoon of black pepper, she said, but one day she mistakenly added more cayenne and white pepper, making the dish "hot."

But the dish serves her family well because they try to eat a low-fat, low protein diet, keeping to 50 percent complex carbohydrates, 30 percent fat and 20 percent protein.

"So we eat a lot of fruits and vegetables," the winner said, "and this is really a tasty dinner dish without being fatty."

Mrs. Berg, who has lived in Twin Falls for 10 years, was born and raised in New York City. She enjoys cooking and favors light dishes.

PAMELA K. BERG

STIRFRY SZECHUAN

1 bunch broccoli
1 small cauliflower
2 cups fresh sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons sesame oil
1 small slice ginger root
½ cup sliced green pepper
2 cups diagonally sliced celery
¼ pound sugar peas
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon onion powder
1 teaspoon black pepper
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
¼ teaspoon white pepper
1 pound cooked frozen shrimp
2 tablespoons soy sauce
½ cup grated sharp cheddar

Trim stems and leaves from broccoli and cauliflower. Divide into flowerettes. Sprinkle mushrooms with lemon juice. Put oil in wok or fry pan. Rub ginger root around sides and bottom and discard. Plate broccoli and cauliflower on bottom of wok. Layer mushrooms, green pepper, celery and peas in wok. Add garlic and seasoning except for soy sauce. Cover and cook for 5 minutes on medium high. Add rinsed shrimp. Cook 5 minutes more or until vegetables are cooked but crisp. Toss with soy sauce and cheese. Serve over rice. Makes 8 servings.

SUCKLING PIG

1 suckling pig, up to 10 pounds, feet and eyes removed ½ cup salt
3 to 4 cups warm water
Small slab bacon
1 whole lemon
Smooth wooden stick the length of the pig

Wash and dry the pig inside and out, rub inside with salt. Insert wooden stick through the mouth and put the pig into a roasting pan on its belly, add the water. Roast for 2 hours in a preheated 325 degree oven and rub with the bacon frequently. Prick the skin with a sharp needle to avoid blisters.

Do not baste with pan juices. When the roast is yellow-brownish after about 1½ hours of roasting, sprinkle with salt. When done, remove from oven, pull out the stick and insert a lemon in the pig's mouth. Keep piping hot and serve with the following hot sauce.

HOT SAUCE

Liver, heart and lungs of the pig
1 stick butter
1 large onion
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup broth, homemade or made with a cube
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon pepper
Juice of 1 lemon

Finely chop the liver, the heart and the pre-cooked lungs of the pig and saute in ¾ stick butter until done. Saute the finely chopped onion in ¼ stick butter separately until golden. Blend with flour, then add a cup of broth. When smooth mix with the innards and add the seasonings and the lemon juice. Stir well to make into a thick, smooth sauce. More or less liquid may be needed according to personal preference.

HILDEGARD RAEBER

RAGOUT OF MUTTON

4 to 5 pounds mutton breast, neck or shoulder
6 cloves
2 bay leaves
2 medium size white or yellow onions
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 teaspoons dried basil
¼ pound butter
Boiling water
2 teaspoons salt
3 lemon slices, seeds removed
⅓ cup capers, drained
1 cup dry white wine
5 canned anchovy filets, well drained and finely chopped
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour

Remove as much fat as possible and cut boned meat into uniform bite-sizes pieces. Melt ¼ pound butter in Dutch oven until bubbling, add the meat, cloves, bay leaves, onions, basil, lemon and salt. Cook for about 10 minutes mixing all ingredients well. Then add hot water, enough to almost cover. After an hour check meat for doneness. When tender, remove meat from liquid, strain the liquid and return to pot. Melt the 2 tablespoons butter in a small pot and combine with the 2 tablespoons flour until smooth and bubbly, combine with the hot liquid. Return to boil. Remove pot from heat and add the capers and anchovy filets and serve with rice, noodles or mashed potatoes.

CHICKEN LASAGNA

8 ounces of lasagna noodles, cooked and drained
8 ounces cream cheese at room temperature
1 cup cottage cheese
1 jar diced pimiento (optional)
⅓ cup onion
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup chopped green pepper
½ teaspoon parsley and poultry seasoning
2 cans mushroom soup
1 soup can of milk
4 cups of diced chicken or turkey

Beat cream cheese, add pimento, cottage cheese, onion, pepper and parsley. Add soup milk, salt and seasoning. Place half of the noodles in a 9 x 13-inch baking dish or 3-quart casserole dish, then put in half of the chicken, then half of the soup mixture. Repeat. Top with 1¼ cup of buttered bread crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Let stand for a few minutes before serving. Serves 6 to 10 persons.

DUTCH PEA SOUP (Snaart)

2 cups split green peas
4½ quarts water
1½ teaspoons salt
Ham bone
4 leeks
1½ cups chopped celery, with tops
1 cup shredded carrots
½ pound smoked sausage, cubed

Soak peas in 3 cups water for 12 hours. Drain. Add remaining water to peas. Add salt and bring to boil. Skim off the foam. Add ham bone, leeks, celery and carrots. Simmer 3 to 5 hours until meat comes off bone easily. Lift out bone and add meat to soup. During last ½ hour add smoked sausage. Makes 8 servings.

This old dutch recipe was handed down to me by my mother, who was born in the Netherlands. During the war, this was an inexpensive, healthy, filling meal, which I enjoyed when I was living at home. It can be adapted to make in the crock pot for "outside working mothers" to let cook while they're out of the house.

2 pounds hamburger
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped celery
1 (10¾ oz.) can cream of mushroom soup
1 (10¾ oz.) cream of chicken soup
1 can bean sprouts
1½ cups water
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup uncooked rice
⅓ cup soy sauce

Combine and brown oil, hamburger, onion and celery in skillet. Then mix in large mixing bowl with remaining ingredients. Stir altogether and put in casserole dish. SOUR CREAM ENCHILADA

1 pound ground beef
2 cups sour cream
1 10½ oz. can cream of chicken condensed soup
1 7¾ oz. can El Pata tomato sauce
3 cups grated cheese
8 flour tortilla shells

Brown hamburger, drain and set aside. Grate cheese and set aside. Combine sour cream, cream of chicken soup and El Pata sauce. Heat ¼ cup vegetable oil in skillet. Fry tortilla shells, 10 seconds on each side, individually. Fill shell with a layer of hamburger, sour cream mixture, and cheese. Fold and place folded side down on a baking dish. Repeat procedure for all eight shells. Pour remaining mix and cheese over the top. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes. Remove and serve hot. Leftovers may be frozen and reheated in the microwave for 5 minutes. Serves 4.

YUMMY HAMBURGER SANDWICH

1 pound of hamburger
3 hamburger buns
3 oz. cream cheese
1 tablespoon butter or oleo
2 tablespoons of prepared mustard

Prepare six equal hamburger patties, season with salt and pepper and Beau Monde (optional). Set aside.

Blend together cheese, mustard and oleo. Put about two tablespoons in the center of three patties. Top with patties and seal edges completely.

Fry in covered skillet. Place buns on patties and steam to heat. Be careful, they are hot inside. Makes 3 servings.

GRACE'S CHICKEN NOODLE PORK CHOPS

4 pork chops, ¾ inch thick
¼ cup cooking oil
Prepared mustard
Flour-seasoned with salt and pepper
1 or 2 cans chicken noodle soup, depending on size of chops
Poultry seasoning to taste

Heat cooking oil in frying pan. Spread prepared mustard on both sides of pork chops, then coat with flour. Fry chops in hot oil on both sides being careful to turn without browned flour and mustard coating falling off.

When nicely browned, add chicken noodle soup, spooning noodles evenly on chops and pouring liquid over everything. Add one can of water and bring to a boil.

Reduce heat to simmer. Raise chops with a spatula occasionally to keep them from sticking and so broth can get underneath chops. Simmer slowly for an hour. Sprinkle lightly with poultry seasoning about 15 minutes before being done.

CHILLY-NIGHT CHILI

1 (30 oz.) can chili beans
1 (15.5 oz.) can red kidney beans
1 large onion, chopped
1 quart canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon ground cumin
1 scant tablespoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon chili powder
2 pounds good quality ground beef

Combine all ingredients except for beef in heavy casserole or dutch oven over medium low burner. Bring slowly to a boil. To the boiling mixture, add the raw hamburger by pinching off small (pecan sized) pieces and dropping in. When the chili returns to a boil, turn the heat to low and cover for another hour. Serves 6 to 8.

This may cook slowly much longer, of course, but this is a speedy version of an old family recipe that originally called for dry beans soaked overnight for starters.

1 (13½ oz.) can refried beans
1 enchilada seasoning mix
1 taco seasoning mix
1 (8 oz.) can tomato sauce
¼ cup chopped onions
1 (12 oz.) bag Doritos
½ pound shredded cheese
1 small can sliced olives, optional

Brown beef and drain excess fat. Stir in beans and taco mix. Follow package directions. Simmer for 5 minutes on low. Add onions and simmer 5 minutes more.

Fix enchilada mix as per directions. If you want it milder, add more water.

Line 9 x 13 inch pan or glass dish (if for microwave) with ¾ bag of Doritos. Pour hamburger over the chips. Sprinkle olives over the hamburger (optional). Put enchilada over the whole mixture. Sprinkle on the rest of the chips. Cover completely with shredded cheese.

Bake at 350 to 375 degrees for 30 minutes or 10 minutes on high in microwave. Serves 8.

2 potatoes, thinly sliced
1 onion, thinly sliced
¼ of a green pepper, diced
1 fresh tomato, sliced
8 oz. cheddar cheese

Brown ground beef in a skillet. Drain and season with salt and pepper. In a large casserole dish, layer ground beef on the bottom. Next, spread half of the tomato soup (undiluted) on the ground beef. Next, layer half of the potato slices on top, then the onion, then the green pepper, then the tomato slices, then the other half of the soup, then the other half of the potato slices. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Uncover and add sliced cheese to cover top of casserole. Place back in oven uncovered until cheese is melted. Serves 6 to 8 people.

PORK CHOPS AND GRAVY

2 pork chops
1 can celery soup
2 weiners
2 cans water
Flour

In a baking dish, put soup and water and bake 1 hour at 350 degrees.

While this is baking, flour and brown pork chops in a skillet on both sides. Put weiners in boiling water and boil for 5 minutes to get rid of salt.

Drain all the grease off the pork chops, then scrape the drippings from the pan and add to the soup mixture. Put back in the over and continue to bake 1 additional hour at 350 degrees. After 30 minutes, turn the meat once.

Serve with baked or boiled potatoes, using the soup mixture as gravy. Cheaper cuts of meat can be used if desired, such as shoulder cuts. Serves 2.

KIMBERLY — Both winners in the holiday desserts category live in Kimberly.

Mrs. Egbert, who says she loves to cook, but "is not as good as my mother" had never entered a recipe contest before.

Her mother, Delila Higbee of Driggs, got it from her mother and the pudding has always been part of the Thanksgiving and Christmas menus for many years in the family.

Mrs. Egbert and her husband, James, who have lived in Kimberly eight years, have six children and one grandchild.

She works at Larry's Quick Service in Kimberly and her husband is employed by the Federal Aviation Agency at the Twin Falls airport.

CARROT PUDDING

½ cup butter or marggarine
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup carrots, grated
1 cup potatoes, grated
1 cup raisins
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cloves

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt

Stir together and add to carrot mixture. Stir well. Put combined mixture into a well buttered 3 pound shortening can. Fill a 6 quart pan with 1 to 1½ quarts water. Set pudding inside and cover loosely with a lid. Boil water gently. Steam pudding approximately 2 hours. Add more water if needed. Check for doneness by inserting a toothpick; if it comes out clean the pudding is done.

Makes approximately 10-½ cup servings. Serve warm with sauce or light cream.

SAUCE

1 cup brown sugar
½ cup butter or margarine
2 cups water
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup cold water

FROZEN ORANGE CRUMB PIE

½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon grated orange rind
3 tablespoons sugar
1¾ cups finely crushed vanilla wafers
2 eggs, whites and yolks separated
½ cup orange juice concentratem thawed
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup margarine

In top of double boiler, combine well-beaten egg yolks, ½ cup sugar, orange juice concentrate, orange rind and nutmeg. Cook over boiling water for 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from heat and cool thoroughly.

Beat egg whites until stiff. Gradually beat in 3 tablespoons sugar. Fold into cooled orange mixture, then chill aout 15 minutes in refrigerator.

Rub bottom and sides of pie pan generously with margarine. Frimly press 1½ cups wafer crumbs into margarine. Whip chilled milk until stiff. Fold into cooled orange mixture. Pile into crumb crust. Sprinkle remaining ¼ cup wafer crumbs over top of pie. Freeze until firm, at least 4 hours.

This pie is especially good for holidays because it can be made in advance, leaving you free on the holiday for other meal preparations.

PLUM PUDDING

1 pint hot milk
½ pound sugar
8 egg yolks, beaten
1 pound raisins
1 pound currants
¼ pound citrin, cut into thin strips
1 pound beef suet, chopped fine
1 wine glass of wine, brandy or whiskey, approximately ½ to ¾ cup
1 teaspoon of nutmeg
1 tablespoon mace
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon cloves
8 egg whites

Soak bread in milk until cool. Beat sugar and egg yolk to a light cream and add to bread mixture. Lightly flour raisins, currants and citrin and add to bread. Mix well.

Place in a large piece of cheese cloth that has been run through hot water and floured a little. Tie at the top. Place in boiling water and boil for 6 hours. Do not allow water to stop boiling. When water boils down add boiling water from another pot. This can be made 1 month ahead.

SAUCE

1 cup sugar
½ cup butter
4 egg yolks, beaten
1 glass brandy
Pinch of salt
1¼ cup hot cream

Cream sugar and butter. When light and creamy add egg yolks. Add brandy, salt and cream. Beat well, heat until thickened. Do not boil. Serve sauce over pudding mix. Serves about 12 people.

My grandmother is 86 years old and this Plum Pudding recipe was brought over to America by her mother, well over 100 years ago, when she came from England. It has been a holiday tradition in our family ever since.

BOYSENBERRY DUMPLINGS

Sauce:
4 cups fresh or frozen boysenberries)
Scant cup of sugar
4 tablespoons cornstarch, dissolve in ½ cup cold water

Put sugar, berries and cornstarch in heavy saucepan on medium heat. Stir often. Bring to a boil.

Dumplings:
1½ cup bisquick
½ cup milk
-or-(old fashioned way)
1⅔ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoon baking powder
1 egg
1 tablespoon sugar
⅔ cup milk

Beat egg, add sugar, salt, baking powder, flour and milk. Mix well, don't beat. Drop in dumplings with a spoon. Cook uncovered over the low heat for 10 minutes. Cover and cook for 10 minutes. Makes 10-12 dumplings. To serve, lift the dumplings into dishes and spoon the berries over them. This is excellent served warm. Serves 6 to 10.

CHRISTMAS CREAM CAKE

5 eggs, separated
1 stick butter or margarine
1 cup shortening
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup buttermilk
1 cup coconut
1 cup chopped nuts

In small bowl, beat the egg whites well until they form peaks and set aside. In a larger bowl cream butter, shortening, sugar, egg yolks and vanilla. Add the flour, baking soda, baking powder, salt and buttermilk. Mix well. Add the coconut and nuts and stir thoroughly. Carefully fold in egg whites. Pour batter into three 9-inch round cake pans with wax paper on bottoms and greased and floured.

Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Let cool in pans for 10 minutes before removing from the pans. Cool thoroughly before making the icing.

ICING

1 cup maraschino cherries
1 (8 oz.) package cream cheese
1½ pounds powdered sugar
½ cup butter or margarine

Drain, rinse and chop the cherries. Set aside. Combine cream cheese, powdered sugar and butter. Cream together thoroughly until smooth. Add cherries. Mix well and use to frost the cake.

FROSTED CREAMS

1 cup brown or white sugar
¾ cup shortening
1 egg
2¾ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup molasses
1 cup boiling water
2 teaspoons baking soda

Frosting"

Measure all ingredients except boiling water and baking soda into a large mixing bowl and beat well. Hold pan of boiling water over mixing bowl and put 2 teaspoons of baking soda into the boiling water. (If the water and soda fizzes it will go into the mixing bowl.) Add water and soda to other ingredients and beat well. Pour batter into greased 13- by 19-inch pan and bake for 12 to 15 minutes at 375 degrees. The cake is done if it springs back when touched lightly in the center. Do not overbake. Allow the cake to cool and frost with vanilla-butter frosting.

Frosting:

½ cup butter or margarine
3 cups powdered sugar
1½ teaspoon vanilla
About 2 tablespoons of milk

Mix together with enough milk to make it spreading consistency.

This cake is tasty and especially so on chilly autumn nights. It goes great with a mug of hot coffee. This is also a good "lunch box" cake for the kids. But beware of one thing — it is habit forming!

1 cup milk
3 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup black walnuts, chopped fine

Beat eggs and sugar together. Add remaining ingredients. Pour into 3 layer cake pans. Bake at 350 degrees for approximately 50 minutes.

ICING

1½ cups milk
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 eggs
½ cup half and half
½ cup black walnuts

Heat milk. In separate bowl mix sugar, cornstarch, eggs and half and half. Then stir into hot milk. Continue to cook and stir until it thickens. Add nuts. Cool and frost cake.

This is a very rich and moist cake.

FRUIT COFFEE CAKE

KUCHEN DOUGH
1 package dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
4 to 5 cups flour.

Soften yeast in lukewarm water, let set for 5 minutes. Scald 1 cup milk, adding sugar, salt and shortening. Stir until dissolved and cool.

Add 2 cups flour, beating 1 minute. Add two more cups flour gradually to make a soft dough. Let set in covered dish for 10 minutes. Knead dough until dough springs back when finger is pressed on it. Let rise, then it is ready for use. Any favorite roll dough may be used.

CUSTARD
1 pint half and half or evaporated milk
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
3 eggs, well beaten
Dash of salt

Shape the dough into small balls and roll about ¼ inch thick and place in pie pans which have been greased. Build up a slight crust but not as high as for pie. Add sliced fruit of your choice. Sliced apples, halved apricots or sliced peaches work well. Cover with some of the custard. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Bake at 350 degrees for about 30 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from pan and cool on a rack. Makes about 4 coffee cakes.

This recipe was given to me by my mother, who would be 98 were she living. She always baked Kuchen at Christmas time as well as Easter and other special occasions. It was served at breakfast or "supper" and is great for a "coffee" get-together. As the name denotes, it is of German origin.

Kush rhythms with bush. It is a delicious breakfast skillet dish. This is an excellent way to use leftover crusts or stale bread. I have put this in recipe form with exact proportions as I make it. It is my mother's modification of how she learned to make the French recipe from her own mother. Everybody always likes it.

CHEESE HAM-WITCH

¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup margarine or butter
1 cup milk
1 egg
1 envelope dry yeast
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ cup water
2½ cups flour
1 cup cheddar cheese, cut into ¼ inch cubes
1 cup ham or salami, cut into ¼ inch cubes

Cool to lukewarm. In warm water, sprinkle in sugar and yeast. Don't stir. When all dampened and very frothy, add to cornmeal mixture.

On lightly floured surface, roll out dough to 11 x 7 inches. Press cheese and ham into dough. Roll up firmly, pressing out air bubles, without stretching. Fold in ends so ham and cheese are covered. Put in greased 8½ x 4½ inch loaf pan. Bake 30 to 35 minutes at 375 degrees or until loaf sounds very hollow when thumped. Makes 1 loaf.

OLLIE BOLLEN

2 tablespoons shortening
½ cup sugar
1 package yeast
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups raisins
2 apples, shredded
3 eggs, beaten
½ cup beer
6½ cups flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg
Candied fruit may also be added, about 1 cup

Heat milk, shortening and sugar to 110 degrees F. Add the yeast and stir to soften. Add the remaining ingredients, adding flour to the consistency of a soft, spongy dough. You should be able to drop by spoonfuls. Let rise until double, about 1½ to 2 hours. Don't stir down. Fry in 375 degree oil until lightly browned. Check inside of the first few to make sure the centers get done. Enjoy rolled in either powdered sugar or granulated sugar. Makes 6 dozen.

This recipe was passed down to me from my mother, who was born in The Netherlands. Traditionally, Ollie Bollen were made on Old Years Eve, to celebrate the holiday, although my young family doesn't let me wait so long between batches! In her particular "county" they used yeast in their recipe, whereas some other "counties" used baking powder. I prefer the yeast, as it makes a lighter, puffier "doughnut." As young girls my mother and her sister would have a contest to see who could fry the roundest ollie bol. I made one change, I added ½ cup beer, which gives it a nice taste.

EVERLASTING POTATO ROLLS

½ teaspoon salt
3 cups mushed potatoes with water
1 package of yeast
½ cup of warm water
½ teaspoon sugar
½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoon salt
2 well beaten eggs
7 cups of flour, approximately

Boil 2 small potatoes plus ½ teaspoon salt in water to cover until mushy. Melt ½ cup sugar, shortening and 1½ teaspoon salt in potato mush. Set aside to partially cool. Dissolve yeast, and ½ teaspoon sugar in warm water. Let set while preparing reamining ingredients. When potato mixture is cooled to luke warm add well beaten eggs, yeast mixture and set aside while sifting flour in a separate large bowl.

Combine all ingredients together, mix well and knead. Let raise for 1 hour, punch down and knead a little bit, let raise 1½ hours. Punch down and knead again and make into rolls. Let raise for 45 minutes or until double in size. Bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Yields 2 dozen large, yummy dinner rolls.

A portion of the dough may be refrigerated and used at a later date if desired.

BREAD STICKS

2 packages active dry yeast
½ cup warm water
1 tablespoon salt
2 cups lukewarm water
7 to 7½ cups all-purpose flour
1 egg

Soften yeast in warm water, about 110 degrees. Combine salt and lukewarm water; beat in 2 cups of flour. Blend in softened yeast. Stir in 4½ to 5 cups of flour, enough to make moderately stiff dough.

Place in greased bowl, turning to greased surface. Cover and let rise until double. Turn dough down and let rise again. After rising, divide each half roll dough into 20 equal parts. Roll each piece of dough under hands into pencil like strands, about 12 inches long and ½ inch in diameter. Place 1 inch apart on greased baking sheet, sprinkled with corn meal. Brush with egg and water. Let rise uncovered in warm place until double. Brush again.

Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes. Brush again with water and egg mixture. Bake 10 to 15 minutes longer. Makes 40 sticks.

Aluminum Cookware

Calphalon is a nonstick surface that's part of the metal. It can't chip, crack, peel or rust. It's so hard you can use metal utensils without fear of scratching it. Clean up is easy because it's virtually stick free. Calphalon prevents the aluminum from reacting with tomato or lemon juice and respects the color and flavor of a delicate white sauce, too. Leading chefs endorse it.

Eloise Newbry enjoys cooking in retirement

TWIN FALLS — The Holiday Carrots which brought Eloise Newbry of Twin Falls first place in the vegetables and fruit category is a regular holiday dish in her family.

Her mother gave her the recipe years ago in Missouri where Mrs. Newbry lived until 1929. The Newbrys, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary this year, have lived all of their married life in the Twin Falls and Buhl areas.

She enjoys cooking, but had little time to experiment during the 22 years she worked at the Idaho Department Store as a buyer for ready to wear garments.

"I always thought when I retired I'm going to spend my time cooking," she said. And for the last four years three different grandsons have lived with the Newbrys while attending CSI, so she has had eager eaters for her culinary achievements.

BAKED HOMINY

1 can, 14½ oz. size, hominy, drained
1 can, 14½ oz. size, whole tomatoes, chopped
1 slice bacon, fried and crumbled
½ cup grated cheese
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter

Place all the ingredients in a well-greased baking dish, with the exception of crumbs and butter. Sprinkle crumbs on top and dot with butter. Bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

This is a family favorite from my mother-in-law and is often fixed for the threshers.

VEGETABLE CASSEROLE

4 or 5 medium size sweet potatoes or yams
1 pkg. sliced almonds
1 cup dark brown sugar
1 pkg. miniature marshmallows
1 cup sweet cream
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt

Boil potatoes with skins on until tender. Peel, slice and place in a 2 quart baking dish. Sprinkle sliced almonds between each layer.

Mix creeam, sugar, cinnamon and salt. Pour over the potatoes. Bake at 225 degrees for 30 minutes. Remove from oven, cover with the marshmallows and place back in over for about 5 minutes or until brown.

This dish would be good for any dinner. I especially used it for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners. Mabel Tarr

Arlene Schmidt with top candy

TWIN FALLS — Arlene Schmidt says her winning Butternut Crunch, which was judged first in the holiday candies category, is "real easy to make with ingredients on hand."

The recipe comes from her mother, Pearl Stapleton of Hailey, and Mrs. Schmidt used to help her mother make it as part of the holidays each year while growing up at Hailey.

She and her husband, Jim, have lived in Twin Falls about 16 years. They have four teen-age daughters. She is active in the Bruin Boosters and is a medical technologist at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

My mother made these 35 years ago for my wedding reception. She is 81 and still makes them and takes them to the nursing home.

BUTTERNUT CRUNCH

1 cup sugar
¼ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter
2 tablespoon corn syrup

Combine above ingredients and cook to light crack stage (280 degrees).

Pour cooked syrup into a greased cookie sheet and cool. Melt a 12 oz. package of chocolate chips over the candy. Sprinkle with ½ cup finely chopped nuts. Cool. When cool, turn candy and spread other side with melted chocolate and sprinkle with nuts. When cool break into pieces.

CHOCOLATE BON BONS

1½ pound powdered sugar
2 cubes margarine
Evaporated milk

Mix sugar and margarine. Add just enough milk to make the mixture stick together. Add more sugar if it is too thin.

Add:

1 cup chopped maraschino cherries
1 cup chopped nuts

Melt 12 oz. chocolate chips and ½ stick paraffin over low heat or by using a double boiler. Put fondant balls one at a time into the chocolate mixture. Use a double boiler and the chocolate will stay thin while you dip. Use two forks. Put on waxed paper to set. Freeze or store in cool place.

CANDY BONBONS

1 box (1 pound) powdered sugar
2 cups chunkie peanut butter
3 cups wheaties, crumbled fine
1 6 oz. package chocolate chips
1 large Hershey chocolate bar
½ bar of paraffin wax

Take first four ingredients and cream together. Then form with hands into balls the size of shelled walnuts. Melt in a double boiler the last three ingredients. Dip the balls into the melted chocolate. Place on wax paper until cool. They can be put into fancy candy paper cups and kept in an airtight container. Makes at least 32 candies.

HONEY CARAMELS FOR GRANDMA

2 cups sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup evaporated milk
cup butter

Cook sugar, honey, and salt rapidly to firm ball stage (250 degrees). Stir. Add butter and milk gradually so mixture does not stop boiling at any time. Cook rapidly to firm ball stage. Stir constantly so mixture will not stick. Pour into a buttered pan. Cool thoroughly before cutting into squares. Wrap individually in plastic wrap and store in a cool place. Yields 36 candies.

MRS. SILAS DAYLEY
Route 1, Box 167, Hansen
DIVINITY CANDY

2½ cups fine granulated sugar
⅔ cup white corn syrup
½ cup water
2 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup walnuts
½ cup raisins
1 teaspoon vanilla

Separate eggs, putting whites into large mixing bowl. Chop nuts. Butter 2 cookie sheets. Combine sugar, syrup and water in a sauce pan. Stir and cook over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Cover, cook 1 minute. Then uncover and cook with out stirring until brittle stage, 265 degrees. When almost done, beat egg whites and salt on high speed until stiff, about 2 minutes.

Slowly pour in syrup, continue to beat until no longer shiny and mixture will hold shape when dropped from a spoon. Beat in a few drops of boiling water if too thick. Beat in nuts and vanilla. Drop at once by teaspoonfuls on to cookie sheet. Makes about 4 dozen pieces.

WALTER J. COCHRAN
Box 365, Sun Valley
POTATO CANDY

- 1 potato
- 2 pounds powdered sugar, approximately
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 1 (16 oz.) jar of peanut butter

Boil potato until well cooked. Drain water and mash. Start adding powdered sugar a little at a time, mixing well. Keep adding sugar and mixing until it is too thick to stir with a fork. Add vanilla. Then add more powdered sugar and knead in by hand until it is about the consistency of bread dough.

Cover a breadboard with wax paper and dust lightly with powdered sugar. Dust a rolling pin with powdered sugar and roll out candy to about ¼ inch thick. Spread peanut butter about ¼ inch thick over candy. Starting at one edge roll up the candy and peanut butter. Then cut roll into ½ inch pieces. They should look like small pinwheels. Refrigerate until well set. Yields about 2 pounds.

POPCORN NUT BRITTLE

- 1½ cups sugar
- ½ cup white corn syrup
- ½ cup water
- 1 tablespoon light molasses
- ¼ cup shelled peanuts
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 3 cups popped popcorn

Combine sugar, corn syrup, water and salt in saucepan. Stir well until sugar is completely blended. Cook rapidly to soft ball stage. Add molasses and butter. Cook slowly until soft crack stage. Pour immediately over popcorn and nuts. Mix thoroughly. Pour on thin buttered sheet to harden. Break into pieces. This is better if allowed to age.

My mother, Margaret Son, made this every Christmas.

OH BOY! MOM's CHOCOLATE CARAMELS

- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup light corn syrup
- 1 cup sweetened condensed milk
- 1½ cups milk
- ⅓ cup butter
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1½ teaspoons vanilla
- Nuts, optional
- 5 oz. unsweetend chocolate

Cook sugars, syrup, condensed milk, milk and chocolate until sugar is dissolved. Cook slowly, stirring constantly to prevent burning. Cook to 248 degrees on candy thermometer. Remove from heat. Add butter, salt, vanilla and nuts. Pour into a greased pan and let set.

GRANDMA KELLY'S FAMOUS FUDGE

- 2 cups milk or 1-13 oz. can evaporated milk and enough regular milk to make 2 cups.
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 (1 oz.) square unsweetened chocolate
- 1 lump butter, about the size of a walnut, do not use soft margarine
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

Stirring constantly, bring milk and sugar to boil in heavy saucepan. Then add unsweetened chocolate and lump of butter. Cook over medium heat, turning to low heat as mixture thickens, until it reaches the soft crack stage. Don't be impatient — stir constantly. Cool fudge in pan naturally until no warmth is felt on bottom of pan. Add walnuts and vanilla. Beat with wooden spoon through the glossy stage to the dull stage. Pour onto buttered plate.

CHRISTMAS CAKE CANDY

- 1 (8 oz.) box dates, finely chopped
- 1 (8 oz.) jar maraschino cherries, drained and chopped
- 1 cup pecans, finely chopped
- 1 (14 oz.) box coconut, shredded
- 1 can sweetened condensed milk.

Thoroughly mix all ingredients in large bowl. Spread mixture in a shallow buttered baking pan. Bake in a 350 degree oven until light brown. Cut into squares. Cool and pack in an airtight container. Make candy in advance. Candy ages as does fruit cake. Makes 60 pieces.

MONIKA MECHAM

PEANUT BRITTLE

- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup Karo syrup
- 2 cups Spanish peanuts
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon butter
- ¼ teaspoon soda

Slowly cook the sugar and syrup with one cup of water in a pan, stirring until sugar dissolves, to soft ball stage, about 240 degrees. Add peanuts and salt, cook to hard crack stage, about 260 degrees. Stir constantly. Take off stove, add butter and soda, stir to blend. Pour onto cookie sheet and stretch. Makes about 3 pounds.

MY MOTHER-IN-LAW'S GREAT PEANUT BUTTER CUPS

- 1 stick (½ cup) margarine
- 1 cup smooth or chunky peanut butter
- 2 cups powdered sugar
- 2 to 3 pounds good melting and dipping chocolate

Mix all ingredients except chocolate together until it no longer sticks. Melt dipping chocolate in a double boiler, keeping chocolate between 85 and 90 degrees or a nice dipping consistency.

Take teaspoon of peanut butter mixture and roll into a ball, dip carefully in chocolate. Place on waxed paper to dry.

RECIPES YOUR MOTHER NEVER TOLD YOU!

BACON

SPINACH, BACON AND APPLE SALAD

6 SERVINGS

¼ cup olive oil
3 tablespoons wine vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
Salt and freshly ground pepper
6 slices Falls Brand Hickory Smoked Bacon
½ cup sliced almonds
1 pound fresh spinach (stems discarded), torn into bite-size pieces
1 unpeeled red apple, cored and coarsely chopped
3 green onions, thinly sliced

Cook bacon in large skillet over medium-high heat until browned and crisp. Drain well on paper towels. Crumble and set aside. Discard all but 1 tablespoon fat from skillet. Add almonds to skillet and shake pan over medium-high heat until nuts are lightly toasted. Remove from heat. Combine spinach with bacon, apple, onion and almonds and toss lightly. Shake dressing, pour over salad and toss again.

6 SERVINGS

1 pound Falls Brand Pork Sausage, crumbled
¼ pound mushrooms, chopped
1 medium onion, diced
Salt and freshly ground pepper
6 eggs
3 tablespoons sour cream
tablespoons Mexican tomato and yellow chili hot sauce
16 ounces cheddar cheese, grated
8 ounces mozzarella cheese, grated

Preheat oven to 400°F. Grease 9x13-inch baking dish. Combine sausage, mushrooms and onion in large skillet. Sauté over medium-high heat until sausage is completely cooked. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Drain well.

Combine eggs and sour cream in blender and whip 1 minute. Turn into baking dish and bake until eggs are softly set, 4 to 7 minutes. Spoon hot sauce evenly over top. Add sausage mixture and top with combined grated cheese.

To serve immediately, broil until cheeses are melted. To serve next day, refrigerate until serving time, bake at 325°F until cheeses are melted, about 30 minutes.
